MAYOR'S PLAN

Political Fuel Added In Cotati

By BONNIE BARD

Mayor Geoffrey Dunham added fuel to the Cotati political fires yesterday by calling for the resignations of two planning commissioners.

Dunham and councilmen Annette Lombardi and Stephen Laughlin — who face a recall election Tuesday — said they will fire commissioners Alfred Falletti and Archie Stewart if they do not resign voluntarily.

The two commissioners refused to attend the Aug. 23 commission meeting and a special meeting called for last Tuesday to prevent the commission from acting on a proposed sign ordinance, according to the mayor. He said the commission was unable to conduct business at the sessions because a quorum was not present. (Chariman Allan C. Stansbury is at Army reserve camp.)

Older businessmen in Cotati have opposed the sign ordinance, calling it too restrictive.

Councilman Frank P. Dolinsek said he and Vice Mayor Herbert T. Winter will attempt to block the ousters if Dunham, Miss Lombardi and Laughlin remain in office.

Stewart and Falletti, who were unavailable for comment, were appointed last year after the three young councilmen were elected. Many residents considered the appointments a peace gesture since Falletti and Stewart are popular with older residents of the city.

"We appointed them because we thought they had the best interests of the community at heart," Dunham said at a hastily called press conference. "We consider this act (their absence at the sessions) unconscionable and a betrayal of the public trust."

Dunahm said Falleti's and Stewart's actions have slowed the city's planning progress at a critical time.

"They should resign, but probably won't," Dunham said. "If we stay in office after Tuesday, we'll fire them."

Dolinsek called the move to oust the two men "more shenanigans" and said Falletti and Stewart have been hard-working commissioners. "They're trying to pull a fast one," he said of his fellow councilmen.

"Missing a couple of meetings is hardly a reason to fire them," Dolinsek said. "According to the rules, they have to miss three consecutive meetings before they can be removed from the commission, but I guess these guys think they can do anything they want."

Dolinsek said he thought the plan to remove Falletti, a former councilman, may also be based on his activities on the recall committee.

"If the recall election works out next Tuesday, we won't have to worry about things like this anymore," Dolinsek said.

Remap Plan Could Mean Northern Shift For Behr

Bagley's District Unchanged

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A state reapportionment plan unveiled yesterday would leave Marin's representatives to the Legislature unchanged, but would alter the boundaries of their districts.

The proposal prepared by a panel of retired judges would have little effect on the district of Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, but could mean a northern shift for the district of Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael.

Under the plan, Behr would keep Marin County, but lose all of Napa and Solano counties. His district would be expanded to include Southern Sonoma to Santa Rosa as well as Lake, Mendocino, Humboldt and Del Norte Counties.

The shift in Behr's district will toss Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, who now represents those five counties, into the same district with Republican floor leader, Sen. Fred Marler of Redding. Collier is not a resident of the new district and would have to move if he chose to run against Behr rather than Marler.

Bagley's new district would remain basically the same except that the city of Sonoma would be dropped from it. He would retain all of Marin and Southern Sonoma.

Statewide, the plan would shift two assembly seats and one Senate seat from Northern to Southern California. It completely redraws lines for Congressional districts.

The plan would also take thousands of black voters away from Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Berkeley, and would add two conservative white communities to his district.

The judges flatly rejected all reapportionment proposals of the Legislature, which had been drafted with the goal of preserving districts for incumbents.

The Legislature's plans, the judges said, "needlessly depart from the criteria of compactness and maintenance of county and city line integrity."

They added in a written statement: "There may be some instances where the residence of an incumbent candidate will not be within the district formerly represented. It is unfortunate but necessary that population shifts bring about inconvenience to some incumbents."

Legislative leaders said the proposed new districts appear to give incumbent congressmen of both parties good chances for reelection.

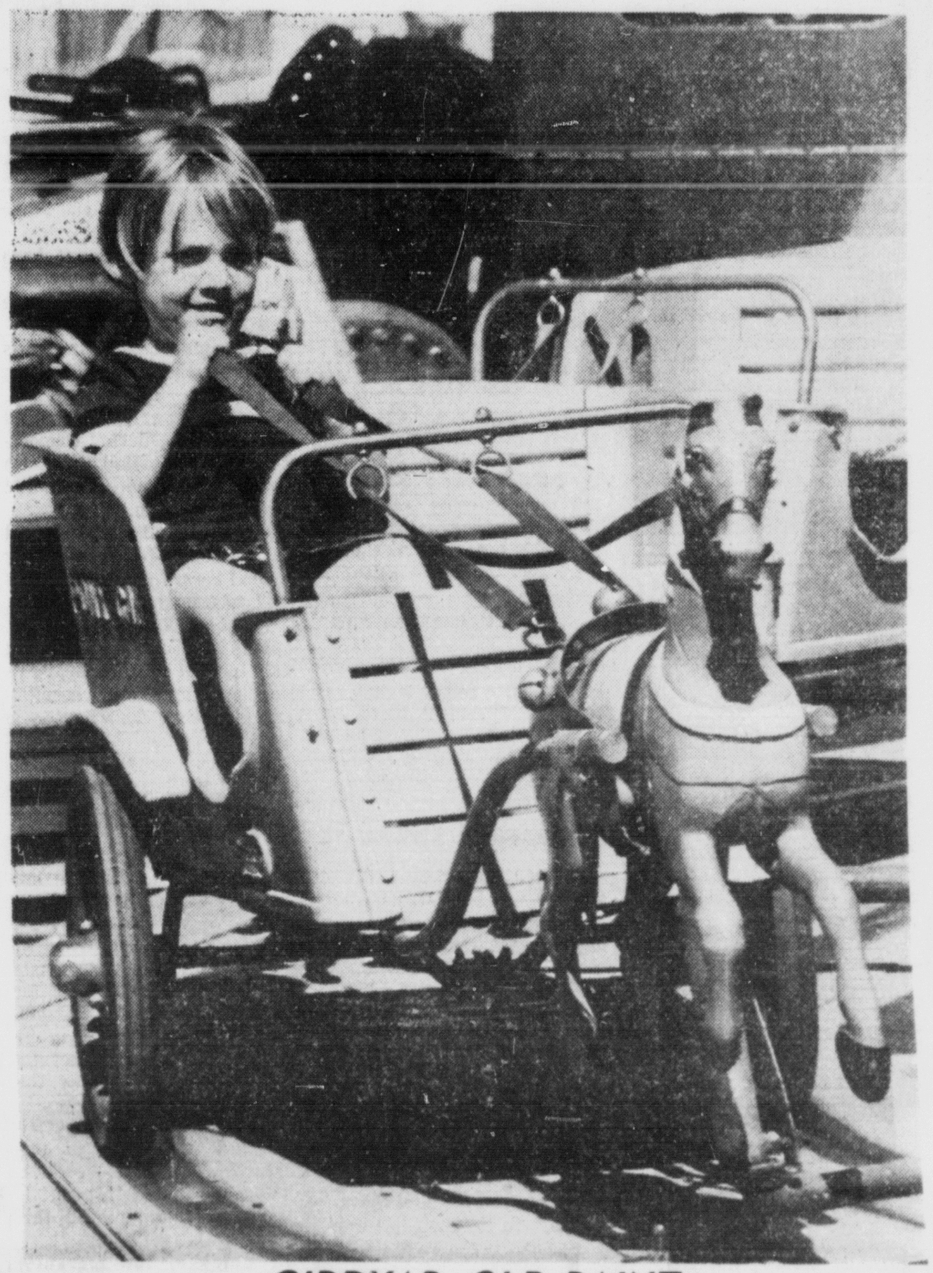

But they said at least a dozen state senators might be forced to run against other incumbents next year or move to new districts, and that an even greater number of assemblymen could be pitted against their colleagues in battles for political survival.

The plan would create new legislative districts in Santa Clara, Orange and San Bernardino counties. It throws other incumbents together to create potential "open" districts throughout California.

Senate leaders said the proposal gives Democrats a chance to regain control of the Senate, which is now divided 20-20.

Prospects in the Assembly, where Democrats have a 48-31 margin, were less certain. But

DANISH HOTEL

More Than 50 Perish In Fire

COPENHAGEN (UPI) —Fire raged through a luxury 19th Century downtown hotel early today, leaving more than 50 persons dead or missing, police said. A number of the guests were American tourists.

Police said at least 33 persons were killed and another 20 were missing. Seventeen persons were treated at hospitals for burns, smoke poisoning or injuries received when they jumped from windows in panic.

The fire at the 75-year-old, six-story Hotel Hafnia, near the City Hall square, was the worst hotel blaze to hit Denmark since World War II.

A fire officer said the blaze, which broke out at 2:30 a.m., was believed to have started on the main staircase between the second and the third floors.

The cause was not immediately determined.

Many of the dead were too badly burned for immediate identification, police said.

Witnesses said many of the guests panicked and ran to their windows screaming for help. Some were hurt leaping from windows while others grabbed bedsheets, knotted them together, and slid down to safety. A number of persons fled upward and then ran to adjoining rooftops.

A total of 85 persons were registered at the hotel.

A fire officer said that ladders were raised but "many of the people did not understand us although we yelled to them in many languages."

Dr. Arnauld Huddrant, 45, of Wolverhampton, England said he heard an explosion followed by "an orange flash" and "then

Pair Rescued From Miniature Submarine

CORK, Ireland (UPI) —An international team hauled two Britons trapped in a miniature submarine alive and well from the bottom of the Atlantic tourday, ending a dramatic three-day effort believed to be the deepest sea rescue ever made.

Roger Mallinson, 35, and Roger Chapman, 28, clambered under their own power out of their crippled 19-foot submarine Pisces III 75 hours and 50 minutes after it sank in 1,375 feet of water off the Irish coast.

"They looked fit enough to play football," a rescue spokesman said.

But the men escaped by a whisker.

Their midget sub, disabled while burying a new transatlantic telephone cable Wednesday, carried what was expected to be air enough for only 72 hours, plus a 45-minute emergency supply of oxygen. But they managed to stretch out the oxygen just long enough.

The men's air dwindled closer and closer to what an official called "the drop-dead time" while two sister submarines and a U.S. Navy underseas drone made dive after fruitless dive.

The sister subs Pisces II and Pisces V were able to attach only two light marker lines to the disabled sub.

Then early Saturday the U.S. Navy drone CURV III—the kind of device which found a hydrogen bomb dropped into the sea off Palomares, Spain— reached the sea bed and in seven minutes attached an eight-inch-thick rope.

The craft, her aft compartment flooded, was stuck front end upward in the mud in the inky blackness and intense pressures of the deep sea bed.

The Canadian ship John Cabot, hauling slowly and steadily on the three lines, lifted the Pisces free of the bottom at 9:40 a.m.

Less than 3-½ hours later the craft was on the surface and a Royal Air Force helicopter flashed the jubilant message, "The rescue is a success."

Four doctors aboard the 4,600-ton mother ship Vickers Voyager examined Chapman and Mallinson. A helicopter flew them to Cork, where they transferred immediately to a jet for a flight to Barrow-inFurness, England, where their families waited.

Sir Leonard Redshaw, chairman of Vickers Oceanics, owner of the Pisces, said the men were brought up in "our last chance." He described the operation as the deepest underseas rescue ever attempted.

Mrs. June Chapman, 25, and Mrs. Pamela Mallinson, 34, had spent Saturday together.

"I have had only three hours sleep in the last three nights," Mrs. Mallinson said. "But I had complete confidence in my husband and Vickers, and I always kept up hope."

"If anything, it has given me even more confidence about my husband going down under water again," Mrs. Chapman said.

Three Corte Madera Councilmen Refuse Recall Show Appearance

By BILL ROBERTS

Corte Madera residents who have been promised a special television show on the town's upcoming recall election Sept. 18 may be in for a disappointment.

The three city councilmen, who are targets of the recall movement, have refused to participate in the program. And there is a good chance the show may not be aired at all.

Gerald Pearlman, of the Marin Community Video Association which is putting the program together, said his group has not received the necessary approval from the cable television company which serves Corte Madera.

Officials of Tele-Vue Systems, which controls the channels which the town's cable subscribers receive, have refused to commit themselves to granting air time for the show, Pearlman said.

Pearlman said that if David S. Hanson, cable company manager, doesn't approve the showing by next week the program will have to be scrapped even though the video group already has over three hours of raw tape. A Tele-Vue spokesman said Hanson is on vacation and will not return until next week.

The association wants to show events surrounding the recall in a one-hour show to be presented Sept. 16 and 17.

When Hanson learned of the association's plans he wrote to Corte Madera City Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels asking if three councilmen wanted to present their views shown via cable television.

Mayor Holmes S. Norville replied that he and the other councilmen up for recall, Edward W. Colthurst and Harold B. Wagstaff, did not want any part of the proposed program.

"It is too easy to put someone at a gross disadvantage in a program of this type, either intentionally or unintentionally," Norville said yesterday. "I have no way of personally de-

Nixon, Agnew Confer On Federal Probe Of Funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew held a "thorough discussion" of Agnew's legal and political troubles for two hours today, and the White House said there was no talk of a possible Agnew resignation.

"The vice president brought the President up to date on current matters involving himself," White House deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren said. "It was a good session."

Nixon and the vice president met alone —at Agnew's request —in the President's Oval Office starting at 10:40 a.m., about nine hours after Nion returned from a 12-day working vacation at San Clemente, Calif. Warren refused to give any details of their discussion, saying it was "a private meeting."

"There was no discussion of Agnew resigning," Warren said, nor was there any review of constitutional questions about Agnew's legal status as vice president while under criminal investigation.

Agnew's press spokesman, Marsh Thomson, confirmed Warren's remarks and said "they had a very, very satisfactory meeting together." Thomson said there was "nothing of a major, special nature to the meeting."

Other sources said Agnew, who has seen his lawyers for each of the past two or three days, reviewed "legal strategy" with Nixon, although Thomson denied it. Thomson did say the two discussed "the way it is being handled by him (Agnew) and his lawyers." It was the first face-to-face meeting between Nixon and Agnew since Aug. 7, the day before Agnew went on nationwide television to deny allegations he had received kickbacks from government contractors in Maryland.

Agnew disclosed then that he was under federal investigation

China's Rising Star Says War Danger 'Still Exists'

HONG KONG, (UPI) —Wang Hung-wen, the rising star of China, said today that Peking rejects the leadership or domination of either of the "superpowers" —the United States and the Soviet Union— and that "the danger of a new world war still exists."

Wang, only in his thirties and thrust to a top position in the new Comunist Central Committee in its 10th annual national congress in Peking Aug. 24-28, was giving his report on revision of the party constitution.

His remarks, advertised in advance as an "urgent" message, were carried by Hsinhua, the New China News Agency, from Peking and monitored in Hong Kong.

Wang also warned of "revisionist" tendencies within China, admitted there should be criticism but said that unity was the keynote.

He said, quoting Chairman Mao Tse-tung, that China "must never be a superpower."

Wang, who rose to number three man in Shanghai during the Cultural Revolution after working in a textile mill, is regarded as a protege of Chang Chun-chiao, the top man in Shanghai, China's largest city and a key power base.

He was elected vice chairman of the Central Committee during last month's congress, sat at the right of Chairman Mao and was accorded the additional esteem of presenting the party's new constitution.

Internationally, he said, the constitutional revision calls for upholding "proletarian internationalism."

"This time," he said, "we have further included 'oppose

Libya Announces Takeover Of Foreign Oil Companies

BEIRUT (UPI) —The Libyan government announced Saturday its takeover of controlling 51 per cent interest in three foreign oil companies operating in the country.

Tripoli Radio, broadcasting from the Libyan capital and monitored here, identified the three companies as Standard Oil of California, the LibyanAmerican Oil Co. and the Royal Dutch Shell Petroleum Co.

The nationalization measures were announced in conjunction with celebrations marking the fourth anniversary of the bloodless military coup that toppled King Idris and brought Col. Moammar Khadafy to power in the oil-rich nation.

Nationalization of the three companies, as with previous government moves to gain control of foreign oil interests, involved the takeover of 51 per cent of the interests in each of

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Priest Weds

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lee McLaughlin, 61, a former Jesuit priest who was once president of Fordham University, was married in June to a 28-year-old free-lance writer, two New York newspapers reported today.

McLaughlin, a priest for 40 years, presently teaches literary criticism at Ramapo College in Mahwah, N.J., according to dispatches in The New York Times and the Daily News.

Identified

HOUSTON (UPI) — Authorities have identified the 16th teen-age victim of the sex and torture slayings of 27 young boys.

The youth was identified as Frank Anthony Aguirre, 19, of Houston. Aguirre disappeared while on his way to work Feb. 24, 1972. The county medical examiner's office said yesterday Aguirre was gagged and strangled.

His Last Day

WASHINGTON (UPI) — William P. Rogers, the only original member of the first Nixon administration cabinet to remain past the first term, served his last day as secretary of state yesterday.

He and Mrs. Rogers gave a party at the department where they said goodbye to employes and their families.

Henry A. Kissinger, the President's foreign affairs adviser, has been nominated to replace Rogers, pending Senate confirmation.

Protests Ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Sam J. Ervin of tobacco-growing North Carolina has protested a federal official's suggestion that cigarettes might be banned by the government.

As chairman of the Senate Government Operations Committee, Ervin wrote Richard O. Simpson, head of the Consumer Product Safety Commission, saying the agency has no power to ban or regulate the sale of cigarettes.

Ten days ago, Simpson said the commission could ban cigarettes if examination confirmed the surgeon general's findings that they were hazardous to health.

No Threat

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Watergate scandal no longer poses a threat to President Nixon's remaining three years in the White House, said his younger daughter Julie Nixon Eisenhower.

Mrs. Eisenhower, keynoting the Latvian Song Festival Centennial yesterday, expressed the hope "Congress will spend as much time on other problems such as Soviet relations, arms limitations and inflation as they have devoted to Watergate."

She refused to comment whether her father would ask for Vice President Spiro Agnew's resignation should he be indicted for alleged involvement in a Maryland scandal.

Emerald Stolen

HIDDENITE, N.C. (UPI) — North America's largest emerald was reported stolen yesterday but the owner says trying to sell the 1,438-carat crystal, worth $50,000, "would be like trying to sell the Mona Lisa."

The unnamed stone was taken this week from the American Gem Co. museum here, the Alexander County Sheriff's Office said.

A warrant has been issued for Arthur B. Miller, a firm employee until last Sunday, charging him with the theft. He was being sought in the Fayetteville area.

Good Progress

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., was making progress "in the fast range of normal" after surgery yesterday to remove a ruptured disc from hisspine. The chronic back problem had threatened to end Mills' 34-year congressional career.

Mills, 64, chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, was in good spirits and making "very normal progress," said John Pounders, a spokesman for the Baptist Medical Center.

A Violent Weather Day In The East

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The continuing heat wave that brought rising death rates in sweltering cities of the East yesterday also spawned widespread thunderstorms and some tornadoes.

The most violent storms developed in the northeastern Plains from the northern Appalachians into southern New England and along the Gulf region.

Three tornadoes were sighted near Sisseton, S.D., and across the border in west central Minnesota. Two of the tornadoes touched down in open country and caused no damage, said Robert Aiken, the Roberts County, S.D., civil defense director. He said the third tornado "just hit the hills and broke up."

A tornado also touched down in southern Dade County (Miami) in Florida, but no damage was reported.

Sixty mile per hour winds tore through Fitchburg, Mass., Middlebury, Vt., Binghamton, N.Y., Cincinnati, Ohio, and Wausau, Wis., during thunderstorms Friday. Hailstones two inches in diameter pounded Great Barrington, Mass.

Hot humid air accompanied the storms, but cooler air spread toward the nation's midsection accompanied by rain.

Three Des Moines, Iowa, youths were struck by lightning at a football practice field Friday. All three were hospitalized, including one who was in critical condition.

Winds up to 40 m.p.h., hit New York City, sending debris sailing to the ground from a high-rise construction site. However, the city's heat wave was expected to continue into the early part of the week.

New York City's heat wave forced a 5 per cent power reduction for the fourth straight day Friday. A spokesman for the New York Health Department said the death rate in the city was well above the normal 225 daily toll. On Thursday, the hottest day of the week, 314 persons died in the city.

Despite the storms in the East, the National Weather Service continued to predict weekend temperatures in the 80s and 90s for the area.

In Chicago, the mercury climbed to 90 for the seventh straight day Friday, and no relief was expected until at least Monday.

Agnew Enters Watergate Picture

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Samuel Dash, chief counsel for the Senate Watergate Committee, feels a responsibility to find out whether the federal probe of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew ought to be extended to the current investigation of the 1972 campaign.

Dash said yesterday he asked the Justice Department "fairly recently" to share its information about the Agnew case, although he said he had no information that the probe of alleged kickbacks from Maryland contractors to politicians falls under the committee's purview.

Justice Department spokesman Jack Hushen said, however, neither he nor Henry E. Petersen, chief of the department's criminal division, knew anything about the request.

"We are in contact with the Justice Department officials investigating the matter to get any information we can that might refer to our resolution (the Senate resolution setting up the committee)," Dash said.

The committee was authorized to investigate the burglary of the Democratic national offices at the Watergate complex June 17, 1972, and other acts of political espionage and sabotage in the 1972 presidential campaign.

Dash said that he made the Agnew inquiry because "questions had been put to us from so many sources."

In other Watergate developments:

Dash said his staff would try to set up "a discreet interview" with Martha Mitchell, wife of former Attorney General and Nixon campaign manager John N. Mitchell, to determine whether she ought to testify about her recent comments to UPI that President Nixon and former aide H.R. Haldeman wrote a "campaign strategy book" including plans for political espionage.

Dash said business leaders who have admitted being pressured into making contributions to the Nixon campaign will be called to testify.

Committee lawyers are preparing further legal arguments in anticipation of a White House reply to the committee's motion Wednesday for a quick judgment in its efforts to get access to President Nixon's secret Watergate tape recordings.

Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox argued that U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica was within his powers to sentence convicted Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy to 18 months for contempt for refusing to testify after he was convicted. The argument came during Liddy's appeal of the dontempt citation.

Weekend Finds Most Stations Open

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Labor Day weekend began with most of the nation's gas stations open for business despite the confusion of price controls that were supposed to go into effect today but were postponed until Sept. 7.

Almost half the 10,000 stations in Pennsylvania were expected to be closed until Tuesday, however, and so were over 80 per cent of the gas stations in Wisconsin.

Thomas J. Anderson, executive director of the Pennsylvania Service Station Dealers Association, said, "We've got to educate the public. They think gas prices are too high and we agree with them, but we are not getting the money."

The controls will permit dealers to charge seven cents a gallon more when they sell the gas than they pay when they buy it. Dealers claim they need a higher mark-up to make a profit.

Most of the service stations in Ohio will operate on their usual schedules but some 400 in the Cincinnati area plan to close to protest the price rules.

Checks with regional and state gas station associations showed no protest closings were expected in Washington, D.C., Maine, Washington state, Oregon, Minnesota, Arkansas, Indiana, Iowa, Illinois, St. Louis, New England, New York or Texas.

As many as one in three stations, however, were expected to be closed for other reasons, including short staffs caused by the holiday and a lack of gasoline. Most of the stations that stay open were expected to close at least one day to enjoy the holiday.

Stephen Montgomery, owner of two filling stations in the Indianapolis area, said any pressure campaign such as mass closings would have to last at least 10 days to get any results.

Also, he said, "We want to consider other avenues right now. We are not out to make other enemies, which might happen if we have more protest closings right away. We prefer to press our fight without inconveniencing the customer."

His Bad Odor Proves Too Much

LIVINGSTON, Tex. (UPI) — A man trying to escape from police ran into the First State Bank of Livingston and hid in a storage room yesterday.

Officers had little trouble finding the man, according to assistant cashier Nora McQueen.

"He had a bad odor so they didn't have any trouble," she said. "But it sure caused a lot of excitement."

Rail Strike Legislation Is Now Law

OTTAWA (UPI) —Government legislation ordering an end to the crippling Canadian rail strike became law early this moning after an all-night sitting of Parliament. Railroad officials predicted trains would be rolling again by noon Sunday.

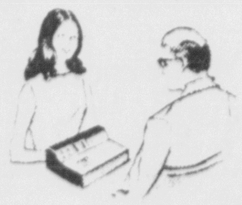

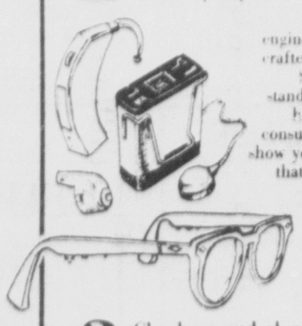

But the next move was up to the striking rail unions, whose walkout nine days ago halted rail, telegraph and ferry service across the country. Union leaders called a meeting today to decide whether to obey the law or risk penalties of up to two years in jail and a $5,000 fine.

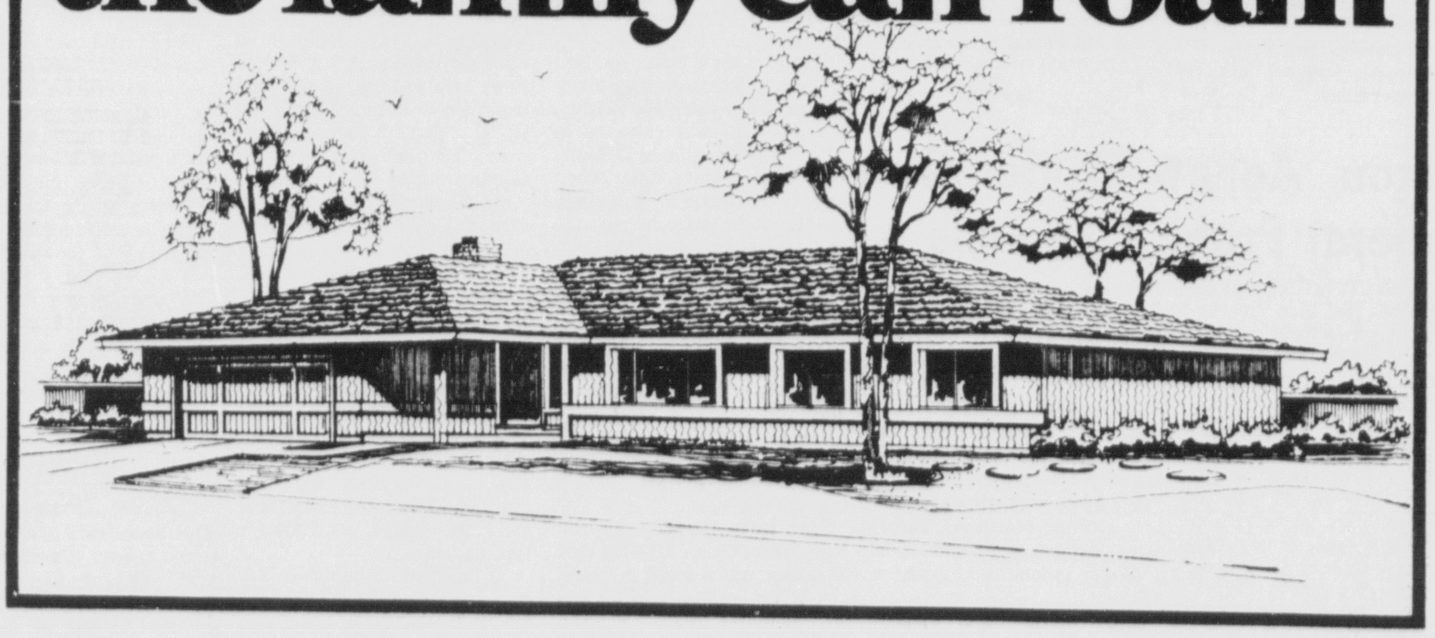

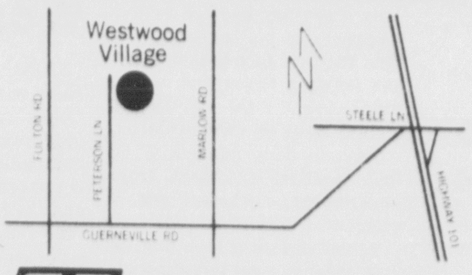

Although the union leaders earlier vowed to defy the back-to-work law, they said their position was now uncertain following a move by opposition parties Friday night that increased the wage settlement in the legislation.

A Big Grant For Orthopedic Study

STORRS, Conn. (UPI) — A University of Connecticut scientist has been awarded a $360,000 National Science Foundation grant to aid his quest for improved orthopedic implant alloys.

Dr. Norbert D. Green, in the metallurgy and general dentistry departments, is trying to find the best alloys for such implants as bone screws and artificial hips. Materials worked with so far range from gold and silver to titanium and stainless steel.

Crime Dry Spell Said Coincidence

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — Police report that for four hours and 55 minutes on a recent day they received no calls reporting crimes or accidents.

A spokesman said that on a normal day an average of 20 calls are received from 9:15 a.m. to 2:10 p.m., when the lull occurred. He attributed the dry spell to "mere coincidence."

Against Kissinger

ATLANTA (UPI) --Georgia Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox urged U.S. senators yesterday not to confirm Henry Kissinger as secretary of state, saying the confirmation would be a "grave mistake for the country.

Drug Abuse Conference Scheduled

Six Marin County officials will travel to Virginia Sept. 11 for a one-day drug abuse conference sponsored by the President's special action officer for drug abuse prevention.

The conference has been set to discuss drug problems and a new federally funded program to combat heroin addiction.

It will concentrate on workings of the Treatment Alternatives To Street Crime (TASC) project, which will pump $171,000 into Marin County this year for rehabilitation of arrested heroin addicts.

Attending will be superior court Judge Joseph G. Wilson, municipal court Judge Robert A. Smallman, Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos, Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales, Chief Probation Officer John W. Brewer and Public Defender Harold J. Truett. Andrew M. Mecca, project director for Marin County's program, and his assistant, Naomi Weinstein, will also attend.

Expenses will be paid by the federal government, Mecca said.

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A 112-page book of pictures of Lyndon B. Johnson, including one hitherto unreleased picture of Johnson dressed as Santa Claus, is on sale at the LBJ Library.

"It is not a book about death, but about a life that was vibrant," says Liz Carpenter, a former press secretary to Mrs. Johnson and the editor of the book, which sells for $10 hardbound and $5 in paperback.

The Gainesville 'Eight' Acquitted

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — A federal court jury yesterday acquitted eight antiwar veterans of charges of plotting violence to disrupt the 1972 Republican National Convention.

Pete Mahoney, one of the defendants, turned his back on a raucous victory party last night, frowned at an empty beer can and said: "I still can't forget the government put me through 14 months of hell."

The defendants, all members of the Vietnam Veterans against the War (VVAW), had gambled on their rapport with the jury, whose average age was 31. The defense presented only one witness, a bomb expert, to counter 28 people paraded to the stand by the government's chief prosecutor, Jack Carrouth.

The gamble paid off. Sources said only two of the dozen jurors had any doubts about the innocence of the defendants, "and they weren't hard to convince."

"They just didn't have nothing on those boys," said Gerald E. Bennett, one of the 12 jurors who returned the innocent verdict less than four hours after U.S. District Judge Winston E. Arnow sent them behind closed doors to deliberate.

Carouth, who listened to the jury's verdict without changing his stolid expression, said, "I feel all right about the case. I still have a job to do. And I'll do it."

Morton Stavis, who headed the defense team, called the jury's decision "a verdict of the people."

The government's key witnesses were six men paid by the government to infiltrate the VVAW and inform on the group's planned activities at the Miami Beach convention that nominated President Nixon for a second term.

The defense countered time and time again with charges the informants were "agent provocateurs" hired to foment violence at the VVAW meetings. Their testimony was repeatedly described as a "scenario of deceit."

Suit Filed For Angela, Magee Funds

A suit asking $396,328 from the state to reimburse Marin County for Civic Center security during the pretrail confinement of Angela Davis and Ruchell Magee was filed yesterday — more than a year after it was authorized by the Board of Supervisors.

The action claims that two state officials improperly refused to pay the county for security costs resulting from the 1970 Civic Center shootout and Hall of Justice bombing.

Superior Court Judge David Menary Jr. immediately ordered the officials, Raymond E. Procunier, director of the state Department of Corrections, and Vern Orr, director of the state Department of Finance, to pay the money or show cause why they should not at a Sept. 26 hearing.

The state paid about $350,000 to Marin for some of the Davis-Magee case costs but refused to pay another $396,328 which the county had requested.

Miss Davis was acquitted of murder, kidnap and conspiracy charges in San Jose earlier this year. Magee is awaiting a retrial after his first trial ended in a hung jury.

The suit contends the Civic Center shootout stemmed entirely from a Hall of Justice escape attempt by San Quentin inmates and that the state thus is liable for all costs connected with the case.

County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney said his office waited more than a year after to file the suit because it was complicated to prepare and had low priority.

The Assembly Decides Against Abandoning The 'Unsafe' Capitol

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Assembly, in effect, has decided to continue meeting in the century-old Capitol for the present time although experts warn the building could collapse in a moderate earthquake.

The action yesterday could put the lawmakers in the position of meeting in isolation in a vacant building from which the public, news media and other state officials are barred, said Assemblyman JohnBurton, D-San Francisco, chairman of the Rules Committee.

The lieutenant governor, secretary of state, state treasurer, a handful of lawmakers and the Capitol press corps have been ordered to vacate their offices in the west wing of the Capitol by Sept. 15.

The east wing, built in the early 1950s, is considered relatively safe.

The assemblymen decided to remain in their chambers when they defeated, on an overwhelming 12-55 vote, a resolution (ACR128) by Burton providing for them to meet in large committee rooms in the east wing.

Assemblyman Leroy F. Greene, D-Sacramento, said the "odds are quite small" that a potentially damaging earthquake would strike while lawmakers were meeting in the golden-domed building.

He said legislators spend only 4 per cent of their time in floor sessions.

The last earthquake felt in Sacramento occurred in 1966.

Burton said it was "reasonable and prudent" to convert the committee rooms into chambers for the Senate and Assembly.

His resolution stated, "The state architect and a private engineering firm have both independently found the west wing of the Capitol building structurally deficient and unsafe for further occupancy under present conditions."

Burton said if the Assembly continues to meet in its current chamber, the only way the public and press could observe the sessions would be through closed-circuit television.

An informal poll of senators conducted by the Senate staff earlier this year showed most preferred remaining in their chambers until a new structure is provided.

Legislation to begin construction on a new Capitol is currently before the Assembly Ways and Means Committee.

Hamilton's PX To Remain In Active Use

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — The Hamilton Air Force Base post exchange will remain open when the base is no longer an active installation and the commissary will be closed only temporarily, the Department of Defense has decided.

Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, announcing the decision yesterday, said the commissary, which closed last night will reopen as soon as possible after the Navy assumes responsibility for it. That may not be until next July 1.

The base will become a training facility for Air Force reservists. Military families will use its housing.

Toll Hike To Be Considered By Marin Group

The Golden Gate Bridge District is planning to increase the bridge toll will be considered Tuesday at 8:30 a.m. by the Marin County Transit District board.

The increase, from 50 to 75 cents, has been opposed in the past by the transit district.

In May the transit district board voted to support the toll increase only when more buses or ferries are added to the bridge district's trans-bay commuter service.

The transit board also will consider proposals to finance passenger shelters at several main bus stops and to create a citizens' advisory committee to advise on local bus route selection.

Bargaining Issue Clears The Assembly

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation giving California's 1.1 million government workers the right to bargain collectively for their wages—and strike if necessary — narrowly cleared the Assembly yesterday.

Sponsored by Assembly speaker Bob Moretti, the measure (AB1243) was sent to the Senate on a mostly partyline 41-31 vote, the minimum required.

Opponents forecast more strikes, higher taxes and a loss of citizen influence in government-worker negotiations.

Moretti, who successfully beat down attempts to amend out the right to strike, said his measure "for once" was an effort to deal with a problem "before it becomes a crisis."

The Van Nuys Democrat, a gubernatorial contender, said there were 30 strikes by public employes in California last year. He said the bill would blunt them in the future by establishing procedures for collective bargaining.

But Assemblyman Newton R. Russell, R-Tujunga, displayed charts which he said showed a steady increase of public employe strikes in states which already have collective bargaining laws.

The Reagan administration has fiercely opposed the bill, and Gov. Ronald Reagan has repeatedly stated he would not tolerate strikes by public workers.

Under the Moretti measure, a three-member Public Employment Relations Board would be appointed to administer collective bargaining. It permits "agency shop" employe unions, requiring all workers to join or pay an equivalent service fee.

It establishes procedures for bargaining and provides that strikes can be broken by court order if a citizen can show that "health and safety is endangered."

Moretti said that clause would effectively prohibit strikes by police and firemen.

It allows, but does not require, binding arbitration, and gives public employes and employers to negotiate settlements in spite of any existing state or local law.

Assemblyman Robert C. Cline, R-Canoga Park, protested there were no requirements for open negotiating sessions. "That shuts the public out," he declared.

He unsuccessfully attempted to amend the measure to force public sessions.

Assemblyman Mike Antonovich, R-Los Angeles, a former educator, declared that schools would no longer be free but under the "control" of union which does not have to answer to the public.

He offered unsuccessful amendments to wipe out the right to strike and to eliminate agency shop requirements.

Festival Of Apples Lacking in Fruit

VERANAPOLIS, Brazil (UPI) — This little town in southern Brazil holds an annual "Festival of Apples" to celebrate the development, three decades ago, of a new strain of apples by Jose Bim, an agricultural innovator.

When preparations were well advanced for this year's festival, it was found that there weren't enough "Jose Bim apples" to distribute to visitors and residents attending the celebration. The problem was solved by importing Argentine apples on a large scale.

There's nothing half-hearted about the reactions of hearing aid users who've tried the Beltone Etude. Ask them about it, and you'll hear something like . . .

"Better tone — more vowel sounds."
"Fine clear reception — power to spare."
"Telephone pick-up excellent — strong."
"Very clear sound."
"Better understanding" . . .

"Satisfactory in every way" . . . "Telephone switch really worked well" . . . the comments are enthusiastic . . . and they all add up to a good sound for just about everyone with a mild, serious or severe loss.

Without question, the Beltone Etude has a lot to offer in the way of clarity . . . and in just plain better hearing!

Marin Women

THE LAST WORD

Time Rolling Around Again For Publicity Of Organization

By DOROTHY NEWELL

New faces will be appearing at Independent-Journal offices in Marin and Southern Sonoma County as new publicity chairmen bring in copy for their organizations asking questions about getting news printed.

Women who have had the summer off from volunteer work will become involved in Parent-Teacher Associations as their children return to school, and others will again become involved in social and philanthropic projects.

It's always a pleasure to see familiar faces in the fall of publicity chairmen that have been involved with various organizations over the years. These publicity chairmen know that the I-J has a deadline and they must submit their material a week ahead of the event for the "On the Agenda" column, and that special club events merit a story in the column.

YOUNG GIRLS in the Novato area have shown their ingenuity during the summer. On a warm day recently, two petite brown-eyed girls arrived at the door with buckets, cloths and soap, wanting to know if they could wash the two cars parked in the driveway.

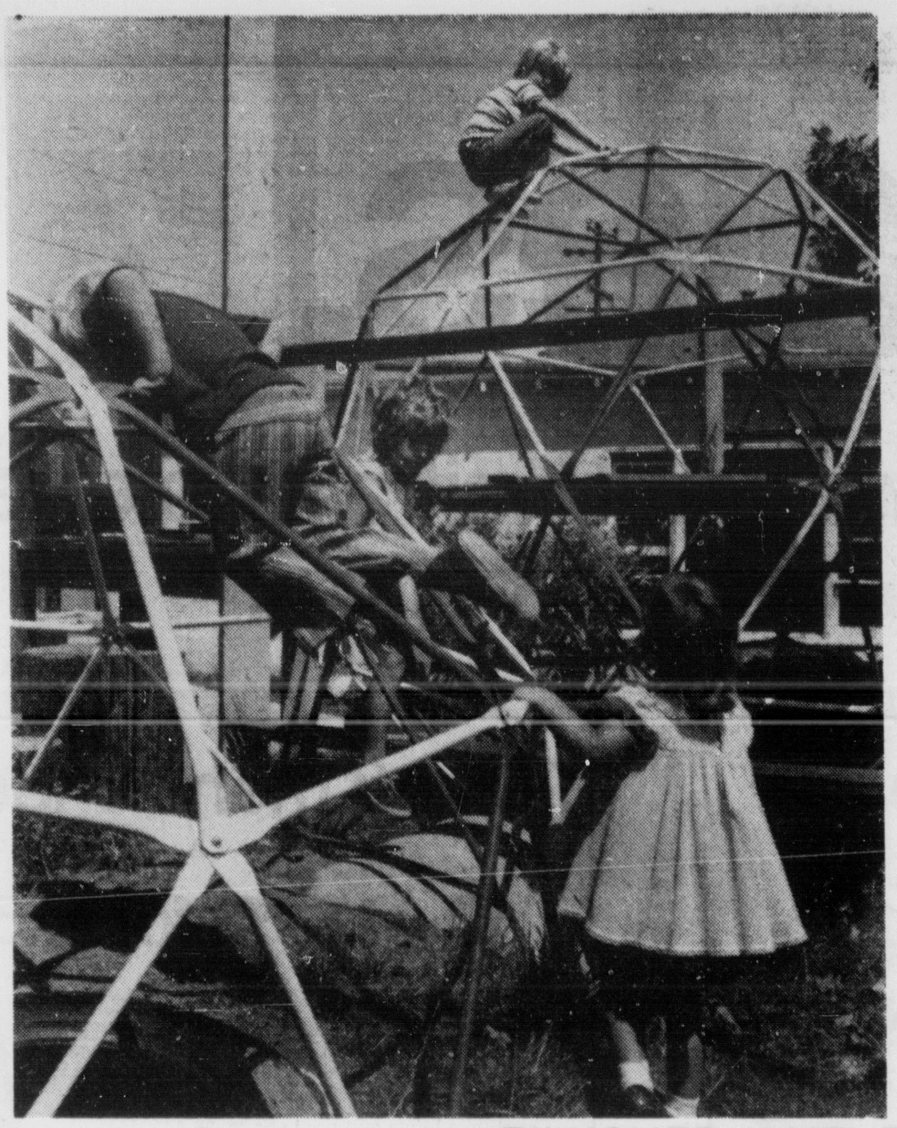

It seemed a challenge for them, as they were such tiny 10-year olds. How could they wash the hood and top of the car? Their small size proved to be an asset, however, as they were able to climb right up on the car. They did a fine job, too.

OBSERVING BIRDS has become a meal-time pleasure as they come to the feeder. One finds that there is a reason for the small creatures surviving over the years. The bird families stick together and chase others away. And the tiny hummingbirds are even more aggressive at the feeder, buzzing another bird even when they don't want to eat.

An apology is in order to Mrs. Robert Kidder of Novato. We printed her recipe for zucchini bread-and-butter pickles, which incidently are delicious. But somewhere between Novato and the press several ingredients got lost. A correction was printed in the following Friday paper. But it can't be said our I-J recipes are not read and tried. Mrs. Kidder had continued calls at her home following publication of the Wednesday Food Page asking for the complete recipe, all from savvy cooks who noticed the omission.

THE CLOTHING industry in the past few years seemed to make a woman appear to be less attractive, and the men, with their vivid colors in clothes, even more style-conscious than women.

Now, with the return of more feminine clothes for women, the shoe industry has come out with the big "clunky" shoes that are certainly not becoming and said to be bad for the wearer. Perhaps a "consumer revolt" is needed again?

FINISHED AND READY FOR PLAY

The play yard at Town Cities Co-operative Nursery School in Corte Madera is finished and ready for tots at opening of the term Sept. 20. The yard, designed by playground designer Nelson Van Judah of Portola Valley, was built by parents of the school children over a two-year span. It includes a geodesic play dome (left), a barrel tunnel maze, underground tunnels and small hills. Previewing the barrel tunnels at right are (from left) Kathleen Hiatt, Gina Vucci and Todd Wells. An orientation for school parents will be held Sept. 11 and 12 and for the tots Sept. 13 and 14.

International Skippers Making Visit

By MOLLY MARIN

Members of San Francisco Yacht Club in Belvedere today are welcoming skippers and crews from Bermuda, Long Island, N.Y., and Marblehead, Mass., who are here for the International One-Design World's Championship Regatta through Sept. 8.

Thirty of the 45 out-of-towners are being housed for 10 nights in Marin homes. Long Islanders will be hosted by Messrs. and Mmes. Jack Morris of Tiburon, Patrick Kirrane of Belvedere, Robert Cushman of Belvedere and Mr. Joe Cronin of Mill Valley.

Marblehead sailors are housed with Messrs. and Mmes. William King of Tiburon, Henry Mettier of Belvedere, Robert Fisher of Belvedere and Mrs. Rosemary Seal of Sausalito.

Contenders from Bermuda will be staying with Messrs. and Mmes. Thomas Uhry of Belvedere, William Hynes of Tiburon and Richard Otter of Belvedere.

A SERIES of parties have been planned for them by regatta social chairman Mrs. Henry Mettier of Belvedere. Last night, she suggested a no-host dinner at Veneto Restaurant in San Francisco to about 30 early arrivals, followed by a walking tour of Fisherman's Wharf, Ghirardelli Square and the Cannery conducted by the Mettiers and her husband and their college-age children Connie and Henry Jr.

More than 100 out-of-towners and their Marin hosts will gather for a champagne party at 4 p.m. today Sept. 1 followed by a dinner at SFYC. Contenders in SFYC's Challenge Cup Race with San Diego Yacht Club, sailed today, have also been invited.

A semi-formal buffet will be held at the St. Francis Yacht Club in San Francisco tomorrow for IOD regatta week participants.

On Tuesday sailors will just have time to clean their racing ICs before a cocktail party aboard larger yachts rafted together. Still in sailing clothes they will attend a ham and lasagna buffet dinner on SFYC's deck, hosted by San Francisco Bay International One-Design Fleet.

Immediately after the Thursday race the contenders will have a barbecue on SFYC's deck, also open to club members.

The IOD championship trophy will be presented at a dinner dance at Trader Vic's in San Francisco on Sept. 8.

Marin skippers in the regatta are Hank Mettier, Jake Wosser and Jim Davies, all of Belvedere, and Eric Schou of Sausalito.

MRS. SAM Marzell of Novato arrived home last week after a month's stay with her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Richard Quinn in Cary, N.C. The Quinns have a new baby girl, Susan Angela, born on July 16. Mrs. Marzell also enjoyed visiting with her 7 year old grandson, Timothy Quinn.

MR. AND Mrs. George Berticevich of Tiburon sailed a friend's boat among the Charlotte Islands off British Columbia for three weeks in August. Their son, George Jr., joined them for a week aboard Ed Wade's sailboat which has been shipped north from Corinthian Yacht Club in Tiburon.

George Berticevich, who is commodore of CYC, and his family visited a different island each day.

Mimi Berticevich is now visiting relatives and friends in Tahiti.

HOME IN Mill Valley after seven weeks in Switzerland are Mrs. Othmar Peters and her children, Ursula, 18, Simone, 16 and John, 4. The family visited Mrs. Peters' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Ruf in Mustair in the eastern part of Switzerland. All enjoyed hiking in the nearby Swiss National Park, and observed skiers who are able to ski all through the summer on some of the highest peaks.

The Mill Valley family participated in a delayed celebration of the Rufs' 50th anniversary, which was observed last winter. This is Mrs. Peters fourth trip to Switzerland since she left her native country in 1950. Peters was unable to accompany the family. Ursula is preparing to enter Stanford University as a freshman this fall.

MRS. BEN Schwarz and her 12-year-old son Misha of Tiburon journeyed to her native Holland to visit her mother and mother-in-law in Schiedam near Rotterdam in August.

AN EXPERT'S VIEWS

Positive Side To Sexual Revolution

By BARBARA HOSMER

"People have seen the sexual revolution negatively, but I can see very positive sides," says Helen Colton, a certified family relations teacher, sex educator and author.

"Women are freed to enjoy sexuality. It has enriched marriages — the partners don't have to go outside their marriages — and the sexual revolution has freed young people to grow up much healthier knowing about their bodies," she explained in an interview here.

In Marin Wednesday from Los Angeles to visit her stepson Jordan Good and his wife and children in San Anselmo, Miss Colton also addressed the International Trans-Actional Analysis Association meeting in San Francisco Thursday.

She believes that some of the "excesses" of the sexual revolution are passing, such as the widespread interest in pornography.

"There is a backlash to pornography-obscenity, especially since the Supreme Court decision, but with any social change there is a surge forward and a step backward," she said.

However, the new sex research will become a permanent part of our knowledge, she added.

IN THE future, she believes, we will have both legal and socially-sanctioned kinds of marriage and alternatives. "The difference is that we will have laws that permit alternatives. We will accept the variety," she said of the various relationships outside of legal marriage.

In her years of teaching and lecturing to groups, Miss Colton has found that most people are looking for a monogamous relationship with the right to have an occasional concurrent relationship "that's a fling and no danger to the monogamous relationship."

"Divorced people are free to do anything, but most are seeking a monogamous relationship," she finds. "The right to divorce is leading to happier marriages," she said, because the bad, unhappy marriages of the past are over. She added that most divorced people remarry within five years or not at all, and that divorced men are remarrying at a greater rate than women.

"That's because men need marriage more than women do. A man doesn't know how to do the menu planning, shopping, laundry and the chores, and he suffers more," said Helen Colton.

Currently, too, more older people are living together unmarried — "more people of my generation," said the 55-year-old wife and grandmother. "It's an economic matter. Some would lose their husband's pension or have property problems if they married, and housing costs are high for those alone," she said.

"I FIND more and more Dutch-treat arrangements in which women and men have the same income and split everything down the middle," she remarked. She and her husband, 64-year-old Irvin E. Good, have such an arrangement.

"I support myself, share the household expenses and pay my own bills. He may buy theater tickets and I pick up the dinner check, for example. It was difficult at first, especially for him," she admitted. The Goods have been married for four years.

"We were born to the old mores — women were taken care of by the man. It took us the first couple of ears to get it going freely. But these things are coming," she said.

She finds that more married women are seeking their own individuality. "I don't wear a wedding band. Many women are not. And more women are keeping their own name — I do. Many of our former customs, if you look into them, were dictated by caterers and jewelers — such as wedding rings."

Helen Colton believes that people can change and overcome the sexual mores they acquired in childhood.

The classes given by professionals at the Family Forum in Los Angeles that she started eight years ago and the lectures she gives at colleges and to medical students at University of California at San Diego are designed to do that and to provide good, sound sex information.

Miss Colton said she hopes that sufficient good information about sex and their bodies will someday be routinely given to children by their parents and in school so that "sex can be a private thing again."

"As we get more crowded, we need some oases of privacy. I hope that sex will be one of those oases."

SEX EDUCATION begins at birth, she said. "Attitudes about sex are well formed before kids get to school. What parents say, their behavior and the messages kids pick up are all sex education. If the father comes home and the wife won't let him kiss her lips because it will smear her lipstick, if the bedroom door is closed, it's all sex education."

Helen Colton has written four books about sex education, the most recent, "Sex After the Sexual Revolution" (Association Press), was published in January. She also wrote, "Our Sexual Evolution" (Franklin Watts), and some booklets, "Adults Need Sex Education Too," and "How to Talk Sex With Our Children," available from Family Forum, Los Angeles.

The increase in rape, Miss Colton believes, is because of the subliminal acceptance of violence in our culture. "The wars and violence that people have been raised with the past decades have had extension and caused men to act out violence in rape. There are plenty of ways to obtain sex in society today, so those who rape are acting out the violence." She also said that more women are visible going to work and alone in cities.

The sex criminal, she said, is usually someone researchers have found to have had no sex education and been raised in a repressed home.

Workshop Is Set Wednesday For Welfare Volunteers

A workshop for volunteers will be held Wednesday in the Department of Public Social Services for individuals or groups who wish to volunteer to supplement or help social workers.

The workshop, scheduled from 12:45 to 2 p.m. in Room 255, Hall of Justice, Marin Civic Center, will acquaint potential volunteers with the county welfare system and services.

Social workers Mary Cutler and Dave Sexton will explain what social workers do, the Marin persons who receive and need aid, and where volunteers can be used in the program.

Elizabeth Moody, coordinator of volunteer services in the department, said that volunteers are needed for tutoring children and adults in basic skills, to drive older persons and others, for shopping assistance and companionship to isolated persons.

She added that groups such as the Novato Human Needs Center and churches collect food, clothing and furniture and provide help in emergency situations.

Mrs. Moody will lead the meeting, and a tour of the department will follow at 2 p.m.

Sexy Said Not As Sexy Wears

A woman in sexy innerwear isn't necessarily a sex object, according to Rick Katz of the New York advertising firm Katz, Jacobs and Douglas.

To Katz, panties are a "you've come a long way baby" sort of product. "Women have come into their own and out of daywear that is duilsville white or foundations that feel like padded armor. Their life style is freer, and because more are working, their buying power is greater," he said.

Expectant Parent Classes Slated

Nine classes will be held for expectant parents by the Education for Childbirth Association, beginning Tuesday. Weekly classes will be given from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the offices of Gunhild Brown, physical therapist, 1300 South Eliseo, Greenbrae.

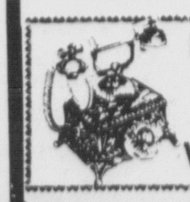

Instruction is directed at the couple as a team and will include facts of pregnancy, labor, post-natal recovery and breastfeeding.

Val Haworth will instruct. Expectant mothers must have permission from their physicians to participate.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Young Wife Reflects On Things Such As Keeping Within Budget

RAP:

So many girls never get over the shock that marriage is just what Mom said it would be: The roses and honey don't last, and even if they do, underneath is the thought: "Mom told me. . ." For instance:

The shock of having to shop for your own food. . .at a grocery store. . .and meet a budget.

The double shock of trying to balance the checkbook afterwards.

The frustration of buying something for your husband that he would have just loved when you were going together. . .and having him scream at the cost.

Cleaning house every day, not just when you feel like it; and with him sleeping on the couch, no less.

Washing shaving cream out of the bathroom sink, and egg yolk off a day-old dish (which you didn't get around to before you went to work that morning).

And all those little things you do for him, the things he married you because of. . .taken for granted.

It is rather disillusioning to realize that no matter how "great and exciting" your marriage was going to be, no matter how different, in the long run it's quite a bit like everyone else's: romantic in spots, rocky in others, but all in all. . .just. . .nice. — KATHY

DEAR KATHY:

So now you know.

But if your mother is the right sort, she wont' say, "I told you so" (out loud). — HELEN

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

I was just given a surprise 'sweet 16' party by my friends, and I am still on 'cloud 9'.

Many people who ask themselves the question, "Why did it happen to me?" mean it negatively. I have asked myself this countless times — with a feeling of wonder and gratitude.

It never ceases to make my insides tingle when I realize how lucky I am. My friends and family are so good to me — I don't know why I deserve such thoughtfulness. They accept and return the love I feel for them, many times over.

Many of the letters you print, Rap, are from those with complaints, problems and self-pity. I experience these things too. But when I think of all the good in the world, and all the lives a person can touch and be touched by, somehow the bad is trivial.

I want to squeeze every drop of joy out of life, and I'd like to be able to wrap this feeling of love in paper and give it to all those I encounter.

I think everyone should take the time to set aside a minute or two being — THANKFUL

DEAR THANKFUL:

So do we. — SUE

How come my boyfriend drives like a demon, but when I get behind the wheel, he acts like my father? — CAUTIONED

Different Ways Of Cleaning Gems

Translucent gems — diamonds, emeralds, sapphires and rubies — are generally very hard and to wash they can be soaked in a soap or detergent solution to help loosen dirt particles from the settings. Brush gently with a small brush and rinse in warm water.

Non-translucent stones such as pearls, opals and turquoise, are delicate and easily damaged. Whisk these through mild soap suds, rinse and pat dry with a soft towel.

SEW SIMPLE

Tips On The New Sweater Knits

By EUNICE FARMER
Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate

So many of you have written about sewing with the new sweater knits that I am presenting this information in a series. Be sure to save each of the columns in this series for future reference.

Sweater knits are unlike sewing with any other knits. They are fun, have much less body, and are very much in fashion today. Forget the fact that you haven't worked with them and begin with these new techniques.

Always remember that the finished look will never be the same as a fine wool, they will look like sweaters, softer, and with less body than woven fabrics.

Sweater knits are usually single knits. They have a right and wrong side and a definite up and down so they must be cut in one direction. Sweater knits usually have stretch in both directions; because of this, they require very little ease.

FIRST, TEST the stretch factor of your knit. A four-inch section of your knit must stretch to five and one-quarter inches. If there is less stretch than that, use a pattern that is marked "Suitable for knits," instead of one marked for "Stretchable unbonded knits." Most acrylics will stretch out in the seat and usually not recover. It is best to choose an acrylic that is blended with other fibers.

Supplies: You will need a pattern that is marked for "stretchable unbonded knits" to go with your sweater knit that has the necessary stretchability. Use a size 11 ballpoint needle for best results. Also use large head pins that are also ballpoint. Hair setting tape is advisable to keep the knit from stretching when you are applying zippers and making darts. Use synthetic thread — I prefer one that is 100 per cent polyester.

Check your fabric and determine and record the fiber content as well as the manufacturers care instructions. Determine the stretchability and also the reaction of your knit to steam pressing. (This should be done on a scrap of knit.) Some acrylics cannot be steam pressed.

Actually, very little pressing is ever necessary because you must always remember you are making a garment with a sweater look. The tension of your machine must be balanced. Also check the presser foot pressure, it may need to be decreased.

Next week we will go into the layout and cutting, plus sewing techniques.

DEAR EUNICE,

I wish to make one of those "fanny sweater," in the new longer length. My problem is that I can't find the finished binding that is used on ready-made sweaters to match the sweater knits I like. What is your suggestions?

MRS. M.K.

DEAR MRS. M.K.,

This is always the problem when we make our own clothes. You can usually only find trims in basic colors and often they simply won't match the fabric we select.

I have looked through the pattern books and found two patterns for the "fanny sweaters," one with set in sleeves and one with raglan sleeves. The great part about these patterns is that both of them show you how to achieve the ribbed look at the edges by reversing the direction of your sweater knit and using the same fabric. I have sketched both of them for your convenience. There are probably others since I'm sure all the pattern companies are aware of this problem.

DEAR EUNICE,

Is there any way to rectify bound buttonholes in a cloth coat that are uneven? One is considerably larger than the other two. I tried your instructions on bound buttonholes and my samples turned out quite good, then I must have tried too hard because I goofed. Please help.

MRS. G.K.

DEAR MRS. G.K.,

Yes, there are ways to cover up your mistakes. However, in the future, after all the buttonhole strips have been sewed on the front of your garment, as per my instructions, be sure to check the size and length of each one before you cut a single one open. If you do this, you can be sure they will all be accurate.

There are several trims you can use to disguise the buttonholes, depending on the fabric and style of the coat. For a sport coat you could cover them with decorative frogs out of braid.

You could add a strip of fake or real fur down the front on a strip of contrasting leather and repeat the leather on the collar and pockets, etc. Braid trims such as the kind used by Chanel in yarns would also look well.

Since I haven't any idea of your fabric or the style of your coat, you will have to take the suggestion that fits your coat the best. I have often seen mistakes turn out much more attractive when you have covered them with the ight trim, so take heart, all is not lost.

FOR YOUR free copy of Eunice Farmer's instructional leaflet "Bound Buttonholes" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Eunice Farmer Narmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

Sort Laundry For The Proper Sort Of Loads

Laundry should be sorted into loads that will wash well together with the same water temperature, agitation and spin speeds. Sort by color, separating whites and colorfast items, other colors and those that are not colorfast. White permanent press and man-made fabrics are most prone to picking up color. Dark or very bright colors should be washed only with other similar items, according to the Soap and Detergent Association.

Sort by type of fabric and construction. Fabrics that are delicate in construction should be separated from regular washloads. Also, lint givers, such as chenille robes and bath towels, should be washed apart from lint attractors, such as corduroy, permanent press and man-made items.

Sort by amount of soil — heavy, normal and light. And, finally, consider the size of items. Heavy, bulky things like blankets, bedspreads and slipcovers should be washed alone.

Program Series Will Eye Women

A series of programs, "Potential of Women" will be shown Monday through Friday of next week at 6:30 a.m. on Channel 7, KGO-TV.

Hosted by Lyn Matoon, lecturer in the University of Michigan philsophy department and her guests, the series will include myths, women's role in history, social changes and new freedoms for women.

RECALL

termining how objective they would be in presenting the history of Corte Madera and the recall."

Pearlman said his organization is made up of professionals whose only concern is giving the voters the facts so that they can make an independent decision.

"Either they have something to hide or they are so paranoid they shouldn't be in positions of political leadership," he said.

Brenda Brown, the Corte Madera Citizens for Recall, expressed disappointment at the councilmen's decision. "I thought the show was to be presented fairly," she said.

A decision by Hanson not to allow the program would negate many hours of work by the association. They have taped man-on-the-street interviews at a Corte Madera supermarket, photographed the proposed shopping center site which is one of the major issues in the recall, interviewed recall advocates and talked to county officials about election procedures.

The group filmed part of a recent Corte Madera council meeting and that filming brought objections from Norville.

"We would also take exception to transmitting any portion of Corte Madera Town Council meetings in which we may appear, or in which our voices may be recorded, unless specific permission is granted by the individual involved," Norville said in a the letter.

Norville said he doesn't know how the association intends to use footage of council meetings. He believes it would be very easy to put together a program showing the council members in an unfavorable light.

Army Approves Land Use For Doyle Drive

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Department of the Army has given approval to use seven acres of the Presidio for widening the Doyle Drive approach to the Golden Gate Bridge.

In a 59-page environmental impact statement, the state Department of Transportation said Friday proposed widening of the Drive from six to eight lanes would cause only minimal damage environmentally.

Some buildings and a pet cemetery within the Presidio must be relocated to make way for the $14 million construction project.

The state figures 1,300 trees and shrubs would have to be removed for the widening of the dangerous stretch of roadway. Plans call for widening the traffic lanes from 10 to 12 feet and placement of a concrete median barrier in the middle of the eight lanes.

The state said the widening would not generate more bridge auto traffic beyond increases already projected.

them, Tripoli Radio said.

Last month Libya nationalized 51 per cent of the American-owned Occidental Petroleum Corp., which is based in Los Angeles, and also concluded an agreement with the Oasis Oil group of several foreign companies by which the government acquired a 51 per cent controlling interest.

Earlier, the government had fully nationalized the interests here of the Bunker-Hunt Petroleum Co. of Texas.

After last month's acquisitions, The government had warned other companies operating independently in Libya that they faced nationalization unless they concluded agreements by Aug. 31 turning 51 per cent of their shares over to the government.

all became a nightmare."

"The windows in my hotel room shattered," he said. "I heard people scream among the flames in their rooms. I was the first to leave the hotel and started to give first aid to those who came rushing out, some of them with their clothes burning."

Byron Rosenstein, 16, of Chicago, dragged an elderly Argentine man from the hotel.

Louis Marks of Miami Beach, a retired post office employe, sobbed, "Where are they, where are they"? as he looked up at the hotel facade, wondering about the fate of four friends.

"I woke up because of the screaming," said Allan Brown of Florida. "Maybe it was my wife screaming. I don't know. But we could not get out in the corridor because of smoke and fire so we opened the window and screamed for help," he told the newspaper Politikens.

"My wife kneeled down in prayer to the Lord when suddenly a fireman appeared outside on a ladder and hauled us into safety."

Fire department head Ringsted Jensen said that had the building been of modern construction, the fire might not have spread so quickly.

legislative consultants said Democrats would be favored to retain at least a slim majority in 1974 elections.

A court spokesman said the Supreme Court would hold hearings on the plan, but he gave no indication of what changes, if any, the justices would consider making before imposing the plan for state elections in 1974.

for possible violation of tax, extortion, bribery and conspiracy laws, and declared he would remain in office and fight to prove his innocence.

There have been published reports recently, notably a Time magazine article, that U.S. Attorney George Beall might be ready to present evidence involving Agnew to a federal grand jury in Baltimore.

Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson, who was spending the Labor Day weekend at Cape Cod, Mass., has said he will make the ultimate decision whether the government seeks an indictment aginst Agnew.

Asked whether Nixon was supporting Agnew, Thomson said: "They're pulling together."

After his two-hour conference with Agnew, Nixon met alone with his senior domestic advisers, counselors Melvin R. Laird and Bryce N. Harlow and White House chief of staff Alexander M. Haig.

That discussion presumably dealt with the political repercussions of the Agnew investigation, as well as the administration's legislative plans when Congress returns next Tuesday.

Afterwards, Nixon headed for a weekend at Camp David, Md., with his family and two Saturday night dinner guests, Mamie Eisenhower and C. G. Bebe Rebozo of Key Biscayne, Fla., a close Nixon friend and confidant.

Great Power Chauvinism."

Wang said that China will stand by revolutionary people of the world "against imperialism." But he added that at present China should "oppose especially the hegemonism (domination or leadership) of the two superpowers—the United States and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics."

"The danger of a new world war still exists. We must, without fail, prepare well against any war of aggression and guard against surprise attack by imperialism and social imperialism."

The Chinese Communist party earlier had made clear that the Soviet Union is considered the main threat to China's security.

It only mentioned "Socialist imperialism"—a Chinese euphemism for the Soviet Union—as the country to be on guard for a new world war.

Wang Saturday added the United States, with whom diplomatic relations were restored only in May after 24 years in the wilderness.

He said China itself "must never be a superpower under any circumstances."

"All party comrades must firmly bear in mind Chairman Mao's teachings that we must never be conceited, not even after a hundred years, and never be cocky, not even after the 21st century."

Western Pilots Threaten To Strike

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Pilots for Western Airlines have threatened to go on strike next Thursday unless deadlocked contract talks progress.

The 1,308 pilots said yesterday that no progress has been made on "gut issues" since negotiations began nearly nine months ago.

Myra Mainwaring, 80, Former Librarian, Dies

Myra M. Mainwaring of San Rafael children's librarian with the San Rafael library for 25 years, died yesterday in a Ross hospital after a lengthy illness. She was 80.

Miss Mainwaring was born in Australia and lived with her family in London before coming to the United States in 1912. She lived in San Luis Obispo before moving to Sonoma County where her father was rector of St. John's Episcopal Church in Petaluma.

When her father retired she moved with the family to San Rafael and lived here 31 years. Her father often conducted services at St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

Miss Mainwaring was the only children's librarian when she joined the library and was responsible for expanding the children's department. She retired about eight years ago.

Miss Mainwaring was an honorary lifetime member of the San Rafael Parent-Teacher Association.

She is survived by a sister, Mrs. Lillian Hubbert of Fairfax, and two brothers, Dr. George Mainwaring of Walnut Creek and Charles Mainwaring of Santa Rosa.

Funeral will be Tuesday at 11 a.m. at the Chapel of the Hills in San Anselmo. Inurnment will be private.

FANNY MAY

Fanny May of Novato, longtime Marin County resident, died yesterday at a local hospital after a long illness. She was 75.

For the past seven years she had lived with a son, Paul May, at 1130 Rosalia Drive. Before that she was a resident of San Anselmo for 31 years.

Mrs. May was the wife of the late David May, who owned salvage companies in San Rafael.

Judge Backs Photographing Spectators

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A federal judge has upheld the Marin County Sheriff's Department practice of photographing spectators at the pre-trial hearings for the "San Quentin Six."

Federal Judge Samuel J. Conti Friday denied a request for an injunction against the picture-taking by law student Stephen Schreiberg, 27, Tiburon.

Schreiberg has filed a $100,000 suit against the sheriff's department, charging the photographing violates spectators' rights of privacy and serves no security purpose.

Schreiberg, a law clerk for San Rafael attorney Salle Soladay, said he will appeal Judge Conti's ruling to the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Tuesday.

The "San Quentin Six" trial is scheduled to begin Sept. 12. They are charged with murder in the Aug. 21, 1971, escape attempt in which three inmates, including George Jackson, and three guards were killed.

Neon's Discovery

NEW YORK (UPI) — Neon, its history and uses are chronicled in the Hallmark Gallery here. The name means new and was given to the rare inert gas by Sir William Ramsay when he discovered it in 1898 while investigating the components of frozen air.

In addition to her son, Mrs. May is survived by three other sons, William May of San Rafael, Max May of Vacaville and Henry May of Novato; a daughter, Mary Sabel of Daly City; a sister, Sarah of Oakland, and a brother, Louis Unberger of San Francisco.

Funeral will be at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow at Sinai Memorial Chapel in San Francisco. Burial will be at Home of Peace Cemetery in Oakland.

The family requests memorial contributions to a favorite charity.

MRS. WARD

Requiem Mass for Johanna Ward, former Mill Valley resident, will be offered Tuesday at 9 a.m. at St. Dunstan's Catholic Church, Millbrae.

Mrs. Ward, 85, died Thursday at a San Mateo hospital after a lengthy illness. She was a native of Hungary and came to the United States at the age of 14, settling in New York City.

Mrs. Ward moved to Mill Valley 16 years ago. Her husband, James Ward, died three years ago. Mrs. Ward had lived in Millbrae for the past year.

She was a member of Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church, Mill Valley.

Mrs. Ward is survived by two daughters, Nellie Dulebohn of Mill Valley and Carole Barbaste of Millbrae; four grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Chapel of the Highlands, Millbrae. Burial will be at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

HERMANN SEELIG

Hermann A. Seelig of Mill Valley, a retired ordinance inspector for the U.S. Army and a 47-year Marin resident, died yesterday at a San Francisco hospital following a long illness. He was 69.

Seelig, of 511 Northern Avenue, served in the Army during World War II and the Korean War, retiring as a first sergeant after 24 years. He then joined civil service and worked as an inspector at the Presidio of San Francisco for 23 years, retiring in 1969.

A native of Germany, he came to New York at 18 and joined the Army. He obtained U.S. citizenship while stationed in San Francisco and settled in Mill Valley.

Surviving are his wife, Laura A. Seelig of Mill Valley and a sister, Louise Meyer of Barton, N.Y.

Funeral will be at 1 p.m. Tuesday at Russell and Gooch Mortuary in Mill Valley. Burial will be at Olivet Memorial Park, Colma.

The family requests memorial contributions to the American Cancer Society.

RAYMOND BROY

Private funeral for Raymond A. Broy, a 40-year member of the San Francisco Mining Exchange, was held yesterday.

Broy, 91, died Wednesday in a Greenbrae hospital after a long illness.

Broy was born in Eureka, Nev. and lived there as a boy before moving to Carson City and Reno. He came to San Francisco in 1908 to join the mining exchange and lived there until 1964.

He moved from San Mateo to Marin in 1971 to live with his nieces, Mrs. Phillip F. Brown Jr. of Kentfield and Mrs. William A. Niccolls of Ross, his only survivors.

Broy was a 50-year member of Free and Accepted Masons in Eureka.

Burial was in the Woodlawn Memorial Park in San Francisco.

ALICE LYONS

Alice Lyons of Kentfield died Thursday in Ross hospital.

Mrs. Lyons is survived by a son, Irving F. Lyons of Kentfield.

Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma.

THOMAS KLINKER

Funeral for Thomas Roy Klinker of San Rafael was held yesterday in Sebastopol.

Klinker, 78, died Monday at a Sebastopol hospital. He had lived in Sebastopol for 40 years and moved to San Rafael after he retired as manager of the Henry Hess Lumber Co. He lived at 241 Alpine Street.

Klinker was a charter member of the Sebastopol Rotary Club and was president in 1932-33 and a 50-year member and past master of Lafayette Masonic Lodge No. 126. He was also a member of the Santa Rosa Elks lodge, Santa Rosa Knights Templar, Sebastopol Chamber of Commerce and Royal Arch Masons of Sebastopol.

He is survived by two sons, Thomas Klinker, a member of the Sebastopol City Council, and Capt. Roy C. Klinker of Piedmont; a daughter, Mary Jane Mindenhall of Cloverdale; a brother, Halvor Klinker of San Rafael; six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

MacKay Seeks Davis Cup Final Round

By LEW CODDINGTON

Barry MacKay hasn't been a top-flight international tennis player for a decade now, but he may be a very important man in the U.S. Davis Cup picture in 1974.

The Ross resident, now turned promoter, is hoping to lure the Davis Cup championship round to the Round Hill Country Club in Alamo, and his chances were significantly enhanced by his successful handling of the Inter-Zone Finals at the same site Aug. 18-20.

"Yup, we'd very much like a final round," MacKay said yesterday. By "we" he meant Barry MacKay Sports, a San Rafael-based firm through which MacKay oversees his growing network of tennis activities.

"The Davis Cup went very well," he continued. "There were a lot of last-minute things that took a lot of doing. I'm real pleased.

"The people (fans) showed they like big-time tennis, too."

MacKay said he received favorable comments on his handling of the tournament from members of the international Davis Cup Committee; from Bob Malaga, chairman of the site selection committee; and from a group of promoters from Little Rock, Ar., who handled Davis Cup rounds in the past.

He added he would go to Cleveland in November to watch the U.S. meet the Australia-Czechoslovakia winner in the cup's final round, and would "talk to people there" informally about locating next year's final round at Round Hill.

Serious negotiations would not begin until the end of the year, MacKay said, because he is working on providing "other facilities" and wishes to assure USLTA officials they are on the way to completion. To name the facilities now would be "premature," McKay said.

MacKay said his organization "is large enough now, and expanding rapidly. We have seven or eight full-time people now, and we'll take others on board as we need them."

In addition to promotions, the organization handles club management and sale of sporting goods and runs a line of pro shops.

MacKay did not grant himself a vacation after the Inter-Zone matches, but went directly to work on the Fireman's Fund International, a nine-day pro tournament at Round Hill which will begin Sept. 22.

The $50,000 tournament will feature such stars as Stan Smith, Arthur Ashe, John Newcombe and other touring pros.

"I guess I'll have to postpone a vacation until mid-October," MacKay said.

The fact that the fans at Round Hill supported the Inter-Zone matches is considerably less amazing than the fact that the stadium supported the fans.

"The seating capacity is 6,100, and we had zero seats when we started. That was our big problem. They finally were completed on Friday at 6 p.m., and the matches started Saturday at 1 (p.m.). We were marking seat numbers just as the sun was going down Friday — I even did a few myself."

The last-minute flurry of activity was not caused by procrastination on MacKay's part. The U.S. Lawn Tennis Association, moving with what its critics would call characteristic torpor, did not have a site five weeks before the Inter-Zone match was to begin.

The situation required a promotor with an organizational structure already at his disposal, and MacKay was ready when opportunity knocked — or, to be more accurate, rang.

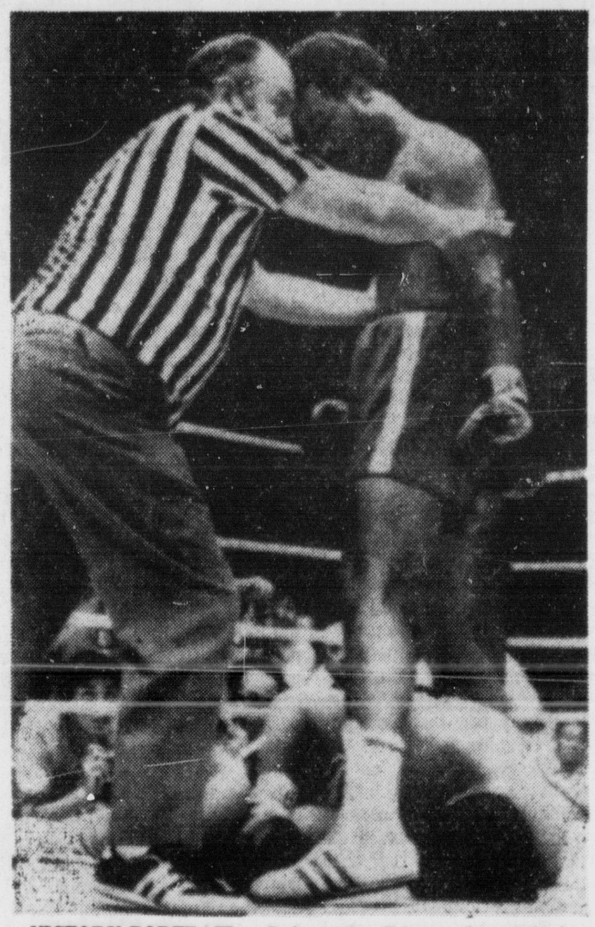

MacKay got a phone call from Dennis Ralston, non-playing U.S. team captain and an old friend from the glory days of the late '50s and early '60s. (MacKay was a Davis Cup player in 1956-60, including the championship year of 1958).

"He asked me if I wanted to do it, and I said I'd love to," MacKay related.

MacKay's love was tested a bit later when Ilie Nastase of Romania, famed for his cantankerous on-court antics, arrived in the Bay Area, closely followed by bad reviews from his recent stand in Cincinnati. Having demonstrated some of his earthier English vocabulary to an official, he faced suspension.

"But Nastase played, minimized his extracurricular drama, won Romania's lone match in a 4-1 loss to the U.S., and later lost to Stan Smith in a meeting of the alleged two best players in the world.

So administering the tournament at Round Hill was a smashing success for MacKay — but just as in his top playing days, the Ross star is not about to stop and be satisfied with a successful performance in the semi-finals.

Bando Says Royals Have 'Hands Full'

KANSAS CITY (AP) — "They've got their hands full now," Oakland's Sal Bando said after he hit two home runs as the Athletics downed the Kansas City Royals 10-7 in American League baseball last night.

The victory put the Athletics 5½ games ahead of the Royals in the Western Division.

"We're in the countdown now," said Oakland manager Dick Williams. "The worst we can come out of this series is losing a game to Kansas City. And that's not bad at this time of the season."

Bando had three hits, scored three runs and drove in three more two in the ninth on an inside-the-park homer. The last time he had an inside the park home run.

"Probably in high school," he said with a laugh.

The Athletics twice overcame four-run leads by the Royals. Kansas City scored four runs in the first on singles by Cookie Rojas, John Mayberry, Hall McRae, Lou Piniella, a walk and an error.

Oakland tallied three in the second on a double by Jesus Alou and singles by Ray Fosse and Dick Green.

The Royals added three runs in the third but Oakland pecked away with one run in the sixth and two in the seventh. The A's tied it in the eighth when Bando opened with a single, went to third on a single by Reggie Jackson and scored on a force out.

That set the stage for the ninth. Ray Fosse opened with a single, went to third on Bill North's single and scored on a sacrifice fly by Bert Campaneris.

North then stole second and went to third on a throwing error by catcher Carl Taylor.

North and Kurt Bevacqua, Kansas City third baseman, got into a shoving match after North bluffed a dah home and returned to the bag.

Both teams emptied on to the field and Bando, who was at the plate, was one of the first to get in the fracas. Finally, the umpires restored order and ejected North and Bevacqua.

Bando then hit his inside the park homer.

EDDIE FEIGNER

A Fast Man With Softball

By LARRY ELDRIDGE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

QUINCY, Mass. — After nearly three decades of touring the world as head of the four-man softball team, the King and his Court, famed pitcher Eddie Feigner is still breaking the speed limit for fast ball pitchers.

(Feigner and his four-man softball team play the Suburban Auto Pistons of San Rafael, San Francisco softball league champions, in a softball game Sunday, Sept. 23 at 2 p.m. in the San Francisco Cow Palace.)

"Actually I'm a better pitcher now than I ever have been," says the 48-year-old marvel. "I may not be quite as fast, but I'm still the fastest pitcher around. Meanwhile I have the experience that so often makes a seasoned performer a better athlete than an energetic youth."

On the field, he quickly demonstrates that all the old tricks are indeed still there, dazzling the opposition regularly with his amazing assortment of windups and pitches. The night I saw him he struck out two batters while pitching blindfolded and another while hurling from second base.

The four-man team won as expected (overall it plays about 200 games a year and wins roughly 90 percent of them). "We lose now and then because we always try to put on a good show," Feigner said. "I'll tell you one thing, though: if we had a contract which said, 'if you lose, you don't get paid,' we'd never lose!"

Feigner's confidence is well founded. From 1946 to this year, despite putting all that vaudeville into their act, the King and his Court have won 4,300 games, tied 150, and lost 680.

Softball king Eddie Feigner

EDDIE'S INDIVIDUAL record is even more unbelievable. He has pitched all of these games (5,130) and has struck out more than 85,000 batters, including 16,000 while blindfolded. He has recorded 1,392 shutouts, including 716 no-hitters, 201 of which were perfect games.

"You may wonder why we use four men — instead of two or three," Feigner deadpans to the crowd before the start of his games. "It's because we have to have somebody left to bat when we get the bases loaded."

Feigner is the star of course, but the supporting cast — which keeps changing over the years — also has its moments. First baseman Al Jackson has a pre-game act in which he throws two or three balls in different directions simultaneously. Shortstop Gary West displays a sprinter's speed chasing the occasional balls hit to the outfield — and an arm which many major leaguers would envy. Catcher Jim Nichols and alternate Floyd Berger have their own tricks, and during a particular game anything can happen.

In the contest here the score was getting out of hand when a hot grounder came near Jackson while he was running the bases. He suddenly stopped, speared it barehanded, and flipped it to the surprised second baseman to start an inning-ending double play. It was the fielding gem of the evening.

THE TEAM EXPANDS to five men when Feigner is pitching blindfolded, with Berger filling in a first base while Jackson stands next to the mound to protect against balls hit that way.

"Floyd is also our designated hitter," Eddie said. "We thought of the DH long before the American League did."

This summer the DH had been used mostly for Feigner, who had knee surgery last winter. Eddie usually takes a couple of turns during a game though, and he's still a dangerous man at the plate. One of his tricks is using a tiny 22-inch bat — then often surprising everybody by slugging the ball for extra bases with it.

Mainly, though, Feigner's forte is pitching. And despite the long grind and the many years, his arm holds up remarkably well.

"It doesn't get any more tired than a carpenter's arm does

Novato Gal's Huge Marlin Sets Record

KAILUA-KONA, Hawaii — When Novato's Doris Jones Monday caught a 669-pound Pacific blue marlin to set a women's world angler mark, she accomplished the feat on the same boat as her record-holder predecessor Sally Rice.

Mrs. Jones, competing for the Day's Island Big Game Fishing Club of Novato in the 15th annual Hawaiian International Billfish Tournament which concluded yesterday, was on Sally's boat named Malia. The 55-year-old Marinite broke Sally's standard of 623 pounds using a 130-pound test set Jan. 29, 1972 in these same waters.

Sally, a Hawaii resident who was in Australia competing in another tournament, established her mark on the Malia on the Kailua-Kona waters — but not in the Billfish Tournament. Her boat, however, was placed in this year's tournament and was drawn by Mrs. Jones, who promptly smashed the mark on the tourney's opening day.

The catch temporarily catapulted the Novato team into first place. However, the four-member squad of William Sutherland (captain), Mrs. Jones, James San Jule and Bill Yee fell to third place on the second day and finished in eighth place with 1,120 points, 22 points behind the seventh-place San Rafael Billfish Club. The San Rafael delegation, consisting of Barry Bovee (captain), Nancy Bovee, William Hoey, and Lawrence Moore, was well behind the winners, Mauna Kea Fishing Club of Hawaii, 1,288.

Thus, two Marin clubs were participating in this record-shattering tourney that featured three new world marks.

Besides Mrs. Jones' accomplishment, others were topped by a Hawaiian, Welby Taylor, and a Tahitian, Eric Tixier. Tixier landed a 916-pounder with 80-pound tackle on Tuesday. The Haura Club of Tahiti representative broke Alexander Nicol's standard. Nicol of New Zealand held the old record of 823 pounds done Feb. 27, 1972 at Mare Island in New Zealand.

Mauna Kea Fishing Club member Taylor used a 50-pound line to catch a 663-pounder. New Zealand's William Sherman had the old record of 475 accomplished Feb. 25, 1966 in New Zealand.

Foreman Stops Roman In 1st

TOKYO (AP) — George Foreman's battering ram punches took only two minutes to reaffirm his hold on the world heavyweight boxing title today, but controversy flared over whether the real knockout punch came with challenger Joe "King" Roman sitting on the floor.

"That did it. I was groggy when I got up," Roman said about a right hand punch to the head he took after being floored after 1:10 of the first round of the scheduled 15-round fight.

He went down again 20 seconds later, took an eight-count, and then was knocked out by a vicious right uppercut to the jaw at the two-minute mark of he first round.

Describing the controversial action, referee Jay Edson of Phoenix, Ariz., said Foreman, who had backed Roman to the ropes and had thrown a flurry of punches, was following through on a punch when he hit Roman on the way down.

"It was not a foul," Edson said, adding "I am sure it was not intentional."

Calling the fight a "one hundred per cent mismatch," Edson said the blow was unfortunate since Foreman could easily have won without it.

Edson ruled that the knockdown was not official and waved Foreman to a neutral corner for about 10 seconds to let Roman get up. He said he did not call a longer rest period because the punch was losing its force as Roman went down, and Roman answered that he was all right when he got up.

Roman's camp took an opposite view and planned to file a formal protest to world and Japanese boxing officials.

"It was a double foul," said trainer Al Braverman. "He pushed Joe down and hit him on the floor."

Roman's manager, Bill Daly, told newsmen: "If we hadn't jumped up and yelled, he would still be hitting him on the floor."

The controversy overshadowed the brief action. Roman, the No. 9 contender in both the World Boxing Association rat-

Big Money In Foreman Fight

TOKYO (UPI) — For the time involved, George Foreman has to be the highest paid man in the world today.

In knocking out Joe King Roman in two minutes, he made about $8,333 per second. His purse was $1 million.

Those spectators who paid top prices of $188 for seats laid out approximately $1.50 per second to watch the "150 per cent" mismatch.

Aussies In Spotlight Of Tennis

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) —Today is the day the Aussies seek to make hay in the U.S. Open tennis championships.

With co-first seed and defending champion Ilie Nastase out of it, but co-seed No. 1 Stan Smith very much alive, the two old Aussies, Rod Laver and Ken Rosewall, the younger Aussie John Newcombe, and the finest of the Aussie women, Margaret Court, hold the spotlight.

The three men have won here before, Laver in 1962 and 1969, Rosewall in 1956 and 1970, and Newcombe as an amateur in 1967.

Margaret has won five times, and would dearly love to take it once again to offset the bad taste of defeat in her infamous Bobby Riggs match.

Candlestick Fans React Strangely

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Candlestick Park baseball fans are a strange breed.

Roric Harrison hit a homer and there was silence. Henry Aaron walked and they booed.

Harrison pitched and batted the Atlanta Braves to a 10-4 victory over the San Francisco Giants last night.

Aaron, who has hit 706 homers, eight short of Babe Ruth's career record, drew an intentional walk in the first inning, much to the dislike of a crowd of more than 11,000 fans.

"I don't care what the fans do," Manager Charlie Fox of the Giants growled. "I'm trying to win a ball game."

Fox ordered the intentional walk to Aaron with first base open in the first inning. The strategy didn't pay off because Dusty Baker hit a sacrifice fly to score a run.

Harrison's homer highlighted a seven-run Atlanta third inning rally that started against Giant ace Ron Bryant. Bryant, already a 20-game winner this season, gave up three runs in the first two innings and couldn't retire any of the three batters he faced in the third.

Before the inning was over, Jim Willoughby gave up four hits and four runs. Randy Moffitt finally retired the side.

Aaron left the game after singling in the eighth inning and that sent at least 3900 fans heading for the exits.

Bobby Bonds had two singles, stole two bases and scored two runs for the Giants. Dave Kingman also homered for San Francisco, his 16th and fifth in the last five games.

1 Design Regatta Today

Eleven skippers, with probably 11 different designs for winning, will be competing in the International One Design World Championship Regatta beginning today on San Francisco Bay.

The eight-day championship, hosted by the San Francisco Yacht Club of Belvedere, includes four skippers from Marin.

Henry Mettier of Belvedere, Jim Davis of San Rafael and Jake Wosser of Tiburon will be competing for the host club, and Eric Schou of Sausalito sails for the St. Francis Y.C. of San Francisco.

All will be trying to unseat Bill Widnall, 35, of Marblehead, Mass., the one-time "boy wonder" of yacht racing and currently the defending champion.

A tune-up race was scheduled for today, and competition will begin in earnest tomorrow with the first of six races to be held one per day through Saturday, except for Wednesday, a "lay day."

Each skipper will sail a different boat every day. The regatta will be scored under the Olympic system, with the best five of each individual's six races counting in the scoring.

Three skippers will be representing the Corinthian Yacht Club of Massachusetts — Widnall, Ted Cook and Thornton Clark Jr. There also will be three from the Larchmont (N.Y.) Yacht Club — New Yorkers Milton Thrasher of Rye, James Bishop of Saddle River and Joseph Weed of Larchmont.

Hardy Watlington of the Royal Bermuda Y.C. of Bermuda rounds out the field.

Wosser, a veteran sailer, is two-time IOD champion and is expected to provide Widnall's chief challenge. Wosser has won 26 "season championships" on the Bay in his long career in IOD, Star Boat and Cruising Club B classes.

Mettier is the 1973 season champion and Davis is the 1971 Coronado 25 world champion.

If you need a car you can't pass this up. If you weren't thinking of changing, you can't pass this up.

Vikes Edge Miami, End Dolphins Streak At 23

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Miami Dolphins' 23-game unbeaten string suddenly is a 17-game winning streak.

The Dolphins' unofficial streak came to an end last night as Fran Tarkenton sparked a fourth quarter comeback and Fred Cox kicked a 25-yard field goal with two seconds left to give the Minnesota Vikings a 20-17 victory.

The 23-game streak was unofficial in that it included preseason games. Still intact, however, is Miami's 17-game regular season unbeaten string and the Dolphins could set a pro record with two more regular season victories.

Miami seemed well on its way to No. 24 Friday night, building a 17-3 lead on a short burst by Larry Csonka, a 28-yard pass from Bob Griese to rookie Bo Rather and Garo Yepremian's field goal.

But Tarkenton, who relieved Bob Berry in the third period, got the Vikings going in the last quarter. He threw 15 yards to Ed Marinaro for one TD and 14 yards to John Gilliam to tie the game.

Then Miami's Marlin Briscoe caught a 30-yard pass but the ball was jarred loose and linebacker Jeff Siemon returned it to the Miami 29. Minnesota ran two plays to set up Cox's game winning kick.

"Tarkenton really ignited them," said Miami Coach Don Shula. "We still had a good chance right up until the end of the game but they took the big play away from us and came up with a big play of their own."

The victory was the fourth without a defeat for the Vikings, who have established themselves as the team to beat in the National Football Conference Central Division.

In other action Friday night, Denver edged Buffalo 16-14 annd Los Angeles trimmed San Diego 30-17.

Charley Johnson's 30-yard TD pass to Haven Moses and Jim Turner's three field goals carried the Broncos over Buffalo. Johnson hit Moses in the second quarter for the Broncos' only touchdown. Turner kicked field goals of 12, 12 and 40 yards.

Buffalo, now 0-5, had a chance to win with less than two minutes left when the Bills recovered a fumble on the Bronco 33 but John Leypoldt missed a 46-yard field goal attempt.

Davis Ray kicked three field goals and Larry McCutcheon and Larry Smith scored on short runs as the Rams beat San Diego. Johnny Unitas had two TD passes for the Chargers.

In pre-season action today, the New York Giants face Philadelphia at Princeton, N.J., while tonight Atlanta is at Cincinnati, Detroit at Cleveland, Kansas City at Dallas, the New York Jets at New Orleans, San Francisco at Oakland, Pittsburgh at Green Bay and St. Louis at Chicago. Washington is at New England Sunday.

49er, Raider Feelings Up

OAKLAND (AP) — The Bay Bowl between the San Francisco 49ers and the Oakland Raiders comes up in the Coliseum tonight at 8 o'clock before a sellout crowd of nearly 54,000 and it's likely to have an ingredient missing in most National Football League exhibitions — a rivalry strong enough to stir player emotions.

"There's still a real rivalry there, the cross-town on cross-bay thing, and we're aware of it," said Daryle Lamonica, the Raiders 11-year quarterback who will start.

"The 49ers come out and get you on defense, and their front four is as good as there is. They'll be playing the vets more, same as us, to sharpen for the league."

Coach Dick Nolan of the 49ers also concedes, "The game can be emotional because of the trans-bay thing, but I get excited from any game, not just this one."

"It's going to be a tough game for us," Nolan said.

"Oakland is a lot better team than it showed last Saturday. The Vikings played most of their first team the whole way, while the Raiders used a lot of people. I don't look for them to use as many players against us."

The Raiders 34-10 loss to Minnesota last Saturday was their first preseason setback. They are 2-1-1 with a tie against New England whom the 49ers beat 20-7. San Francisco's 4-1 record is the best Nolan has had in preseason play during his six years with the 49ers.

The Raiders lead 4-2 in the series but lost 34-21 last year. The point-spread experts favor Oakland by a point and one-half.

Oakland is at full strength, although offensive tackle Bob Brown had a three-day bout with flu this week.

San Francisco came out of Sunday's lopsided victory over Denver with several minor injuries: to running back Vic Washington's knee and to tight end Dick Witcher's side muscles.

Then during midweek training tight end Ted Kwalick pulled a groin muscle and center Forrest Blue sprained a neck muscle.

Nolan hadn't ruled any of the four out, however, by last night. But with two tight ends ailing, he did switch running back Jimmy Thomas to some work as backup for Kwalick and Witcher.

Both clubs, division champions in their respective conference have top-notch defenses, but on offense the 49ers have shown nothing in the way of a rushing attack to compare with the Raiders whose Marv Hubbard gained 1,100 yards last season.

Nolan has said he believes he can build a respectable running attack with the 49ers' present personnel and the Raider defense will be a first-rate test.

He's denied reports the club might have to part with tonight's starter, 17-year-veteran John Brodie, or understudy, Steve Spurrier, to get a good running back.

"These injureis could affect some of the things we wanted to do with the running game," Nolan said. He had wanted to get a full half's work out of fullback Larry Schreiber and Washington but will use Doug Cunningham if Washington can't start.

A TIRING DRILL

Brad Da Silva, a starting offensive tackle for the Drake Buccaneers Pop Warner football team, struggled through a tire drill recently to help get ready for this year's season, which begins with a 16-team, countywide festival Sept. 18 at Tamalpais High School. Over 600 boys play Pop Warner football in Marin, some 100 of them on the three Drake teams — the Junior Buccaneers ?10-12 years old, 60-90 pounds), Buccaneers (10-12 years, 70-105 pounds) and Junior Pirates (11-14 years, 90-125 pounds).

Yankee Hurler Battles Nerves

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

If Mel Stottlemyre had lost to the Baltimore Orioles tonight, he may have suffered a nervous breakdown.

"It's been a month an a half since I won a game, said Stottlemyre." "That was the most starts I've ever had trying to win a game. It was a strange feeling. If they had done something in the ninth to pull it out, it really would have been more than I could have taken."

On the mound in the ninth inning of the New York Yankees' 5-2 win over the Baltimore Orioles last night, Stottlemyre, who had not won a game in his last 10 starts, left two men stranded to end Jim Palmer's 10-game winning streak.

"We're not gonna play dead, said Yankee Manager Ralph Houk. "We didn't come home to do that. There's no question that the Orioles have the advantage right now (5½ games ahead of Boston in the American League East Division). They have good defense and four pitchers who are going well."

The Yankees scored three runs in the fourth. Roy White singled, moved up when Thurman Munson walked and scored on Bobby Murcer's double. An infield out scored Munson and the third run came on heads up base running by Graig Nettles and Bobby Murcer.

Matty Alou grounded to second. Oriole second baseman Bobby Grich threw out Alou at first and had Nettles in a rundown. Meanwhile, as the ball was being tossed back and forth, the forgotton Murcer rounded third and scored as the throw was late to the plate.

The Yanks, 9½ games in fourth place, added a pair of insurance runs in the eighth.

In other American League action, Oakland whipped Kansas City 10-7, Chicago topped California 7-2, Cleveland bumped Detroit 6-3, Minnesota buried Texas 11-2 and Milwaukee nipped Boston 5-4 in 13 innings and 3-2 in the opener.

Wilbur Wood, aided by Ed Herrmann's 10th homer in the eighth, won his 22nd game as the White Sox beat the Angels.

Mike Kekich, who won his first game since being a Yankee, got support from Dave Duncan and Walt Williams as Cleveland downed the Tigers. Duncan and Williams both drove in two runs apiece as Kekich lasted five innings but needed relief help from Ray Lamb and Tom Higendorf to protect his second win against four losses.

Rod Carew knocked in three runs and led a 19-hit attack as the Twins defeated the Rangers. Back-to-Back singles by Carew and Tony Oliva, Joe Lis' double and Steve Brye's sacrifice fly staked winning pitcher Dan Fife, who made only his second major league start, to a 2-0 lead in the first.

Dave May's single with two out in the 13th inning scored George Scott and gave Milwaukee a win and a doubleheader sweep over the Red Sox. The Brewers won the opener 3-2 on Pedro Garcia's home run and May's sacrifice fly in the eighth.

Sims Labels Cronin 'Insane'

Combined AP & UPI

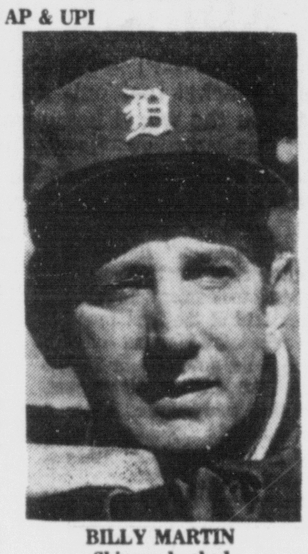

DETROIT — Catcher Duke Sims of the Detroit Tigers said yesterday American League President Joe Cronin was "insane" for suspending manager Billy Martin of the Tigers for three days.

Cronin suspended Martin earlier in the day for ordering two of his pitchers, Joe Coleman and Fred Scherman, to throw "grease balls" in a game which alleged spitballer Gaylord Perry of Cleveland beat Detroit 3-0.

"He's (Cronin) insane," said Sims, who said he instigated the whole thing and caught Coleman and Scherman. "He's (Cronin) a 1929 baseball player living in a 1973 world."

"I started the whole thing," Sims added. "I started screaor ing and yelling about Perry and finally I said 'Junior, (Coleman's nickname) can you throw a spitter? Throw one on every pitch.' "

Cronin suspended Martin for something his umpires don't have the guts to call," Sims said. "We just wanted them to call it — we made it so obvious."

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The St. Louis Cardinals yesterday sold pitcher Ed Sprague to Milwaukee and bought pitcher Lew Krausse and catcher Larry Haney from the Oakland A's.

Sprague is playing with the Cardinals' Tulsa farm club and is to report to the Brewers Tuesday at the close of the American Association season. He was obtained from Cincinnati July 27 in a trade for infielder Ed Crosby.

Basketball

NEW YORK — An American Basketball Association spokesman said last night he had "no comment" on a report that Bob Carlson is quitting as league commissioner after only one season on the job.

Carlson, who is on vacation and could not be reached for comment, will return to his law firm according to a report in the New York daily News. Carlson had thought he would preside over the merger between the ABA and the National Basketball Association but it is bogged down in Congress — and now some of the NBA teams are having second thoughts about it.

Roy Boe, the owner of the New York Mets and a close friend of Carlson, also refused to comment. "I just stepped in the door and I've been fishing all week," Boe said.

The ABA owners have a meeting scheduled in Chicago next Thursday.

Laver, 35, and Rosewall, 38, have not dropped a set in their first two matches, the two aging ones preferring to go all out to win quickly and escape from the dreadful heat and humidity.

Margaret opposes Ceci Martinez of San Francisco, who had demolished Pat Pretorius of South Africa in her opening test, losing only three games.

Nastase, whose fortunes have soured recently, saw his title go down the drain as 24-year-old Andrew Pattison picked up where he left off Thursday by clinching the five setter in less than five minutes Friday morning. Leading 5-3 in the fifth, Pattison lost to Nastase's service, then served out the match, crunching a volley on the second match point to win it all, 6-7, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

Nastase, obviously shaken, had to be content with $400 rather than the $25,000 top money to which he aspired.

Smith, who had been miffed by the committee's decision to have him share top seed billing with Nastase, raced through 16-year-old Billy Martin of Palos Verdes, Calif., in straight sets, dropping only six games.

Speaking of Nastase, Stan said: "He's obnoxious at times, but I'm sorry to see him go. I would like to have met him in the finals, if I got that far."

Nastase was so upset, he withdrew from the doubles and left town.

Chris Evert had no difficulty with 17-year-old Marita Redondo as the third seeded 18-year-old from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., gained the third round in her quest for her first major title.

FEIGNER

pounding nails," he said. "I never heard of a carpenter not pounding nails because he had a sore arm or a charley horse."

Does that mean Eddie thinks today's athletes baby themselves a bit? "I sure do," he said. "If they were paid only when they played, the way we are, it would be a whole different ball game."

FEIGNER, who grew up an orphans on the West Coast, played a little baseball as a youth but missed a chance to try out for the New York Yankees when he joined the Marines in 1943. He was already a top pitcher in the fast-pitch softball leagues which flourished then, and when the war ended he took that direction.

"It was mostly economics," he said. "The major league minimum then was $5,000. I was already making $50 to $200 a game in amateur softball. Not out-and-out under the table money, but through jobs. Like, you might be on a restaurant payroll, but what you got wasn't necessarily what you were worth to the restaurant."

After one game a defeated opponent claimed Feigner had been lucky, prompting a challenge by Eddie to a second contest in which he would use only three other players. He rose to the occasion, pitching a perfect game and striking out 19 batters — and thus began the King and his Court.

Through the years since the group has performed before some 11 million people in all 50 states and 27 foreign countries. Eddie also has appeared numerous times on television, the most famous of which was the time he struck out Willie Mays, Willie McCovey, Maury Wills, Harmon Killebrew, and the late Roberto Clemente among others.

THIS ABILITY to handle major league stars always surprises fans, for it would seem easier to hit the bigger softball. The pitcher stands closer, though, and tests have shown that the ball travels faster. Also, a softball builds up more wind resistance, creating more break;on the curve and more hop on the fastball. Then there's the variety of pitches.

"I have 19 windups, five speeds, and four different curves," Eddie said. "I could probably pitch three games without using the same pitch twice."

The final question, naturally, is how much longer he figures he can defy Father Time and stay out there.

"I've already accepted bookings for 1976," he says. "That's far enough ahead to look right now."

San Rafael's Backstedt Bowls 646

San Rafael's Roger Backstedt bowled a 646 Wednesday night in the Splinters League at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael to highlight limited kegler action last week in Marin County.

The Marinite, who owns a 181 average, bowled a 198, 213, and 235.

League bowling action tailed off last week as the Marin houses prepared for fall activities.

MIKE HENRY of San Rafael won one match and $50 in the 13th annual Cal-State Masters Bowling Tournament held last Saturday and Sunday at Grand Lanes in Hayward.

Rafael Racquet Club Wins Championship

SAN LEANDRO — The Rafael Racquet Club defeated San Leandro yesterday, 7-2, to win the Northern California Junior Davis Cup boys 15-and-under tennis championship on the San Leandro municipal courts.

Mark Wagner, playing No. 1 singles for the San Rafael-based team, defeated San Leandro's Alan Zeitland, 7-6, 6-1.

Pirates Glimpsing At The Scoreboard

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Bill Virdon says it's too early to start watching the scoreboard but you couldn't blame the Pittsburgh Pirates for taking a peek at it last night.

As the Pirates were wrapping up a 7-0 and 5-2 doubleheader sweep of the Chicago Cubs, a big "3" went up on the scoreboard for the New York Mets in the 10th inning.

The Mets had scored three runs to take a 6-4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. That cut the Cardinals' lead to just one game over the Pirates in the National League East. And in the loss column—that's the one everybody likes to call the "allimportant loss column"—the Pirates are ahead by a game. St. Louis is 68-66 and Pittsburgh is 65-65.

That's right, the Pirates are only .500 but they're fortunate to be in a division where a .500 record is a contending record. The three-time defending NL East champions, struggling all season long, still have a chance to make it four straight.

Virdon, the harried Pittsburgh manager, said "it's too early to start watching the scoreboard but it's nice to hear that they (the Cardinals) lost. This could give us a lift, especially beating a good ball club."

In the second game, Richie Zisk hit a pair of run-scoring doubles and Rich Hebner hit his 20th homer as the Pirates pinned the loss on Ferguson Jenkins. Jenkins, who has posted six straight 20-game victory seasons, is now 12-13 and his streak will be snapped this year. But he has another streak he wants to break. He's lost nine straight to the Pirates since June 19, 1971.

Run-scoring singles by Cleon Jones, Rusty Staub and Ed Kranepool in the 10th inning snapped a 3-3 tie and paced the Mets over the Cardinals.

In the other games, Houston edged Los Angeles 3-2, Cincinnati routed San Diego 10-4, Atlanta blasted San Francisco 10-4 and Montreal stopped Philadelphia 5-2.

Lee May's 22nd homer, a tworun two-run with none out in the ninth inning, lifted Houston past Los Angeles.

Tony Perez stroked three hits and drove in five runs to pace Cincinnati past San Diego.

Bernie Allen's two-run homer in the three-run fourth inning and Steve Rogers' six-hit pitching lifted Montreal to the victory over Philadelphia. Jim Lonborg suffered the loss.

Hobbit's Habit Fails In Bid For Title Game

The Hobbit's Habit softball team of San Rafael, which last weekend won the Northern California "C" division championship, apparently has been frustrated in its bid to play the Southern California champion.

The problem, according to assistant supervisor Ralph Dannenberg of the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department, is that the Southland has no clear-cut champion to challenge.

The number of leagues there is so great that a post-season playoff similar to Northern California's is an impossibility, Dannenberg explained.

Hobbit's won the title by defeating Motley's of Sunnyvale, 3-2, in South San Francisco last Saturday.

Tiburon's Bauer Wins Tennis Title

SACRAMENTO — Herman Bauer of Tiburon won an all-Marin final yesterday by defeating Belvedere's Charles Bolcom, 6-1, 6-3, for the boys 14 singles championship of the Sacramento State Fair Tennis Tournament.

It was the second straight tournament victory for Bauer, who last week won at Alpine Meadows in Portola Valley. Bauer was seeded second, Bolcom eighth and Cary Stansbury of Tiburon (who defaulted in the quarter-finals to Bolcom) first here.

No-Hitter, Game Lost By Yankees

BROOKLYN — The Brooklyn Dodgers are battling the New York Yankees in the fourth game of the October, 1947 World Series.

The Yanks are well on the way to their 11th world championship. They lead the Dodgers two games to one in the series and they are ahead by a score of 2-1 in this game.

Brooklyn is batting in the bottom of the ninth inning. The most interesting thing about this game is that Yankee pitcher Floyd Bevens has not allowed a hit after 8⅔ innings of pitching.

One more Dodger out and Bevens will record a no-hitter. This feat has never been accomplished in the history of World Series play.

Al Gionfriddo is at second after stealing that base as a pinch-runner for Carl Furillo, who was walked. Eddie Miksis is at first running for Pete Reiser, who received an intentional pass from Bevens.

So, there are two on, two out and stepping to the plate to pinch-hit for Eddie Stanky is reserve third baseman, Cookie Lavagetto.

Lavagetto stands at the plate as Bevens fires his first pitch by him for a strike.

Bevens gets his signal and goes into his stretch. He checks the runners and makes his delivery to the plate.

Lavagetto swings and drills the ball up against the concrete barrier in right field. Gionfriddo scores and here comes Miksis. He scores too. The Dodgers have won this game with one swing of Cookie Lavagetto's bat. Floyd Bevens has missed baseball immortality and lost a heartbreaking 3-2 decision on a one-hitter.

U.S. Vs. Cuba In Water Polo Match

BELGRADE (UPI) — A water polo clash with Cuba today promised a lively start to the U.S. team's bid for gold at the first world aquatic championships.

The U.S. squad, bronze medalist at the olympic games, last met the Cubans at Munich in a match remarkable not because the United States won 7-6 but because 11 players fouled out and two — both Cubans — were expelled from it.

"We expect a tough game. We are ready for it," said coach Monte Nitzkowski, a California like all of his team.

The U.S.-Cuban encounter comes on the heels of a basketball match between the two nationals at last month's world university games in Moscow when Cuban players attacked the U.S. team with chairs and fists.

Here, the U.S. team — like the other olympic medal winners, Russia and Hungary — has been seeded apart to head the three groups in today's opening round of the championships.

The diving competition is scheduled to start sunday but the main swimming events will not get under way until tuesday.

Marin is represented by two swimmers — Robin Backhaus and Rick DeMont — both of the Marin Aquatic Club. Backhaus may swim Tuesday in the 200-meter freestyle, and both are expected to see action Thursday, Backhaus in the 200 butterfly and DeMont in the 400 freestyle. Backhaus also will compete in the 800 free relay Friday and the 100 fly Saturday and DeMont in the 1,500 free Saturday.

The U.S. team has an advantage over its main rivals, the Australians, because the Australians had to complete their buildup for the championships in winter and travel round the world to compete in summer.

The Australians also seem to have been hit by stomach upsets which the U.S. squad appears to have avoided so far.

The U.S. team's other main rivals for swimming golds will be East Germany — spearheaded by world record holders, Roland Matthes and Kornelia Ender. The East Germans arrived only hours before the opening ceremony but immediately acclimatized themselves in one of the four pools to be used for the championships.

Competitors from 48 nations will take part in the games which will include, for the first time, synchronized swimming in which the U.S. and Canada are strong favorites.

Green Red-Hot On Greens

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (UPI) — "Just ridiculous," Hubie Green said, "but you can bet I'll take it."

Green, who has won only two tournaments since joining the Professional Golf Association tour in 1970, was referring yesterday to the red-hot putting game that gave him an eight-under-par 63 and a two-stroke lead in the $200,000 Greater Hartford Open.

His performance on a blistering hot 97-degree day took the spotlight from such name golfers as defending champion Lee Trevino, Arnold Palmer and Gary Player.

Despite the heat, 97 golfers in the field finished at par or better on the 6,583-yard, par-71 Wethersfield Country Club course.

Jim Wiechers, Bruce Devlin and Jerry Heard trailed Green with 65. Player, Don Bies, John Mahaffey, Homero Blancas and Bobby Cole all shot 66.

Trevino and the man he beat in a playoff last year, Lee Elder, were among 16 men tied at 67 while Palmer and 15 others had 68.

"I made so many long putts today, I can't remember them all," Green said. "It's the lowest round I've ever had. The putting was just ridiculous."

One putt Green did recall was a 40-50 footer for a birdie three on the 364-yard 10th hole.

"I shot it from the front of the green," he said. "I was so shocked when it went in, I didn't even walk it off to see exactly how far it was."

Reed Tips MacKay In Ward Net Match

SAN FRANCISCO — If it weren't for tie-breakers, Ross' Barry MacKay and Alameda's Whitney Reed might still be playing their semifinal match in the $2,000 Marshall Ward Invitational Tennis Tournament, which Reed won yesterday.

Each set went to a tie-breaker and each tie-breaker went to the ninth and final point in Reed's 6-7, 7-6, 7-6 victory at the Golden Gateway Tennis Club.

REALTORS IN MARIN SINCE 1910

Marin County—1800

"I sold our house myself. But I'd never try to do it again!"

"You know how it is. You hear you can save money if you sell your home yourself. Well, I tried it, and learned a painful lesson the hard way.

I ran an ad and before I knew it, my family's life was turned upside-down. Our phone rang at all hours and total strangers appeared at the door demanding to be shown through. Our flowers were trampled and one day, as we came home, people were sitting on our doorstep.

I thought I had the house sold, but problems of the escrow impounds, closing costs, title insurance, pre-payment penalty, termite work, eliminating deed encumbrances — delayed everything. (How can this stuff be so complicated!)

Then after all this, the buyer couldn't qualify for a loan. The house was finally sold, but while we were suffering by doing it ourselves, our neighbor's house across the street was sold for 15% more than ours. And it was essentially the same house! His sale was quick, smooth and professionally handled through a Realtor, who knew the true market value of the house. Sell your own home yourself? Take my advice and use a Realtor. You'll be glad you did."

President Orders Delay In Pay Hikes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon Friday ordered a 60-day delay in pay increases for 3.5 million federal government employes, both civilian and military.

In a separate action, the Cost of Living Council (CLC) delayed a portion of pay raises which the Georgia legislature had voted for Gov. Jimmy Carter, members of the state General Assembly, judges and other state officials.

Both actions came, the government said, as part of the effort to hold down inflation.

The CLC ruled, however, that pay increases for nearly 700,000 postal workers, recently negotiated with four unions, are within the government's wage guidelines and will be allowed.

The President announced Friday in San Clemente, Calif., that federal government pay raises due to begin Oct. 1 would be delayed until Dec. 1. These were cost-of-living increases of about 4.7 per cent and would have gone to military and civil service employes.

"At a critical time in the economic health of our nation, when many are being called on to make sacrifices in order to hold down inflation, no one should enjoy special immunity," Nixon said in a message to Congress. The delay goes into effect unless Congress, within 30 days, overrules the President.

The CLC said Friday that Carter, who now makes $42,500, could have a raise to $47,500 but not to the $50,000 voted by the legislature. But after July 1 he can collect the full amount. It imposed similar limits on other state officials.

A day earlier the CLC had ordered cuts in scheduled wage increases for 135,000 California state employes.

Odometer Tampering Charges Are Filed

Two San Rafael men, partners in a wholesale auto sales venture, have been charged with five counts of grand theft in connection with a scheme to roll back mileage indicators on cars.

The Marin district attorney's office has accused James Garrett and Leo Morris of buying used cars, knocking 20,000 or 30,000 miles off the odometer, and reselling them to Bay Area car dealers.

In each of the five cases, the price paid to Garrett and Morris was at least $200 greater than the men would have received if they had not tampered with the mileage device, according to Deputy Dist. Atty. Michael A. Gridley.

He said an investigation by Stan Wilsey of the state Department of Motor Vehicles revealed that Garrett and Morris, who run G & M Wholesale Autos, 51 Belvedere Street, illegally rolled back odometers on at least 40 autos between April 1972 and March 1973.

Gridley said his office picked only the five "most blatant" cases to prosecute.

Garrett, of 5 Weber Lane, and Morris, of 166 Robinhood Drive, will be arraigned Wednesday in Marin Municipal Court.

They are charged with putting back odometers between 11,961 and 37,830 miles, Gridley said.

Garrett and Morris reportedly bought cars from leasing companies or at auto auctions, tampered with the odometers and resold them to car dealers in San Jose, the East Bay, Santa Rosa and one, J & B Ford, in Corte Madera.

Rolling back odometers is a misdemeanor under the California vehicle code, but the felony grand theft charge is more serious, carrying a penalty of up to a year in jail or up to 10 years in prison for each count.

Four Hurt In Auto Accident

Four Rohnert Park teenagers were injured yesterday when their car struck a utility pole on Southwest Boulevard in Rohnert Park.

A passenger, Dena Menini, 15, of 503 Alta Avenue, was reported in poor condition at Santa Rosa Memorial Hospital with a head injury.

The driver, Joy Patton, 16, of 186 Avram Avenue, and two other passengers, Donna Apfel, 15, of 7083 Almond Avenue, and Terri Peterson, 16, of 579 Alta Avenue, were all reported in good condition at the hospital with cuts received in the 11:15 a.m. crash.

Police said the car's left rear tire blew out causing it to skid into the pole.

Admission To Amphetamine Tablet Sales

A Sonoma County man yesterday admitted he sold 1,000 amphetamine tablets to a narcotics officer in Los Ranchitos in May.

But Steven James Irons, 23, of Boyes Hot Springs, was told he can withdraw his guilty plea and be tried on the felony charge if a probation report recommends he be sent to state prison.

If the report suggests a county jail term Judge Charles Read Best promised he would sentence Irons to no more than one year there. Sentencing will be Sept. 17.

Begin Journey

DELANO, Calif. (UPI) —An auto caravan of 350 United Farm Workers Union members has left on a nationwide journey to spread a boycott campaign against table grapes and lettuce.

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.

Other areas:

San Francisco, clean air.

San Jose, clean air.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Last Minute Filings Assure Contests In 16 Districts

A flood of last minute filings yesterday assured contested elections on Nov. 6 in 14 special districts, the Marin Community College District and the Bolinas-Stinson School District.

By the time the Marin County elections office closed its doors at 5 p.m., 95 candidates had filed for 59 seats. Because of the rush to beat the deadline, elections officials did not verify the completed candidacy papers of approximately 20 persons. They will complete that task Tuesday.

In the special districts, 68 candidates filed for 56 seats. Four entered the race for one seat on the college board and 3 filed for a single seat on the Bolinas-Stinson board.

Elections will not be required in 10 special districts and the Ross School District, since there weren't enough candidates for a contest. Marin County supervisors will fill the vacant seats by appointment.

Candidates in districts in which elections will be held are:

NORTH MARIN COUNTY WATER DISTRICT — (two seats): Robert Burke, 46, claims supervisor, Firemans Fund Insurance Co., 211 San Felipe Way; George A. Amaroli, 40, incumbent, engineer, State Public Utilities Commission, 11 Rebecca Way; Frank V. Baccaglio, 67, incumbent, retired carpenter, 1526 South Novato Boulevard; John F. Taylor, 52, retired Air Force colonel, 106 Drakewood Place; Lloyd F. Harolds, 30, business manager, 41 Pico Vista and Robert Vasconcellos, 32, estimator, 165 San Luis Way.

NOVATO FIRE PROTECTION DISTRICT (two seats): Peter J. Ferrarese, 58, incumbent, bank manager, 10 Los Alondras Court and William L. Boyle Jr., Ray A. Land and Harold Leeds (papers not verified).

MARIN CITY COMMUNITY SERVICES DISTRICT (three seats): Roger Jones, 72, incumbent, retired, 49 Cole Drive; Thelma McKinney, incumbent, legal secretary, 30 Pacheco Street; Ernest Small Sr., 71, retired, 174 Cole Drive; Matthew Williams, construction worker, 733 Drake Avenue; Lonnie James Roberts, 34, mechanic, 720 Drake Avenue; Gussie Blakey, 44, housewife, 720 Drake Avenue and John Grayson (papers not verified).

TAMALPAIS COMMUNITY SERVICES DISTRICT (two seats): Roger A. Bucholz, fireman, 224 Marin Avenue; Gerard S. Sample, 40, photogrammetrist, 667 Northern Avenue; Frank A. Purdy, mechanical engineer, 308 Ashton Lane; John F. Walker, auditor, 431 Green Glen Way and Robert Ricketts, Byron Boulware and Martin Dean, (papers not verifield).

MARINWOOD COMMUNITY SERVICES DISTRICT (two seats): Donald A. Duerr, incumbent, business administrator, 386 Johnstone Drive; Ellis D. Jaquette, incumbent, engineer, 505 Quietwood Drive; Kenneth Katz, counselor, 872 Greenberry Lane.

Torrents Of Power

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — The Alabama Geological Survey reports that the state has such an abundance of water power that it would be feasible to double the hydroelectric generating facilities within the state, which already account for 24 per cent of its annual power generated.

Automotive First

ATLANTA (UPI) — The first reported automobile trip in Atlanta was made by a bicycle dealer named William D. Alexander in 1901. Alexander drove a Locomobile steamer from downtown Atlanta to Ft. McPherson and back.

Peron Turns Back Clock In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) —Juan D. Peron, the aging symbol of strongman rule, threw both arms upward in that old familiar gesture and turned back the clock of Argentine history.

Tens of thousands of his shirtless ones, the peasants and laborers who brought him to power more than a quarter-century ago, marched past "El Lider" yesterday shouting "Peron or death" to the steady beat of hundreds of drums.

The 77-year-old Peron stood on a balcony of the nation's grey marble union headquarters building for eight hours soaking up the tumultuous labor support for his bid to regain the presidency after almost 18 years of exile.

Millions of other Argentines staged a 14-hour strike across the country on orders of union leaders supporting Peron and virtually shut down commercial life in the nation of 24 million.

An estimated 160,000 Argentines marched past the General Labor Federation building in Buenos Aires, chanting "Peron, Peron, Peron," to kick off Peron's campaign for the Sept. 23 presidential election. A task force of 10,000 policemen kept the demonstration orderly.

The march turnout, however, was sharply lower than the 1 million predicted by union leaders and claimed in official police reports. Labor sources said many workers apparently took advantage of the strike to take their families on outings.

Peron, who ruled Argentina with an iron fist from 1946 to 1955, stood beside his wife, Isabel, 44, a former cabaret dancer and his vice presidential candidate, to greet the 40 blocks of marchers.

Peron, considered a sure winner in the coming election, was barred by the armed forces from taking part in last spring's presidential vote. Hector Campora, his hand-picked stand-in, won the election handily, but resigned last month to pave the way for Peron to take over.

Bugging Helped Security Firms

NEW YORK (UPI) — One side effect of the Watergate hearings has been a boom in business for major protective agencies across the country.

"We're being asked to check for bugs and provide security for companies who have never before required our services," Jerry DeRoma, vice president of Holmes Protection, Inc., told the National Enquirer. In Los Angeles, Al Goofen, investigative head for ABMI Security Services, said:

"There has been an increased demand to have corporate offices debugged since the Watergate break-in."

A New City

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (UPI) — Thunder Bay is the newest city in the isolated northwest section of Ontario. It was formed in 1970 by consolidating the towns of Fort William and Port Arthur. It is a rapidly growing industrial and shipping center, with four paper mills and a large harbor.

Alcoholism Top Labor Problem

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Alcoholism is the oldest and most prevalent form of drug abuse among U.S. workers, Arthur D. Little, Inc., research company, reports.

About 4.5 million Americans employed in business, industry and government have problems with alcohol, the report said. The resulting cost in absenteeism, sick pay, high accident rates, low productivity and poor executive decisions is an estimated $8 billion annually, or $32 million each working day.

Radiation Source

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Medical and dental X-rays are the largest single source of radiation exposure to the average American, according to nuclear power industry experts.

Vaccine To Halt Cholera To Naples

NAPLES, Italy (UPI) —The government shipped hundreds of thousands of doses of vaccine and tons of fresh lemons to Naples and to Bari yesterday to fight a cholera epidemic spreading across southern Italy.

Since the first cases of the disease were reported early this week, nine persons have died in the Naples area and 229 have been hospitalized, 57 of them with confirmed cases of cholera. The Adriatic port city of Bari reported nine confirmed cases and 45 more suspected.

Residents of Naples took to the streets for the second consecutive day to protest a shortage of vaccine and demand immediate sanitation measures in the city's crowded slums.

At Portici 1,000 persons mobbed the mayor's car and beat on it with their fists as he tried to enter his office. Later a crowd of 3,000 public housing residents burned tires, furniture and bags of garbage in the street.

A motorcade drove through Naples with horns blaring, displaying signs demanding vaccine.

In Rome government officials announced the shipment Saturday of vaccine and lemons, a fruit believed effective in countering the cholera bacillus.

Throughout the country provincial governments provided vaccine for port and airport workers and advised against eating sea food, raw fruits and vegetables and unboiled milk.

All personnel and dependents of the U.S. Sixth Fleet based at Naples were given anti-cholera vaccine injections at the American Hospital.

Named For Pioneer

PASCAGOULA, Miss. (UPI) — The world's first aluminum deep water shrimp trawler, the Arlin V. Mize, was launched here in March 1970. The vessel was built by Graham's Boats, Inc., for Gulf Cities Fisheries. It bears the name of a pioneer in marine aluminum construction.

MINIATURE RAILROAD WORLD — Marin County fair-goers marvel over an intricate Lilliputian display of model trains staged by the North Coast Model Railroad Society. The exhibit, which includes models of the narrow-gauge electric and standard-gauge electric and steam lines that once served the county, is in the Marin Veterans Memorial Building auditorium during the fair.

From Tiny Trains To Exhibits

AWHIRL ON THE MIDWAY — Shrieking youngsters hold tight as they wheel, dip and spin on a carnival ride at the Marin County Fair. This year's midway boasts a house of mirrors, a horror house and a ferris wheel. Carnival workers said the number of rides has doubled over last year because of increasing demand.

CREEPY, CRAWLY ART — A leggy spider, which can be transformed into a chair at will, straddles its exhibit space among other art displays at the Marin County Fair. Arts, crafts and gardens of all kinds, a creative variety show, are traditional favorites at the 1973 fair.

VEGETABLES ON VIEW — Succulent squash and cucumbers, the produce of dozens of Marin County gardens, are massed on long tables for judging by vegetable experts. Plants, flowers and fruits were also among growing things which competed for prizes in exhibits at the Marin County Fair.

DROOPER DOES HIG THING — Drooper of the "Banana Splits," a familiar group on children's television shows, signs autographs for admirers at the Marin County Fair. The television characters, performing on an outdoor stage today and tomorrow, have attracted hundereds of delighted youngsters.

No Contest Is Entered On Manslaughter

A San Francisco man pleaded no contest yesterday to a manslaughter charge arising from an Novato accident in which one youth died and another was seriously injured.

Joseph Timothy O'Neill, 35, entered the plea in exchange for Superior Court Judge Charles Read Best's promise he will draw no more than 30 days in jail and one year probation.

Best also agreed to dismiss a second count of felony drunken driving. O'Neill will be sentenced Sept. 17.

Novato police said O'Neill's car hit a bridge on Bel Marin Keys Boulevard and rolled down a bank, killing one passenger, Stephen N. Coleman, 14, of Bel Marin Keys, and injuring another, Gary E. Simmons, 12, of the same community.

O'Neill suffered scrapes and a cut chin in the accident.

When You Have Two Chances For Contract, Try Taking Both

When there are two chances for your contract, you may have to choose the better chance and be satisfied with it. A better plan, however, is to play for both chances.

WITHOUT LOSS

West opened the five of spades, East put up the jack and South won with the king. Declarer saw at a glance that he could make the contract if he could run either the diamonds or the clubs without loss.

South was clever enough to take a second look. The clubs would run if the suit broke 3-2 or if somebody had a singleton jack. The diamonds would run only if the suit broke 3-2 and only if West had the queen. (South was thinking in terms of a diamond finesse.)

Without thinking matters through, South decided that the clubs offered a better chance than the diamonds. He took the ace of clubs at the second trick and led a low club towards dummy.

DISCARDED

West discarded a heart, and South shook his head dolefully. The contract was doomed. The clubs were not going to break and there was no longer any way to bring in five diamond tricks.

South should lead a club to dummy's king at the second trick and then return a club to the ace. If the suit breaks 3-2, South will know about it by then. He can get to dummy with the ace of diamonds to run the rest of the clubs. If the clubs break badly, South will know about it when he takes the ace of clubs. He can then lead a low diamond to finesse with dummy's jack as the best try for five diamond tricks.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠ - 8 7 6
♥ - K Q 3
♦ - K 8 6 3 2
♣ - A 7.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one diamond. You have 12 points in high cards and 1 point for the doubleton, enough for an optional opening bid. You decide to bid rather than pass because you have a five-card suit and excellent high-card structure.

Seven-Day Trip To Inland Ports

DULUTH, Minn. (UPI) — Duluth and neighboring Superior, Wis., lie more than 2,340 miles by canal and lake routes inland from the Atlantic Ocean.

Ocean-going vessels make the voyage from the Atlantic along the Great Lakes in an average of seven days. The ships traverse several locks and climb 600 feet above sea level to dock here.

School Count

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Enrollment in California's public schools, including adult education, will reach an estimated 7.5 million during the 1973-74 school year.

15 Cents To Mail That Slower Letter

Postmaster General Elmer T. Klassen predicted this week that letter postage soon will rise to 10 cents, and that a 15-cent rate may not be far away.

The only way this could be avoided, Klassen suggested, would be for Congress to increase subsidies to the U.S. Postal Service.

WELL, THERE ARE other ways it might be avoided.

One way would be for Congress to take back control over the postal system, to prevent Klassen and Co. from wasting the mail users' money.

You may recall that the autonomous USPS came into being because of complaints about deterioration in mail service and congressional unhappiness with increasing postal deficits. An independent government corporation, free from political influence, could do it better, we were told.

Deterioration of mail service prior to the postal system's "going independent" was as nothing to what has occurred since, as just about everyone who can read and write (and therefore uses the mails) knows by now.

And Postmaster General Klassen's indirect plea for higher congressional (i.e., taxpayers') subsidies — cloaked in a threat of a 15-cent letter rate — sounds no different whatever from the pleas for higher subsidies by a series of postmasters general under the old "political" system.

But the difference is that when the Post Office Department was part of government, Congress had some control over how it spent its appropriations. Now it has none.

IF IT HAD, Congress might question, for example, why USPS has awarded $821,845 in contracts to a New York public relations firm headed by Charles Burnaford, a longtime personal friend of Elmer T. Klassen — all without competitive bidding.

Burnaford's company got $343,000 of that to explain to postal employees and public the transition from government department to government corporation. If you don't remember how it was explained — well, neither do we; but the $343,000 outlay was necessary, according to Kalssen, because the 68 employees in the old Post Office Department's communications section (annual budget, $2.3 million) were "a bunch of shoe clerks" incompetent to do the job.

Equally questionable might be Klassen's good friend's contracts for $117,831 to set up conference of postal service officials in various parts of the country. Setting up conferences is one thing most bureaucrats like to do for themselves. And it is one of the things they are best at.

CONGRESS MIGHT refuse — if post office spending were still under its jurisdiction — to approve $40,000 that was paid out for new furniture and decorations for Klassen's office, $45,000 for a private kitchen for the room where the Postal Service board of governors meets once a month, and pay raises to the new "brass" of the service (not career postal employees) far exceeding those given the men who have spent many years in the service. It might even object to Klassen's keeping his private cook on the USPS payroll.

Also, Congress might like to look into fantastic expenditures for automated equipment to sort the mail — some from companies which were unable to deliver on their contracts.

The stated reason for these has ben "to speed up the mail." However, because thy require hauling mail from outlying post offices to the regional centers to be sorted by the automated equipment, they have actually slowed the mail — a principal reason why it takes that letter from Aunt Em in Kalamazoo longer to reach you now than it did three years ago. Yet Klassen and Co. continue to pour more and more millions into more and more such equipment.

KLASSEN announced with pride last January that USPS income for its first complete fiscal year fell only 16 per cent short of paying all its costs, as compared with an average deficit of 20 per cent in the last three years of the "political" postal service. He neglected to mention, however, that this 4 per cent gain toward self-sufficiency had been accompanied by raises of 25 to 33 per cent in postage rates, so the efficiency of USPS was far below that of the old Post Office Department.

Earlier this year, our Sen. Alan Cranston was raising a lot of questions about USPS. He suggested at one point that Congress might consider going back to the old department set-up. But he neglected to follow through.

Somebody in Congress had better follow through. We certainly don't want 15-cent letter postage. And if the post office requires greater tax subsidies, wouldn't it be preferable for Congress to approve them for a department over which it had some measure of control?

Many Splendored Flower

Few blossoms are as beautiful or as impressive as the huge, waxy white flowers of the Southern magnolia. These trees bear flowers most of the summer in Marin. When a bud is first picked, it can fill a room with heady fragrance. After several weeks, the petals turn brown like fine parchment and are still beautiful. The seed cones are architectural masterpieces, housing bright scarlet seeds, which eventually fali out, only to dangle from a short white string to attract the birds that distribute them.

From large, waxy leaves to scarlet seeds, Marin's Magnolia grandifloras are many splendored, truly grand trees.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUET to C. Frederic Faude for his donation of 15 acres atop Oakland Hill to the City of San Anselmo for open space.

BRICKBATS to Marin mental health agencies for protesting tighter controls on the spending of taxpayers' money on mental health patients.

ART BUCHWALD

There's A Pill For Everything, Including What Pill Gives You

(Art Buchwald has gone off for a few weeks to forget about Watergate. He left behind some of his all-time favorite columns which he insists to the best of his recollection, at that point in time and in hindsight, everyone wanted to read again.)

WASHINGTON — Some time ago the American boss of a friend of mine told the friend, "I admire you people who live abroad. You don't take pills. In America we're always taking a pill for something or other. We're becoming a nation of hypochondriacs. But you people don't depend on pills."

My friend agreed. "We can't get any."

WELL, IT WAS a good story, but not necessarily true. A majority of Americans arriving in Europe are weighted down with every imaginable medication prescribed by family doctors. Each one is a miracle drug in its own right, and I haven't met an American tourist yet who isn't willing to share his medicines with the less fortunate people who live abroad.

Just recently while in Paris I had occasion to see how many Americans will come to the aid of their fellow men. It all started off when I complained at a dinner party of having a sore throat.

"I have just the thing for you," the hostess said. "It's Slipawhizdrene. You take one every two hours."

One of the guest said, "Slipawhizdrene is outdated. My doctor gave me Heventizeall. It doesn't make you as sleepy, and you only have to take two every four hours."

"I left the United States two weeks after you did," another woman said, "and Heventizeall has been superseded by Dequqbeall. I have a bottle at the hotel, and if you stop by I'll give you some."

THE ONLY FRENCHMAN at the table said, "Why don't you gargle with aspirin?"

The people at the dinner couldn't have been more shocked if he had said a four-letter word. The Frenchman's American wife was so embarrassed she almost burst into tears.

He looked around helplessly. "But what did I say wrong?"

The husband of the hostess tried to smooth things over. "You see, Rene, in America we have gone beyond aspirin. You French believe in food; we believe in miracle drugs."

"They're all barbarians," muttered one of the Americans.

AFTER THE DINNER I stopped by the hotel and picked up an envelope of Deviltizeall. I took two before I went to bed. At four in the morning I no longer had my sore throat, but I was violently sick to my stomach. I remained in this state until morning. I had a luncheon date with a Hollywood producer, but I couldn't eat anything.

"I've got just the thing for an upset stomach. It's called Egazzakine. Here, take one now and one at four o'clock."

I took the proferred pill, and in a half-hour my stomach settled. Only now, my eyes started to run and I began sneezing. Making my way blindly to the office, I ran into another American friend in front of the Lancaster Hotel. He recognized the symptoms immediately. "You've probably got an allergy. Come upstairs and I'll give you something for it."

WE WENT UP to his room, and he took out a leather case filled with various bottles. see," he said, reading from a slip of paper. "The yellow-and-black ones are for jaundice, the green-and-blue ones are for pneumonia, the white-and-red ones are for rheumatism, the pink-and-beige ones are for heart trouble — oh, yes, the brown-and-purple are for allergies. Here, take two now and two at four o'clock."

"But," I protested, I've got to take the Egazzakine at four o'clock."

"Don't do it," he warned. "That's what you're probably allergic to."

I TOOK the brown-and-purple capsules and went to the office. In about an hour, my tear ducts had dried up and I had stopped sneezing.

I felt perfectly well, except I couldn't move my left arm.

I reported this to my friend at the Lancaster, who said: "The doctor warned me it happens sometimes. He gave me something else in case it did. I'll send it over with the bellboy."

The bellboy brought over some orange-and-cerise tablets.

I took two and it wasn't long before I could lift my arm again.

That evening during dinner I discovered I had my sore throat back. But I didn't mention it to a soul.

Audit Of President's Homes Leaves Question On Secrecy

(Reprinted from Christian Science Monitor)

Is the audit of President Nixon's homes away from home the last word on their financing? Or will it prove to be just one more stage toward full disclosure?

It is sad to have to ask such questions. But they have become a conditioned reflex to White House announcements about the California and Florida properties — conditioned by a history of halting, misleading statements instead of frank simple answers at the outset.

Mr. Nixon's advisers do not inspire confidence by choosing for the audit an accounting firm three of whose former members were convicted and fined in connection with false financial statements — and pardoned by the President as recently as last December. But the White House assured the press that these men are no longer with the firm under its new name, and that no conflict of interest could be charged.

Discounting appearances, there seems no reason not to accept the audit. It does not deal with the government security expenditures on the homes, whose amounts have escalated in successive announcements. It does spell out how the Nixons financed the purchases with personal funds, bank loans, and a little help from their friends. It conflicts with some previously reported information on the ins and outs of the purchases. It effectively counters the suggestion that leftover 1968 campaign funds may have been used.

The Nixons emerge as somewhat beleaguered homeowners trying to keep financially above water. The audit confirms that the issue is not whether the President's tangled dealings were legal — which they certainly appear to be — but why on earth the White House's secretive approach should have extended for so long even to this.

Novato Community House Memorabilia On Display

I and all who are interested in our history, heritage and background thank the I-J and particularly Frank Farrara for the excellent story and beautiful color picture commemorating the 50th anniversary of the grand opening of the Novato Community House (Aug. 24).

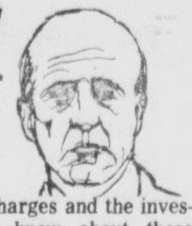

I would like to add one important piece of information to the story. Mrs. Margaret Keena McNern of Novato was the one that called to my attention the anniversary, Aug. 28, 1973, of the opening. She has loaned to the city an original program for that evening and it along with another program dated 1924 are exhibited in the city hall exhibit case.

Thank you for letting all in the county know of this anniversary and for publicizing so beautifully our restored "glistening" Community House.

Leak Of Agnew Investigation May Benefit Man In White House

The good detective in the usual "whodunit" starts his search for the culprit by analyzing motives. Who had the biggest motive for committing the crime?

A crime (figurative, not literal) has been committed in the Agnew case. It consisted of someone "leaking" information about the existence of charges against Vice President Agnew and the further fact that the federal prosecutor for Mr. Agnew's home state of Maryland considered the charges sufficiently serious to be worth investigating.

The "leaking" was the crime in that it turned the spotlight of full public notice on Mr. Agnew in advance of a conclusion by the Department of Justice that the evidence was sufficient to justify an indictment. We who have not seen the evidence cannot possibly know how serious it is. But suppose that the Department of Justice concludes that the evidence does not warrant an indictment? In that event Mr. Agnew will have suffered political damage which should not have been inflicted on him.

Who had most to gain from inflicting such political damage on Mr. Agnew?

THE OBVIOUS ANSWER is every Republican who has any desire to get the Republican nomination in 1976. But then the obvious answer is not always the true one. Let's try to think it through.

There is no need to write out the list of political beneficiaries. Everyone knows them. They range from John Connally on the right to Charles Percy on the left. They include Nelson Rockefeller in the middle.

But, would any one of these have been privy to the original knowledge of the investigation in Baltimore? The story broke almost immediately after Mr. Agnew was informed by Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson of the charges and the investigation. Who else knew about those charges and the investigation? The White House was informed before Mr. Agnew was informed. And sometime in there we know that at least one member of Congress was told about the matter from the White House and was advised by the White House to keep away from the whole business and particularly to avoid rushing to Mr. Agnew's defense.

None of this proves that anyone intentionally and for political purpose leaked the original news of the Agnew problem. It might have been accidental. It could have been purposeful. Take your choice. But whether intentional or accidental, it had more than the mere result of injuring Mr. Agnew. It also keeps in Mr. Nixon's hands some measure of control over the political succession.

HAD THERE BEEN no investigation, and hence no public knowledge of an investigation, Mr. Agnew would very possibly have become the 1976 nominee without benefit of help from the White House. He was in fact becoming an independent political force in the Republican Party. And there was the beginning of a grouping of party regulars around Mr. Agnew.

Had this tendency continued unchecked, Mr. Agnew might well have become more influential in the party than the President — and before the conventions in 1976.

That tendency has now been checked; in fact it has probably been wiped out. So perhaps, Sherlock Holmes, the biggest beneficiary of the "crime" is not any one of Mr. Agnew's rivals for the 1976 nomination, but the White House itself.

Delay In Confirming Kissinger Could Damage China Relations

WASHINGTON — The temptation when the Congress returns will be to enjoy the luxury of a late summer rerun of Watergate, with the confirmation hearings of Henry A. Kissinger as the centerpiece. Rehearsing the wiretapping business and the issue of executive privilege could mean a delay of several weeks, even if confirming the President's national security adviser is given top priority by the Foreign Relations Committee.

Such a delay could seriously endanger the Nixon foreign policy initiatives. Events will not stand still while we resolve our internal quarrel.

It is all very well to say that it really doesn't matter very much, since Kissinger has, in effect, been secretary of state for most of the Nixon first term. This is only a half-truth, but, leaving that side, the President by designating Kissinger as secretary has put the man and the office before the world as a test of governability in the aftermath of the long turmoil of the Watergate scandals.

IN ONE AREA in particular, delay can be a peril. For the People's Republic of China, Kissinger stands for stability and continuity. In the developing relationship that ended 23 years of sterile isolation, Kissinger's friendship with Premier Chou En-lai is a warrant of that continuity.

Out of Peking have come hints of possible new trouble like that of the Cultural Revolution which rocked the country from top to bottom. Our interpretation of articles in authoritative journals is that Chou En-lai's leadership is being challenged by the radical left. While this may be put down in part to overly suspicious China watchers in Hong Kong, behind the official secrecy so carefully preserved in the Chinese capital something is happening.

Kissinger has wanted to go to Peking at the earliest possible date. His visit renewing the friendship with Chou could be a stabilizing influence. The last thing China needs today is a renewal of the fratricidal conflict that tore the country apart beginning in 1967. If the China watchers are right, Premier Chou stands for sustaining the opening to the outside world as against the radical left represented by Chiang Ching, Mao Tse-Tung's wife, who would go it alone with Marxism-Leninism the only guide to policy.

IN THE COURSE of a long discussion with Chou En-lai in mid-May in Peking, I asked him whether he believed another Cultural Revolution might be necessary. Was this essential to insure that in an egalitarian society no new elite with special privileges would arise? That appears to have been the principal motive of those who took part in the conflict that came to an end in 1971.

With great seriousness, after pondering a moment, he replied that if we do better it will not be necessary. But it cannot be ruled out. One revolution, he said, is never enough, and he emphasized the backward trend in the Soviet Union where, according to Chou, for 10 years the government has been back-pedaling toward revisionism.

At the same time he said it was Mao who made all the principal decisions. Mao had initiated "ping-pong diplomacy" with a telegram to Tokyo inviting the American table tennis team to come to Peking. It is hardly a secret, however, that Chou has managed the opening to the world that has seen more than 70 foreign missions, including the U.S. liaison mission, established in Peking.

The relationship between Moscow and Peking is a part of the peace equation that has had Kissinger's concentrated attention.

Mormons, Adventists Leaders In Religious Growth

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Senior Editor

Two religious bodies that began life in 19th Century America as small and scorned sects now are worldwide institutions with rapidly-growing memberships.

They are the Mormons and the Seventh-Day Adventists.

The main thing they have in common is that both have survived adversities that might have crushed people of less vigorous faith. Instead of being weakened, they have grown ever stronger.

The Mormons are one of the relatively few religious bodies in America that have experienced violent and sustained persecution. The burning of their towns and the lynching of their leaders finally drove them out of the settled eastern half of the country. In 1847 they made a gruelling trek across the wilderness to find, in the desert of Utah, a land so bleak no one else wanted it.

THOUSANDS OF them made the dangerous overland trip on foot, pushing their meager belongings in handcarts. Hundreds died along the way. The survivors, by hard work and mutual support, converted the Valley of the Great Salt Lake from an arid wasteland into one of the most beautiful and prosperous places on earth.

Today, with Mormons holding high government offices (President Nixon had two in his first-term cabinet), and with Mormon congregations thriving in every part of the country, it is difficult even for them to remember they once were despised and outcast.

Their numbers have grown—and continue to grow—at a rate far exceeding that of mainstream Protestant bodies or the Roman Catholic Church. There now are about 3,200,000 Mormons in the United States and 66 other countries.

SALT LAKE City remains the official headquarters of the parent movement, whose official name is The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

A smaller Mormon body, called the Reorganized Church of Latter-day Saints, has its headquarters in Independence, Mo. It has about 160,000 members. It differs with the main LDS church on several points of doctrine.

The Mormon movement originated with a farm boy named Joseph Smith Jr., who lived near the village of Palmyra, N.Y. In 1820, when he was 14 years old, Joseph Smith experienced a series of religious visions in which, he said, he was directed by an angel named Moroni to a hillside cache containing a box of golden plates inscribed with strange letters. He also was given a pair of instruments — the "Urim and Thummin"—to translate the golden plates. The result, published in 1829, was the now-famous "Book of Mormon."

IT TELLS of a lost tribe of Israelites who migrated to America about 600 B.C., and became the ancestors of the American Indians. After His resurrection, Christ came to America to visit these people and to establish His church among them. Members of the original church were wiped out in a tribal war in 325 A.D., according to the Book of Mormon. Joseph Smith's mission from the Angel Moroni was to re-establish this long-lost church. Thus the name "Latter-day Saints." Thus, also, the insistence of Mormons that they are not a "Protestant denomination" but a religious body whose history long antedates the Reformation.

The Book of Mormon and other writings of Joseph Smith are regarded by the LDS Church as scripture on a par with the Bible (which Mormons also read and revere as sacred writ).

ANOTHER distinctive Mormon doctrine is that people who live worthily in this life will have a future life in the flesh, a life that will include sex, marriage and the procreation of children. To be married and beget children was regarded by early Mormons as an almost essential condition of bliss in the after-life. It was this belief in "celestial marriage", coupled with the enormous loss of male manpower during the persecutions and the early years of hard work in the wilderness, that caused Joseph Smith's successor, Brigham Young, to encourage the practice of "plural marriage" or polygamy.

There just weren't enough husbands to go around in early Utah, and to a Mormon woman, a polygamous marriage was infinitely preferable to the prospect of entering heaven without a mate. Plural marriage was rejected from the start by the Reorganized LDS Church.

The main LDS Church officially abandoned it long ago.

OUTLAWING POLYGAMY was one of the "conditions" Congress set for admitting Utah to the union as a state. Mormons still attach enormous importance to family life, and the home remains their most effective institution for the religious education of children.

The success of Mormon "family home evenings" and a fabulously vigorous and varied youth program (everything from symphony orchestras to basketball teams), have enabled them to do what few other religious bodies have done in our time. They have kept most of their younger generation "strong in the faith" of their fathers.

Another secret of the Mormon Church's hold on its youth is that it dares to ask costly service and sacrifices from them. Each young Mormon is expected to spend two years of his life—paying his own expenses—as a missionary for the Church. Help is available for anyone who lacks financial means.

This enormous corps of winsome young missionaries is largely responsible for the fact that Mormon membership has been growing at a rate of more than 7 per cent a year, while many other U.S. religious bodies are losing members or barely holding their own.

SEVENTH-DAY Adventists also place great stress on missionary activity. They have upwards 56,000 ministers, doctors, nurses, teachers and technicians at work in more than 100 countries around the world. The denomination has about 1 million members worldwide, of whom nearly a third live in the United States.

This church was an outgrowth of the millenialist movement, which sprang in America early in the 19th Century. Its chief doctrine was that the Second Coming of Christ was imminent. Some millenialists had even set the date: March 21, 1844. When it passed uneventfully, many drifted away. But one group of millenialists, under the leadership of a remarkable woman named Ellen White, organized the Seventh-Day Adventist Church at Battle Creek, Mich., in 1863.

THE WORD "Adventist" in the name signifies continuing adherence to the conviction that the Second Advent (coming) of Christ may occur at any moment, and almost certainly will occur quite soon. The "Seventh-Day" comes from the fact that Adventists observe as a day of worship the original Jewish Sabbath, Saturday, the seventh day of the week, rather than the Christian Sabbath, Sunday, the first day of the week. (Other Christians justify the switch on grounds that Jesus' resurrection occurred on the first day of the week, so that each Sunday is a "little Easter.)

Adventists are part of the fundamentalist wing of Protestantism, upholding the complete infallibility of the Bible, and taking special interest in those biblical texts that deal with prophecies about the end of time. Their publications are filled with articles that interpret biblical prophecies as allusions to contemporary happenings, strengthening Adventist expectation of an early denouement to human history.

BOTH ADVENTISTS and Mormons are strict in their personal habits, eschewing not only alcohol and tobacco, but also coffee, tea and other stimulant drinks. Adventists go even further: many are strict vegetarians.

The two "made-in-America" denominations also have in common an unusually high level of financial solvency, deriving from the generous contributions of their members. Adventists practice "double tithing" (giving 20 per cent of their income to the church) and regularly lead all other major denominations in per capita giving.

Besides income from tithes and offerings, the LDS Church has large property holdings, especially in Utah, but also in other parts of the country. However it is not as rich as some critics have claimed, because it also spends a great deal of money—on missions, youth programs, aid to poor Mormon families (who rarely, if ever, go on public welfare), and in building an ever-growing number of beautiful Mormon temples in major cities around the world.

Woman Awaits Call As Pastor

PEARL RIVER, N.Y. (AP) — "Christ was a radical. He spoke to women, He associated with the oppressed, the underdogs of society," Joyce Stedge declares.

Such sentiments aren't normally associated with the old and sedate Reformed Church in America, which traces its origins in this country to 1628.

But Mrs. Stedge, 47, a mother of six whose soft voice and gentle manner belie firm Christian convictions, has succeeded in getting the church to discard one of its oldest traditions. She is the first woman in the history of the 220,000-member church to be granted a license to preach.

She took the initial step last January when she went before the district governing body of the church for examination on her license to preach and ordination as a minister, subject to her receiving a "call" from a congregation.

But first the group of about 50 men pondered an article in he Book of Church Order which begins: "The ministers of the Word are those persons who. . ."

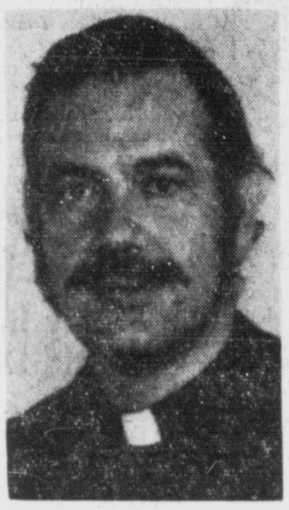

They decided unanimously that "persons" meant women as well as men. Mrs. Stedge was pleased by the ruling, but thought it would have been "pretty presumptuous to limit God" in His choice of who will serve the church.

She had already preached and conducted Sunday services at three Reformed churches in New York and New Jersey whose congregations were "very friendly and very open" toward a woman in the pulpit. But she dislikes the connatations of "preacher."

"I'm happiest in a dialogue situation. . .where the congregation is not sitting passively and being talked down to," she says.

One woman told Mrs. Stedge, "I'm all for you being ordained, but I personally wouldn't want a woman minister."

But the former grade school teacher who earned a master's degree in divinity from Union Theological Seminary is not yet a minister. Under Reformed Church rules, an applicant is not ordained until after he receives a call from a church. And each congregation is free to choose its own pastor.

REV. MOISHE ROSEN
Conference speaker

Conference On Prophecy Is Scheduled

A special conference on Bible prophecy is scheduled for Sept. 8 and 9 at the Church of the Open Door, 177 E. Blithedale, Mill Valley.

Speakers for the conference include Rev. Moishe Rosen, director of Jews for Jesus, and Dr. Timothy Lin, translator of the New American Standard Bible and pastor of The First Chinese Baptist Church of Los Angeles.

Both of these Bible scholars will speak on prophecy as it relates to the current world situation, according to their interpretation.

The conference is set for 7 p.m. Sept. 8, and 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sept. 9. The church is located in Mill Valley's Scout Hall.

Larger Hall For Science Of The Mind

The Church of Religious Science (also known as Science of Mind), will be moving into the larger hall of the Corte Madera Recreation Center, 498 Tamalpais Drive, Core Madera, beginning tomorrow.

Dr. Kendall Bryson, minister-director, has been conducting Sunday services and classes since April of this year.

The Church of Religious Science, Marin County, was recently formed, incorporated and affiliated with the United Church of Religious Science, founded by Dr. Ernest Holmes.

The membership and attendance has continually grown in the past six months, with the beginning of accredited classes and their own newspaper, (The Science of Living), discussion and "rap" sessions and plans are underway for junior church, nursery, young adults, college and young marrieds groups, as well as men's and women's activities groups.

The music department is also growing, with the addition of Alma Wells, soprano soloist, who is active in the San Francisco Opera Chorus, and two organists, Judy Childress and Dorothy Childress, both active in Marin music organizations.

The philosophy of "Science of Mind", as stated by Dr. Holmes "is a correlation of the laws of science, the opinions of philosophy, and the revelations of religion applied to human needs and the aspirations of man."

Sunday services are held at 10:30 a.m., in the large hall, with coffee and social hour following, in the adjacent hall, Corte Madera Recreation Center.

Prayer And Praise Meetings To Start

The Community of Jesus will begin its fall prayer and praise meetings at Holy Innocents' Parish, 2 Tamalpais Drive, Corte Madera, on Wednesday, Sept. 5 at 8 p.m. for all people acquainted with or interested in the charismatic renewal.

The convenor is the Rev. Tod W. Ewald, rector of the parish. Those taking part will report on their summer encounters.

Adventists Have Booth At Fair

The Seventh-Day Adventist Churches of Marin, pastored by Preston Smith of the Novato Church and Harold M. Keehnel at Fairfax, are featuring their community services in the booth sponsored by the two churches at the Marin County Fair.

Spotlight is on the five-day plan to quit smoking, to be held this month; a weight reduction program; and classes in nutrition and cooking, both to be held in October.

Meat analogs will be featured in the latter.

CHRISTIANITY'S GREATEST RELIC

Tests Of Holy Shroud Due

By FREDERICK W. WINSHIP
UPI Senior Editor

PORT CHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — The shroud venerated by Roman Catholics for 600 years as the burial cloth of Jesus will be subjected to science's most modern investigative techniques in an effort to solve the mystery of the image of a crucified man on the 14-foot linen strip.

Former King Humberto II of Italy, owner of the relic, has given permission for the first scientific examination of the shroud in 42 years. It is expected to begin next fall at the Cathedral of Turin where the shroud is kept, according to the Rev. Peter M. Rinaldi. Father Rinaldi is vice president of the 6,000-member Holy Shroud Guild in the United States and author of a recent book on the shroud.

The Guild, which is headquartered at Corpus Christi Church in Port Chester, is raising funds by selling pictures of the face on the shroud to pay for such expensive processes as holography, a lensless photographic technique using laser beams. In addition to holography, Catholic authorities in Turin are considering spectroscopy, the Carbon 14 test, infra-red or ultra violet photography, and neutron activation analysis.

It was established in 1931 that the image is not a painting, but the Vatican has taken the position that it is not within the church's doctrinal definition to declare the authenticity of any relic. Despite this, several Popes have openly revered the shroud and Pius XI dedicated a prayer to it.

"There is no way to prove the shroud authentic beyond a shadow of a doubt," Father Rinaldi said. "What we're doing is challenging modern sciences to prove it is a fraud. The Vatican will not support authentication and is leaving it to the public for an objective evaluation which touches almost every field of science."

Father Rinaldi said an international commission will carry out the examination. The guild is pressing Turin to use three-dimensional holography because it has the ability to deblur optical images, a process developed by Dr. George W. Stroke of the State University of New York at Stony Brook.

The guild hopes that this will provide a distinct picture of the faint, rust-colored human imprint which permeates the linen. There is even a possibility that holography will provide a three dimensional concept of the man-in-the-shroud.

Spectroscopy would establish whether stains on the shroud are traces of human blood. Carbon 14 would establish the approximate age of the linen, which already has been identified as a Middle Eastern weave and pattern of the first to third centuries A.D. Neutron evaluation would identify the fibers and make it possible to pinpoint where they were grown.

Father Rinaldi said there is no assurance that science can identify the means by which the frontal and dorsal image of a five-foot-11 man of majestic, bearded countenance was ingrained in the cloth. A favorite theory is that powdered aloes, which were spread on Christ's shroud according to the Bible, reacted chemically to vapors from the body. Those who consider the image a miracle describe it as a quasiphotograph of Christ produced by the radiance of the Resurrection.

"I believe the truth lies in nature," said the priest, who viewed the shroud in 1933, when it was last on public display. "There were images of atomic bomb victims blasted into the walls of Hiroshima. Can science explain a possible radiation flash or can it duplicate how the shroud was removed from Christ's body without sticking when the blood had dried?"

Testimony of medical authorities who have examined the shroud strongly supports superficial evidence that it once covered the corpse of a man with wounds on his hands, feet and side, and traces of 125 lash strokes. All anatomical details of the nude image are correct as they would be in rigor mortis and consistent with death while hanging by the arms. Blood-colored specks and trickles on the front and back of the head print could have been caused by thorn punctures.

That a shroud said to be Christ's existed in Jerusalem is a matter of documentation as early as 120 A.D. when visiting St. Braulio of Seville viewed it. By 1201 the shroud was kept in a chapel in Constantinople, probably brought there by French Crusaders. It turned up in France in the 14th Century and was given to a Savoy ancestor of King Humberto in 1452.

Turin was the Savoyard dynasty's capital, and the shroud has been kept there rolled on a wooden staff in a narrow silver chest in the cathedral's royal chapel since 1578. It has been scorched, stained by water and patched, and may even be threatened by modern Turin's industrial smog, but its essential mystique remains—awaiting the verdict of modern scholarship.

REV. BYRON ESHELMAN
Will be interim minister

An Interim Minister Is Named

Rev. Byron Eshelman will begin serving as interim minister of the First Congregational Church tomorrow at 10:15 a.m., filling the post until a new minister has been selected. The church is at 8 North San Pedro Road, San Rafael.

Rev. Eshelman was chaplain at San Quentin and Alcatraz prisons for over 23 years. He is the author of "Death Row Chaplain," a contributor to many professional journals and has lectured throughout the U.S.

His special interest has been in the area of religious psychology and personality, and he teaches occasional classes at Lone Mountain College in San Francisco.

Rev. Eshelman is at present the director of the Community Counseling Service in Sebastopol and is a certified marriage, family and child counselor.

Classes At Seminary Will Begin Sept. 4

Classes begin Sept. 4, for the September term at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary at Strawberry.

According to Dr. Harold K. Graves, seminary president, a record number of new students are expected to register for classes this term and for the fall quarter in October.

"This is the first year students have been able to take classes from the seminary through the Los Angeles Center," Dr. Graves said. "Faculty members from the campus on Strawberry Point will be commuting to the Los Angeles area to lead classes and seminars for students who will continue to live in Southern California while working on degree programs from the seminary."

Registration for September term classes continues through Sept. 5. The term ends Sept. 28.

Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, owned and operated by the Southern Baptist Convention, was founded in Oakland in 1944 and moved to Berkeley in 1946. Dr. Graves became president in 1952 and played a major role in the seminary's move to Marin County in 1959.

is SUNDAY SCHOOL OUT-of-DATE?
It's never out-of-date to understand God, and man, and the true nature of the universe.
This understanding is what young people up to the age of 20 gain in our Sunday School.
They're taught a warm and practical Christianity, and how to apply it to everyday problems.
And as they study the Bible, together with Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, they're preparing to help solve the world's problems in the most forward-looking, fresh, and effective way.

The Sullivans Have A Forest In Their Tiburon Backyard

By DON KEOWN

William R. and Nancy Sullivan have a "forest" of more than 200 trees flourishing within the modest confines of their yard at 117 Jefferson Drive, Tiburon.

The trees fit snugly within the confines of the Sullivan property because they are bonsai specimens, the tiny and exquisite products of a hobby first taken up in 1955 and practiced in more recent years with increased enthusiasm and dedication.

Texas-born Bill Sullivan is an ex-Navy man, a retired senior chief petty officer now employed by the County of Marin as a building maintenance foreman.

He was still in the Navy 18 years ago when he visited the California State Fair in Sacramento and came under the enchantment of sizable displays of bonsai plants at the exposition.

RETURNING TO Marin, Sullivan visited a nurseryman and picked up 10 baby-sized starter plants — all pines. Next he visited the county library and checked out a book on the art of bonsai. Then he went to work upon his new acquisitions, coaxing them toward the diminutive perfection that is the goal of every bonsai artist.

"Too many people expect to develop a bonsai overnight," advises ardent hobbyist Bill Sullivan. "There is no such thing as an instant bonsai. And even if there were, it wouldn't be worth a nickel. You have to be willing to invest some time in a bonsai . . ."

Looking back, he says he chose the pine for his first project "because evergreens are pretty all the time. Deciduous trees have to kind of grow on you. For three or four months of the year, until you have trained yourself to really observe and appreciate them, they look like nothing."

His first attempt at bonsai, Sullivan says, turned out surprisingly well.

"Of the first 10, I still have eight," he says, "and they are pretty nice trees."

NAVY LIFE BEING the way it is, with the sailor often away from home, Sullivan was unable to take up bonsai more seriously until he left the service in 1959 and immediately went to work for the county.

Since then, he has devoted many hours to the hobby, acquiring, training, caring, exhibiting.

Wife Nancy, he says, was always appreciative of the beauty of the little trees, but at first did not involve herself in the work. Now she shares the toil and satisfaction with her husband, and is an enthusiastic hobbyist herself.

With their splendid collection now well past the 100-mark, "and running out of space," the Sullivans have long since diversified from the pines with which it all began.

IN A PARTIAL roll-call of his prized possessions, Sullivan reels off maples, zelkova, plumgranate, plum, liquidambar, Russian olive, pyracantha, Japanese boxwood, gingko, cotoneaster. . .

Sullivan will pick no personal favorite from among his trees.

"I have a high respect for all of them," he says. "In fact, that is one of my problems: I would never part with any of them. I have been offered some sizable sums for some of my specimens, but I didn't grow them for sale. I'm strictly a hobbyist."

As members of the Marin Bonsai Club, the Sullivans mingle regularly with their fellow hobbyists in the county.

"IT IS AMAZING how many bonsai growers there are in Marin," asserts Sullivan, "and how many really fine specimens there are in their collections."

Sullivan says he and his wife joined the club at the urging of other growers they met while buying their starter plants, and particularly at the suggestion of fellow county employee Davina Kosh "who kept telling me that, now that we were into this thing so deeply, we really ought to get into the club and swap ideas with other bonsai people."

Sullivan is now the club's immediate past president. (The current president is Mrs. Henry E. Beadle).

He is strong in his praise of the club which claims approximately 115 members and which meets, except for a July and August hiatus, on the fourth Tuesday of each month at 8 p.m. in the Marinwood Community Center.

SPEAKERS ARE heard, demonstrations are given and ideas are exchanged, and visitors are welcomed.

"It is strictly a relaxing club," says the past president. "I keep saying that it is the only organization I have been involved in that is dedicated to the enjoyment of its own members. Every other group I have known has gotten into the public service thing. There's nothing wrong with doing for others. It's wonderful. Still, it is nice to find one group that does for itself."

Dues are $8 a year for a couple, $5 for an individual. The club stages its annual show in the spring, and participates in such events as the Garden Club of Marin Fall Flower Festival, and the Fourth of July holiday fiesta at the Marin Art and Garden Center.

MEMBERS ARE exhibiting this weekend at their own county fair, and also take part in out-of-the-county fairs and shows. Their next major showing in Marin will take place Oct. 27 and 28 at the Garden Club's fall festival.

One of the big attractions of bonsai, Sullivan notes, is that it can be enjoyed by anyone and everyone, by men, women and children, all ages, and by the handicapped. "And you don't have to make any huge investment at the outset."

Thus the Marin club roster includes a real cross-section of the county's population.

Sullivan estimates that he averages an hour to an hour and a half a day working with his bonsais. "It is my relaxing period," he says.

HIS WIFE JOINS him on weekends. And if he is tied up with his job during the week, she takes over the watering and other chores.

"We have it arranged so that our trees don't tie us to the house," he says. "We can get away whenever we want to do so, without any ties or worries." Their daughter — Jimydene Randle — is grown and married, and works as a beautifian.

Whenever the Sullivans travel now, it is always with their eyes open for specimens they can convert into bonsais.

"Some of our very best trees are the ones we have found ourselves, although

THE GROWING OF BONSAI trees is a hobby that Mr. and Mrs. William R. Sullivan share in their Tiburon home. # Marin Women In Their 40s Are Going Back To College In Growing Numbers

A few years ago, if a woman wanted to "improve herself" she would probably have joined a cultural group, taken up a hobby or enrolled in adult education classes.

Today, with the changing role of women in the job market and in the home, a woman of any age is quite likely to attend college as a regular student.

More and more women are making the transition, particularly at the community college level, where tuition is not charged and admission requirements are not strenuous. At the College of Marin, the number of women students has steadily risen since 1968 from 37 to 44 per cent of the student body, and the number of students over 31 has increased from 3.4 to 7.5 per cent.

THE WOMEN'S reasons for returning to college differ. Some wish for self-improvement only, some have definite career goals in mind and still others are returning to find out just what they want to do.

The common bond in these returning women is their appreciation of an education system which assists them to change their lives at any age they wish.

Shirley Ferrero, 42, a mother of six from Corte Madera, says, "At the time when I needed it most, the College of Marin was like a friend with arms outstretched."

Mrs. Ferrero returned to college in 1972 after a break of 10 years. Her reason for returning was ""to get a good job that would pay more than a bare minimum salary and that would satisfy me mentally and emotionally."

Following her graduation this June, Mrs. Ferrero is attending University of California Berkeley, where she plans to receive a business degree to go on in accounting.

DURING HER YEAR at the College of Marin, Mrs. Ferrero went through a divorce, took care of her children who range in age from 4 to 12, and still managed to graduate with honors. This would not have been possible, she asserts, without the aid of special services offered by the college.

ANN NEWBOLD
A class with daughter

Her youngest child was placed in the campus child care center, allowing her to by-pass the cost of a babysitter. She also made use of the counseling department, both for curriculum planning and "when I felt I needed a good word."

The reaction of younger students to having Mrs. Ferrero in their classes was good. The only problem she encountered was a tendency on her part to play the "mother" role.

"A STUDENT pointed this out to me one day, and it was an eye-opening experience," she says.

Her own children were very proud of her return to school. Her eldest son, in fact, interrupted a baseball game in order to attend her graduation.

Ann Newbold, 41, of Fairfax, always knew that some day she would go back to school.

It was 18 years and six children after high school graduation when she finally decided to start taking classes at the College of Marin in 1969. At first she planned on working for a teaching credential, but because she became involved in journalism at the college, her plans are now uncertain. Mrs. Newbold served as copy editor of the College of Marin

PROFILE OF A MARIN COUPLE

For Katherine And Ned Mills, Newspaper Dream Comes True

MARIN LIVING

By REBECCA LARSEN

Many newspaper people dream of one day owning a small paper, but Katherine and Edward (Ned) Mills of Mill Valley are among the minority who have actually satisfied that desire.

Even though they are not Mill Valley natives, the two have become almost a local institution since 1963 when they took over the Mill Valley Record.

This is probably because few couples ever have been better suited to running a small weekly than they are.

They brought to the newspaper Katherine Mills' 20 years as a women's writer and columnist for the Newspaper Enterprise Association and Edward Mills' experience as Midwest business manager for the same organization.

THEIR SEARCH FOR a newspaper to buy began in the eartly 1960s when they were living in Barrington, a Chicago suburb.

"We had looked at papers in Ohio, Illinois and Nebraska, and none appealed to us," said Mills.

Mrs. Mills then suggested widening the search to the West Coast, and they answered an advertisement in "Editor and Publisher" concerning a newspaper in Soledad.

"The paper didn't look too bad, but then again it was not exactly the right town," said Mills. "Everyone there worked for the prison."

BACK AT HIS motel, he told the newspaper broker he wasn't interested. The man suggested he might have another possibility in Mill Valley. "He didn't know if he could get the Record or not, but the fellow who had bought it eight months before was unhappy."

Mills drove to Mill Valley, and shortly after Katherine Mills flew out to look at the paper.

They took it over in February 1963, although Mrs. Mills stayed in Barrington with the children a while to make arrangements for the sale of their house.

WHAT THEY FOUND in Mill Valley was a weekly, founded in the 1890s, which sometimes irritated residents with its strong political stands and which, Mrs. Mills said, sometimes looked like "a rewrite of the Independent-Journal."

According to the Mills, the paper's editor then, John Donhoff, introduced them to the town and its politics.

It was difficult getting known in the town at first, they admit. But the Mills plunged in by buying a home and Ned Mills joined several civic groups. He was president of the chamber of commerce for two years.

"MILL VALLEY IS an old, established city," said Mrs. Mills. "It has an entity newer cities don't have. It's not a one-class city, which contributes to its charm and unique quality. You don't wander in and think you're just anywhere. It has different kinds of architecture, ages and economic groups and interests.

"There's much greater interest in city government in Mill Valley than in the average commuter town. It's inconceivable, for example, that someone would be a councilman here for 20 years."

One of their early triumphs was talking the city council into switching its meetings from Wednesday to Monday nights so that the Record could carry its coverage five days earlier.

LIKE MOST WEEKLIES, the Record is published on Wednesdays, to pick up weekend grocery store advertising. With the meetings on Mondays, council stories were a week old by the time they reached readers.

Back then, councilmen went to the Office, a local bar, after meetings. "I polled them there," said Mills, "and told them I could give them better coverage with Monday meetings."

Councilmen agreed to try the idea and after a few weeks decided to switch permanently.

Other city agencies and groups followed by switching their meetings to Monday so they could get the same coverage.

"THE CHANGE REALLY turned the Record into a newspaper," said Mrs. Mills. "Most of the previous publishers hadn't wanted to get involved with the problem. The old way also meant they didn't have to face a deadline. They had several days to write a council story."

So Tuesdays became a rush day for the Mills. Stories must be written and printed so that the paper can get to the city post office by 11 p.m. Otherwise, they won't make it into Wednesday morning's mail.

"If anything goes sour at the paper, it goes sour on Tuesdays," said Mrs. Mills. "If any machine breaks down or anyone is hurt or ill, it happens then."

FOR YEARS, THE Mills struggled with an old-fashioned flatbed press which broke down continuously. Then they bought a used rotary which also made it possible to print more pages at a time.

Their first offices were on Corte Madera Avenue across from city hall. Today they publish on East Blithedale Avenue.

Theirs is one of the few Marin weeklies printed on its own premises instead of an outside printing shop. The personalized backshop means that the Mills can work close to a deadline, but it also means that they worry over mechanical as well as editorial and advertising problems.

THE PAPER GOES to 5,000 homes, and an advertising publication, the Southern Marin Shopping News, goes to 20,000 more, not covered by the Record.

Ned Mills runs the business side of things while Mrs. Mills is the paper's editor. They have one full-time reporter, David Richmond, and six parttime correspondents.

The Mills noted that they usually hire young reporters who go on to other jobs. "We don't try to keep them," said Mills. "We can't offer the money they should get as they get older."

GENERALLY, THE two agree on editorial policy but sometimes they clash and run separate editorials.

In the last election for a water district director, Ned Mills supported Jerome C. Hauke, and his wife stood for Dr. L. Martin Griffin Jr.

In 1972 they also split on who to support for congressman.

In 1968 they went to the Democratic national convention and had differing reactions to the riots in Chicago's Grant Park.

"NED FELT THAT Mayor Daley and his men did a good job, and I felt they didn't, and we wrote different stories on how we felt."

(The two have obtained reporters' credentials to attend the conventions of either of the two parties every election year since 1952 except for 1972.)

Mrs. Mills noted that it is hard to choose among Marin candidates "because you usually get four good men running for three different seats."

Born and raised in Nebraska, Mrs. Mills went to Scripps College in Claremont, Calif. After working on a Nebraska paper for a while, she went to New York and joined the Newspaper Enterprise Association where she met Ned Mills, working then as a sportswriter.

AFTER THEIR marriage, he joined the business side of the association and in 1952 became Midwest business manager.

He is a Los Angeles native and a graduate of the University of Richmond, in Virginia.

After Mills' promotion, they moved to Barrington, Ill., but Mrs. Mills continued writing a homemaking column for the Newspaper Enterprise Association.

She continued the column a while even after moving to Mill Valley but quit when the pressures of the Record grew too heavy.

THEY'VE BEEN married 25 years and have three children, Meredith, 23, Charles, 21, and Tyler, 17.

None of the children, the Mills said, want to follow up the family newspaper tradition.

"They've seen us put in a lot of hard work, and they're conscious of the paper all the time," said Mrs. Mills. "One mistake people often make in thinking about buying a little paper is believing that they're retiring to an easy life."

THE RECORD IS a newspaperman's dream, but it's the kind of dream built on perspiration and tears. It means worrying about presses breaking down and other weeklies stealing your advertising accounts.

"It isn't relaxed and easy living," said Katherine Mills.

"One mistake people often make in thinking about buying a little paper is believing that they're retiring to an easy life. It isn't relaxed and easy living," say these Mill Valley publishers, who, nevertheless, enjoy their work.

IN THE BACKSHOP or composing room of their Mill Valley Record offices and plant on East Blithedale Avenue, co-owners Edward and Katherine Mills check some type for a page being prepared for the next issue of their weekly newspaper. The husband-and-wife team took over the Record in February, 1963, after years of experience in executive and reportorial positions with the Newspaper Enterprise Association in the Midwest. Their own small weekly is the realization of a newspaper couple's dream, they agree. But it is a dream that also involves perspiration and tears.

Finally, the sports machine with seating for four. The hand-finished Mercedes-Benz 450SLC. Just to see it is worth the trip.

Only 2000 of them will be imported this year. But then, that's no more than you'd expect with a lovingly engineered, hand-finished sports machine like the Mercedes-Benz 450SLC.

Obviously, the 450SLC is no ordinary sporting automobile. It seats four, not the usual two. Lush leather interior is standard. So are the 4.5-liter, fuel-injected overhead-cam V-8 engine, 4-wheel disc brakes and a fully independent suspension system...a combination that gives you true sports car handling, braking and performance and luxurious 4-seater comfort and ride.

The 450SLC is a remarkable achievement, even for the engineers of Mercedes-Benz. In it, they've created a truly extraordinary machine.

There are few things in life quite like the Mercedes-Benz 450SLC. Yet it's surprisingly easy to experience. Call us. You'll see just how easy it is to arrange a test drive.

The Key To Successful Bonsai Is Patience, Declares Bill Sullivan

we also buy many from nurseries and specialty plant shops," Sullivan says.

THE ACQUISITION of tiny trees in the wild for training as bonsais is becoming increasingly difficult, Sullivan acknowledges, "because unless you know the landowner, it is harder and harder to obtain permission to search the property and to remove seedlings with a good bonsai potential."

And on public lands, such seedlings can be removed only under certain severely restricted conditions, and then with permits.

"Sometimes you will see a nice specimen while you are hiking in the outdoors, and it will be awfully hard to pass it up," Sullivan says. "But we resist temptation. We know we share a responsibility for keeping the good name of the bonsai hobbyist clean."

In the tightly fenced Sullivan yard, the 200 or so bonsai specimens forming an Oriental garden range from two inches to 24 inches tall. All are outdoor plants, although the Sullivans sometimes move some indoors temporarily for decoration when entertaining.

"AND WE PLACE them so that we can see and enjoy them from the house," says Sullivan.

As building maintenance foreman for the county, Sullivan has most recently been engaged in preparing the fairgrounds at the Civic Center for the 1973 Marin County Fair.

He is a man who likes to work with his hands, on the job and at home. Woodworking is another of his hobbies. And while most of his bonsais are kept in regular ceramic bonsai containers, he has built some of his larger planters of redwood and marine mahogany plywood, and cast others in cement.

Nancy Sullivan works part-time for the Polynesian House, sews and shares her husband's work and fun with his bonsais and in the garden. The Sullivans also grow a selection of waterplants around a fishpond in their backyard.

BUT THE BONSAI is their thing.

Sullivan can place no value upon the collection because he has never considered selling any of the specimens. "I know I have an awful lot of trees that $100 per plant wouldn't even begin to touch," he says.

"Of course," he adds, "I have seen bonsais valued at thousands of dollars — worth more than a car."

As for the key to successful bonsai, Bill Sullivan puts it into one word: "Patience."

"Too many people expect to develop a bonsai overnight," he says. "There is no such thing as an instant bonsai. And even if there were, it wouldn't be worth a nickel. You have to be willing to invest some time in a bonsai, if you are going to come up with something worthwhile."

IT IS DIFFICULT for Sullivan to realize now that there was a time when the engrossing hobby of bonsai was not a part of his life — that he was in Japan briefly as a serviceman and had no time or inclination to observe the bonsai for which the Orient is famous.

"In service, traveling all the time, you just don't have the chance to really put down roots and do the kind of thing we are doing now." With roots — hundreds of them — deep into the soil now, Sullivan revels in the way of life of a landlubber.

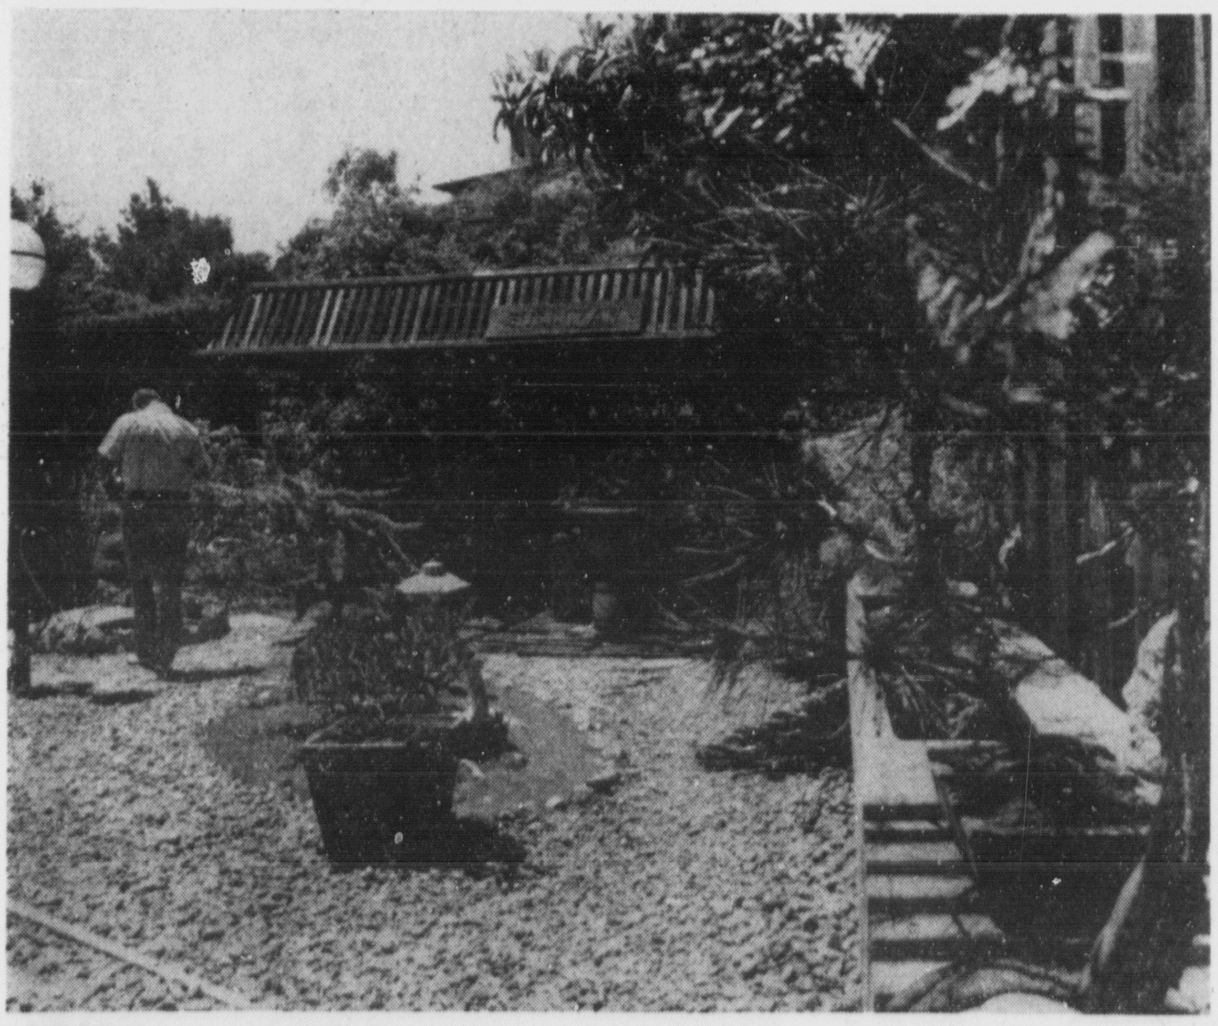

WILLIAM AND NANCY SULLIVAN prepare a liquid fish fertilizer for a feeding of their bonsai trees. On the shelves before them are, top and bottom, Monterey pines, and on middle shelf, a greasewood tree. The bonsai specimens are located immediately outside the Sullivan living room so that the occupants can enjoy the collection through the glass from inside the house. One of the satisfying aspects of bonsai as a hobby, Sullivan says, is that it is a family activity.

AT LEFT, what the camera has caused to appear a fair-sized shrub is actually a 4 to 5-year-old San Jose juniper that stands only an inch and a half tall, and is planted in a pot little larger than a thimble. Above, the Hinoki cypress presented to Sullivan by the Marin Bonsai Club in appreciation of his services as its president. Sullivan is now listed as "honorary adviser" on the club roster. The cypress, he says, is one of his more prized possessions in a collection of more than 200 bonsai trees that he shares with wife Nancy. He began his collecting in 1955, but has practiced it with increasing enthusiasm in more recent years.

THE BACKYARD OF the William Sullivan home in Tiburon is a rock garden in which are displayed to fine effect the many specimens collected by bonsai enthusiasts Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan. Here Sullivan inspects his fishpond. In background can be seen the lath house where some of the plants enjoy partial shade. The bonsai at center is a lemon tree, while the long-needled dwarf at right is a sugar pine.

A Look Inside That Historic Mansion—

By REBECCA LARSEN

Visitors to the Richardson Bay Wildlife Sanctuary in Tiburon are now getting to peek inside the gingerbread-trimmed Lyford-Dickey Mansion, a Bay Area landmark for almost 100 years.

Philip P. Schaeffer, newly appointed manager of the sanctuary, run by the National Audubon Society, is letting visitors look briefly at the house on Saturdays and Sundays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. (The sanctuary is open Wednesdays through Sundays.)

In October, Schaeffer plans an official opening of the Victorian house, which resembles a yellow and white wedding cake. Hours for viewing the house will be increased then, and volunteers will give more extensive tours.

SCHAEFFER SAID that in October the Audubon Society also will announce plans for a new interpretive center and manager's quarters to be built on the northeastern corner of the sanctuary property on Greenwood Beach Road. The present interpretive center, a small barracks-like building close to the mansion, will be torn down.

"And that will highlight the mansion even more on this site," he said.

At the new center, the society will have larger facilities for environmental education programs.

One reason the mansion has been closed to visitors before is it serves as quarters for the sanctuary manager and his family. The previous manager, Norman McIntosh, who now runs the Starr Ranch Audubon Society in Orange County, has four children, and his family needed the entire house.

BUT SCHAEFFER and his wife have limited themselves to a few rooms, which leaves the downstairs living room and some upstairs rooms to be viewed by visitors.

Once the new manager's quarters are built, the entire house will be open to visitors.

According to Schaeffer, the Audubon Society plans to seek more antique furniture for the house and will paper and paint inside next spring.

Several pieces of Victorian era furniture now line the living room, including an ornate piano. But only one sofa was used originally in the house, built in 1875 by Dr. Benjamin Lyford, who married the daughter of early Southern Marin pioneer John Reed.

Upstairs there is a Victorian skylight etched with floral designs and golf leaf trim along the tops of the walls.

A SECOND FLOOR library features several photos by Dr. Donald R. Dickety, California zoologist and ornithologist, who pioneered in techniques of nature photography.

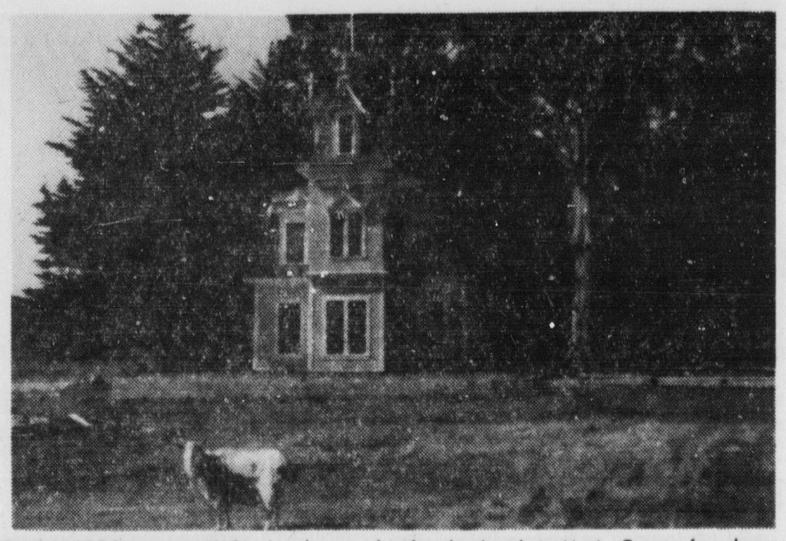

Exterior repairs were recently completed including a new wood shingle roof and paint job.

"For the past 15 years, the roof had been deteriorating, and there was some water damage inside," said Schaeffer. "We found the original 100-year-old shingles up there put together with handmade square nails."

The original site of the house was Strawberry Point, but in 1957 the Marin Conservation League, under President Mrs. Norman B. Livermore, moved the home to the Richardson Bay Sanctuary, also acquired by the league.

DR. DICKEY'S widow set up a memorial fund for restoring the Lyford home in honor of her late husband.

In 1957 the late Rose Verrall, widow of Arthur Ferrall, deeded her Richardson Bay front property to the Marin Conservation League for wildlife sanctuary purposes, and funds were raised for the acquisition of adjoining tidelands. The mansion was moved to the property as a headquarters, and in 1962 the ownership was officially conveyed to the National Audubon Society. The property now consists of more than 900 acres upon which birds and other wildlife are protected and observed.

THIS VICTORIAN MANSION has been a familiar landmark in Marin County for almost a century, first on Strawberry Point, its original site where it was built by Dr. Benjamin Lyford, son-in-law of pioneer John Reed, then at the Richardson Bay Wildlife Sanctuary, to where it was moved to serve as a headquarters building after Mrs. Rose Verrall deeded the property for conservation purposes. But while many have admired its exterior, far fewer have seen its interior. Now, however, visitors are beginning to be admitted to the downstairs living room (below) and to some upstairs rooms.

The Back-To-College Movement Is Growing Among Marin's Women

Times last semester, and as a reporter for a year.

WORKING WITH the younger students on the newspaper and in classes was easy for Mrs. Newbold. She even had one class with her 21-year-old daughter, an experience she describes as "really fun."

Mrs. Newbold chose the College of Marin for its size and convenience.

"I wanted a small institution," she states. "I only wish the College of Marin were a four-year college."

Next year Mrs. Newbold will probably go on to Dominican or Lone Mountain College as an English or history major. She is not sure of her exact plans, but says, "I want to keep on learning. There are so many things to learn that even if I got my degree, I'd want to keep going. There are enough new classes at the College of Marin alone to take up a lifetime."

JOAN PERKINS, 44, of San Rafael, was a registered nurse working in a hospital when she decided she wanted to return to school. A college degree, she decided, would help her to advance in the nursing field and to expand her knowledge.

Mrs. Perkins entered the College of Marin shortly after going through a divorce. She had no serious problems while enrolled in the college, in spite of some complex mathematics classes, because "everything is so easy there."

The expanded number of older students, noted Mrs. Perkins, have more of an effect on he teachers than on other students.

"Sometimes teachers would talk to the class in one way, and then to us in a different, more dignified way — as if we represented the older generation," she says.

YOLANDA FUGATE of Corte Madera found that her two years at the College of Marin gave her, above all, confidence.

Mrs. Fugate has worked for 18 years part-time as editor of California Auxiliary News for the American Legion, in addition to caring for two children. Not until she returned to her education, however, did she feel the strength and ability to seek full-time employment. This was a long-awaited return for Mrs. Fugate, a Heald College graduate of 1941.

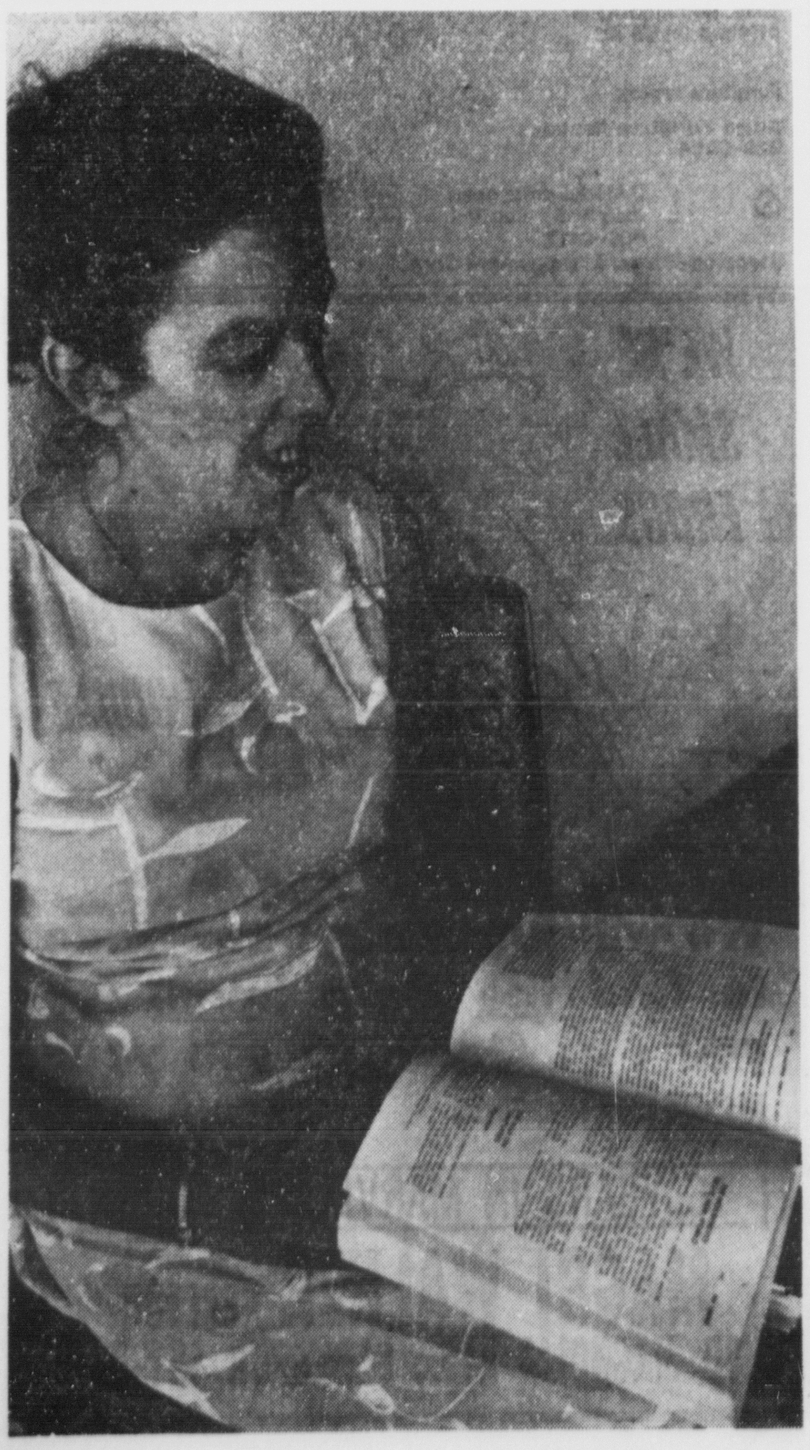

All of the women highly recommend a return to college for any woman who desires it. The rewards, they say, far outweigh the difficulties, and the knowledge and experience gained beats housework any day.

The College of Marin had planned a special program for older returning women, entitled "Women in Transition." Federal funding for the program was not forthcoming, but courses and counseling especially designed for women will still be offered. The classes, which are also open to men, are Career Planning, Aspects of Womanhood, Transactional Analysis for Woman, La Raza Women, Aspects of Black Womanhood, Your Body Your Emotions, and American Women: Mothers, Sisters and Lovers.

All will be offered this fall.

MRS. PHILIP SCHAEFFER, wife of the manager of the Richardson Bay Wildlife Sanctuary, sits in the living room of the Lyford-Dickey Mansion with its Victorian era furniture including an ornate piano. The historic house has served as living quarters for sanctuary managers, but plans call for the construction of new housing. The Lyford-Dicket Mansion will then be fully opened to the public. Now visits to parts of the big house are permitted on weekends.

MARIN WOMEN, past 35 and often mothers of children, are beginning to show up more and more on the College of Marin campus as regular students, sharpening their skills in their professions, preparing for new vocations, or attempting to determine the careers they wish to follow outside their homes. In photos by Waldo Bascom are, at left, Joan Perkins, a registered nurse, working for a college degree for advancement in the nursing field, and, above, Yolanda Fugate, mother of two who resumed her education to make the change from part-time to full-time worker. At right, Shirley Ferrero, mother of six and a graduate of College of Marin in June, is pictured receiving a Women's Council of Realtors scholarship check from Mrs. Steven Green.

The Gentle Kind Of Adventure

INFINITE RICHES by David Magee; Paul S. Eriksson Inc., 274 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The combination of a man with long practice in an interesting profession for which he has genuine affection, and possessing a keen memory and a gift for storytelling, including wit and humor, is certain to produce a delightful book.

All these elements come together marvelously in David Magee, San Francisco antiquarian bookdealer, and his "Infinite Riches."

Magee has subtitled his book "The Adventures of a Rare Book Dealer." Compared to the kinds of adventures we are accustomed to encountering between book covers, these are gentle ones, indeed. One tends to forget that there are intellectual adventures as well as physical adventures. But David Magee reminds us of this fact and gives us a refreshing, relaxing change of pace from the frenzy, violence and competitiveness of so much of our society and the books that reflect those attributes.

Magee begins his story with his boyhood in London, son of a vicar and scion of a long line of learned divines. His acquaintanceship and fascination with books was an early one.

Prevented from attending Oxford by his father's death, young Magee went to work in London with an import-export firm as a clerk, and to escape that tedium decided to leave England for California and a new career as a farmer. In San Francisco, instead, he went to work for John Howell, the city's foremost dealer in rare books, and it was not long before he was in the business for himself and pursuing the profession that was to claim his devotion to this day.

The remainder of Magee's book is largely a chronicle of the dealings by which rare books are transferred from one souce to collector, with Magee and others in his profession serving as the middlemen. Sometimes there is the added satisfaction of discovering the unrecognized or neglected work. Sometimes there is the excitement of the competition of an auction. Sometimes the gems must be sorted from the rockpile when huge collections are acquired in their entirety. Sometimes there is the sleuth-like search for a specific book or manuscript sought urgently by a collector-client. Sometimes there is the puzzle: Is the work in question authentic, or forgery?

David Magee makes his work as intriguing to the uninformed as it is beguiling to the informed. He makes of this very civilized and cerebral profession an also exciting and challenging experience. He involves his readers with some of San Francisco's most colorful characters, as well as with figures of world wide repute. And, best of all, he tells his stories with great humor and fine wit.

Magee is, himself, a writer of no mean skill, worth the attention of a collector interested, not in first editions and margin notations, but in hours of pleasant reading and re-reading.

Magee has a keen sense for anecdotes and their re-telling. One funny example deals with Ed Grabhorn of San Francisco's Grabhorn Press publishing fame.

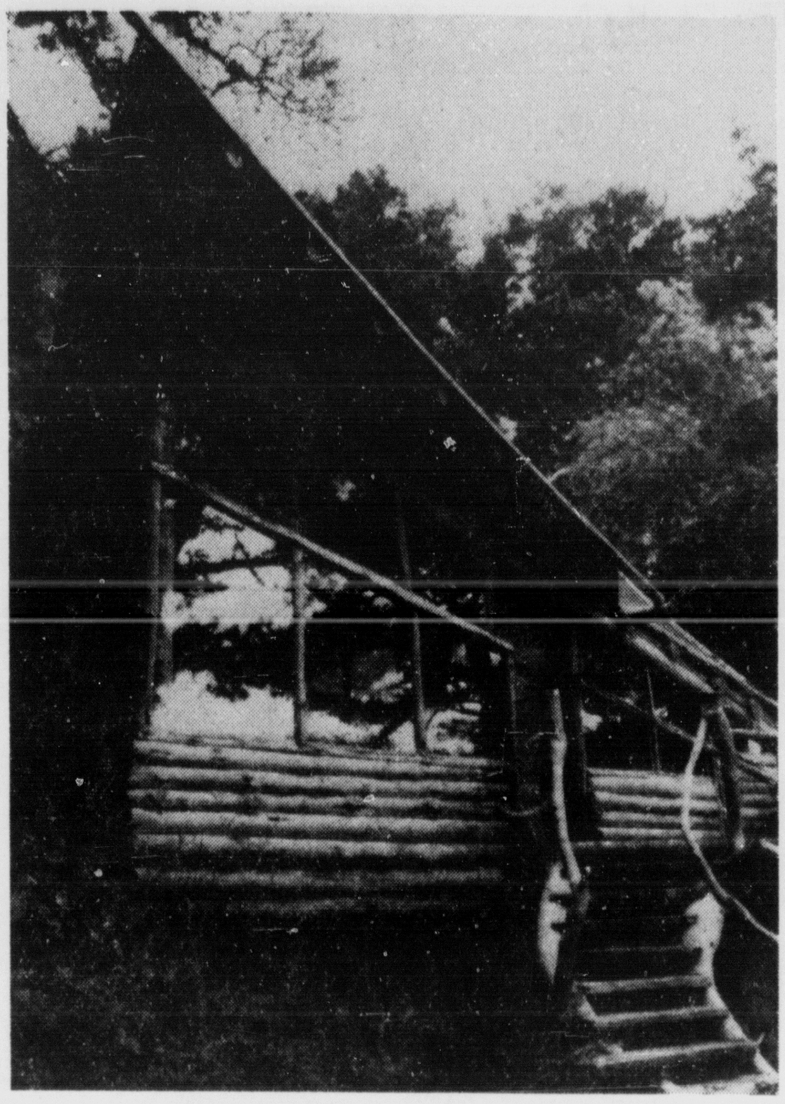

Grabhorn, interested in Oriental art, had purchased a Japanese print for a thousand dollars, his highest output for his collection to date, but a figure he regarded as a bargain.

Upon bringing the print home and while displaying it proudly to his wife Marjorie, they noticed an Oriental inscription on the back. Something that would further enhance the value of his find? Grabhorn took it into the kitchen and to their Japanese cook for a translation.

Ed handed it to him: "What's it say on the back?" he asked.

The cook took it to the window, studied it for a minute and then handed it back.

THE HOUSE YOU BUILD YOURSELF

JUST ABOUT the ultimate in the do-it-yourself realm is the handyman who decides to build his own house. And seemingly correlated with the energy and courage for such undertakings is an imaginative flair for design. The built-it-yourself house might be a simple, box-like creation. But more often, it represents a wedding of the builder's individualistic ideas and an adjustment to the available tools, materials and skill on hand for the job. The two shown here are from "Handmade Houses: A Guide to the Woodbutcher's Art" by Art Boericke, author, and Barry Shapiro, photographer, beautifully published with gorgeous color by San Francisco's Scrimshaw Press at $12.95. At left, the log cabin of a retired engineer with driftwood stairs. At right, the woodsy product of a local craftsman. The book is full of such owner-built structures, not only houses and cabins, but outbuildings of all kinds as well. "Now, our words and images will not tell you what to build nor how to build it," Boericke and Shapiro advise. "There are plenty of books for that. We hope that our book will show you some neat solutions to old problems, with gorgeous embellishments, and will tell you, if you look, that you needn't be a titan of carpentry in order to have a sprighly little outbuilding or a snug main house. Pleasure pause and enjoy." And a joy, it is. Shapiro's photography is extraordinary. And the selection of subjects marvelous. For example, a solarium from cement, old windshields, some colored glass and a carved door. Or a treehouse with running water. Even an ornate privvy. Even some advice on how to confront the municipal code-enforcers.

Glimpse Of Earlier Time Before Neon And Noise

POLPETTO by Frank Mele; Crown Publishers, 248 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Dianne E. Green.

Imagine a time, an earlier time, when the noises of horse-drawn carriages and streetcars could not obscure the talking and shouting, the greetings and arguments of the people who lived on the street. A time when, in fact, the street was a place to be, rather than a means of getting somewhere, and life was more than a 60 mile an hour blur of neon and billboards as seen from an automobile.

Picture that and you will know something of the appeal of "Polpetto."

The scene is the Italian sector of Rochester, N.Y., but it might be any immigrant neighborhood. The hero has the pretentious name of Cosimo di Montebello but he is neither pretentious nor does he resemble the stereotyped hero image. Instead, he is short and plain, and his friends call him Polpetto, the meatball.

"Polpetto" is a story of hope, the hope of a lonely immigrant who takes the worst kind of job just to survive. In America, at least, there is a chance of a better life. So, he roasts a lark and eats dandelion greens, satisfied in knowing that in Italy these delicacies were saved for the privileged few.

As a bachelor, Polpetto is an outsider. Uncomfortable in his celibacy, he consoles himself with exclamations of "blessed solitude!" but the words seem empty and the companionship of his friends at Faithful's bar just doesn't fill the void.

Better times are ahead though. Good luck and hard work enable Polpetto to leave the gang of men who, as they work on the city's sewer system are each day "digging their own graves." As a huckster, Polpetto is his own man. With his own horse and wagon he travels through the city peddling vegetables and earning the respect and good will of the community.

Best of all, he finds a wife, a woman to warm his bed, keep his house, bear his children and save his soul. A successful man, he writes to his young nephew in the old country, pledging to help him to immigrate to America. Life's circle continues.

Although such a happy ending may be questioned in its naivete, do read "Polpetto" for a refreshing glimpse of a lifestyle that is almost a memory.

Books: Assets Or Detractions To Your Decor?

LIVING WITH BOOKS by Rita Reif; Quadrangle/New York Times, 121 pages, softcover, $4.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Books are absolutely essential to the good life. Yet the household that has collected & and retained — these boons soon reaches the point where it feels itself drowning in its blessings.

"Living With Books" by Rita Reif of the New York Times staff is a reissue of a 1968 pictorial report on tasteful ways by which some have solved the problem of housing, or shelving, their books, making of them decorative assets instead of detractions.

As would be expected, most of the libraries, living rooms, dens, offices, children's rooms, bedrooms, even kitchens shown are in the eastern United States. But there are a few abroad, and even a couple on the USA West Coast.

The pictures and Miss Reif's brief text make the point that books, property displayed, add a richness and warmth to the home that few other decorative touches can equal. But generally Miss Reif and the photographers have dealt with those who have kept their bound possessions within reason. For those of us who have been unable to exercise such restraint and selectivity, the only "solution" still seems to be wall-to-wall stacks.

BROWSING BOOKMAN

One expects the fishes in the waters around the Hawaiian Islands to be exotic, and as described and pictured in a new edition "The Shore Fishes of Hawaii" by David Starr Jordan and Barton Warren Evermann, they do not disappoint.

The book was first published in 1905 by the United States Fish Commission. It has now been abridged by the Charles E. Tuttle Co. for a less technical market such as sportsmen and conservationists. The text, however, remains quite technical, but the illustrations, particularly the 73 in full color, will intrigue the layman.

Although in softcover, its $8.50 price tag would appear justified by the wealth of illustrative material and the detail of the descriptions.

"A SILENT TRAGEDY" is a collaborative effort from a husband and wife team, psychologist Peter DeCourcy and social worker-health consultant Judith DeCourcy about a problem that is causing growing concern in this country — child abuse. The two adopt the case history approach to the problem, and emphasize the protection of the child against parents whom they regard as the products of personality disorders and therefore poor candidates for the rehabilitation stressed by others.

It's a sickening record of pain and injury inflicted upon the helpless or near-helpless, with grave psychological as well as physical consequences. The victim often bears the scars into adult life.

The paperback book, published by Alfred Publishing Co. of Port Washington, N.Y., is priced at $4.50.

POCKET BOOKS (Simon & Schuster) has issued a $1.75 paperback edition of James Mills' big-selling novel, "Report to the Commissioner," about a New York Police Department scandal.

The Customs Bureau's Fight Against Drugs

THE SECRET WAR AGAINST DOPE by Andrew Tully; Coward, McCann and Geohegan, 281 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Walt Weyman.

This is a detailed account of the front line role of the United States Customs Bureau in the never ending battle to detect and confiscate dope, and to apprehend the men and women who smuggle the stuff.

Heroin, cocaine, hashish, marijuana and amphetamines are the drugs and the potential profit at each step along the line is the inducement to smuggle.

The author takes up case after case and tells how the agents of the Customs Bureau by deduction, by information received from paid informers and in some instances with a little bit of luck, are able to sieze shipments and nab the people involved. The smugglers try to secrete the dope in places and objects that will get it past the customs inspectors. They may succeed a time or two but the customs agents ultimately ferret out all of these hiding places just as they build up their cases against the dope merchants.

Lines of flow of the illicit dope are traced. From the poppy fields of Turkey through the underground chemists shops in Marseille and then to the U.S. was for long the standard route and the Cosa Nostra the bankers. Now dope comes in from South and Central America, the Caribbean, Mexico and as an aftermath of the long war, from Vietnam and the rest of the Indo-China countries.

The Customs Bureau is doing a first rate job; the author documents this, case by case.

NEW BOOKS FOR THE JUNIOR READERS

Children who have passed the picture book stage, and for whom the blush of the first excitement of learning to read has begun to fade, very often enter a period of non-interest in books.

There are other activities competing for their interest — especially the out-of-doors.

It is, of course, well and good that they should spend much time outside in the fresh air. But total neglect of books is not an encouraging development or omen for their future. The child should retain some interest in the written word, and the information that can be communicated through it.

One solution might be the selection of books for their consideration that tie in with their outside interest — science, nature, sports, mechanics, etc.

A good book imaginatively done can be as exciting as any experiment, nature discovery, game or puzzle.

"LET'S LOOK AT Reptiles" (Doubleday, $5.95) by Harriet E. Huntington, a Californian experienced in nature and science books for juniors, is a good example, with strong appeal for youngsters fascinated by off-beat members of the animal world. Miss Huntington not only supplies a text loaded with information about the members of a little understood and often maligned family of creatures, but also furnished an outstanding portfolio of photographs of lizards, turtles and their cousins. There are also some drawings by J. Noel to help her answer the questions of the naturally nature-curious child.

"To Find a Dinosaur" (Doubleday, $4.95) by Dorothy E. Shuttlesworth tells how man has gone about learning the stories of creatures long since disappeared from this earth — and what has been learned. It, too, is illustrated, although the text, not the pictures, are the backbone of this book. The author, a long time worker and writer in the field of natural history, has produced a readable text with specialized appeal to the youngster already with some pointing toward the field of paleontology.

"BIGFOOT" (Scribner's, $5.95) by Hal G. Evarts is a fiction book with a lot of appeal for the young outdoors-lover. It is built around the legends of Bigfoot, the hairy monster of the Idaho wilderness and other parts. Young Dingo Reed, hired out as a guide to an author-professor, suddenly finds himself enmeshed with the legend at which he had always scoffed. There's a mystery tint to the story. And a lot of good, fast action in the woods.

The automotive-minded boy, or girl, too, for that matter, should enjoy "Great Drivers, Great Races" (Lippincott, $4.95), another of the many sports books by Howard Liss. It tells the history of automobile racing, and something of the psychology of the men who risk life and limb for honor and monetary reward — and for the sheer satisfaction of defying danger. Junior readers might prefer more pictures than are provided. But the story is there, well told, and capturing a great deal of the excitement of a fast-rising sport with which a large section of America seems fascinated.

True Adventures Certain To Thrill Armchair Explorer

THE LURE OF SUNKEN TREASURE by Robert F. Marx; David McKay Co., 158 pages, $9.95. Reviewed by Richard B. Lyttle.

Robert F. Marx, an old hand at diving expeditions and at writing about them, tells of eight separate ventures which combine history, danger, valor and achievement. The underwater excavation of Port Royal, the location of two wrecks from Columbus' last voyage and diving to the bottom of the sacred well at Chichen Itza will thrill the armchair explorer.

Marx describes these ventures well, even when he was not personally involved in them. The book is fully illustrated with black and white and color photographs. This contributes to the book's high price, but the pictures are vital to the stories.

No fiction writer can beat this for modern adventure. We look forward eagerly to the next from Bob Marx.

SLEUTHS & SUSPENSE

SOMEONE'S DEATH by Charles Larson; Lippincott, 215 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Mary Leydecker.

Next to England, some of the best mysteries seem to be set in, of all places, Southern California. There are plenty written with a San Francisco background, too, but maybe it's because we're too close to be taken in by the fog-shrouded-city-at-night syndrome.

There's something, though, about the unreal world of films in the south along with the unlikely cast of characters who inhabit it that makes a perfect setting for a who-dunnit.

"Someone's Death" is an uninspired title, and the book's jacket portraying a pretty but hammy television actress seems unlikely to lead anyone to buy the work.

However, the story of television producer Nils-Frederik Blixen's efforts to clear his attractive young assistant of murder charges is really a pretty good yard.

The cast includes a lovely variety of Southern California types — "Boom-Boom", who used to be a nude drum dancer in Paris, a child who's right out of "Bad Seed," and a lot of television types.

Blixen, who is in the throes of getting together a television series featuring a detective named Stagg, turns into a real detective to solve the mystery in the best Perry Mason tradition.

Something Good From The Oven: Cake For Dessert, Bread For Life

By MAXINE KEOWN

Whether you prefer cake or bread, there's a new cookbook to serve your taste.

For those with a sweettooth, "Cake Bakery: A Book of Recipes," published by M. Evans and Co. at $6.95, is guaranteed to satisfy your hunger — and quite probably to add an inch or two to your waistline.

It is the work of Hazel G. Zenker, who earlier gave us "Cookie Cookery" and who formerly was a partner with her late husband in a cake decorating school in Chicago. Now she and her daughter run a pastry business in Winston-Salem, N.C.

Mrs. Zenker differs from some other experts in that she does not sneer at packaged mixes. She even includes a chapter of "tricks" that can be used to give a mix cake added zest. But for the traditionalist who prefers the scratch cake, there are plenty of these too — some 300 recipes in all. Mrs. Zenker has devised a convenient chart method of presenting her recipes in which instructions for its use are immediately adjacent to each ingredient.

All the old favorites from Angel Food Cake to Chocolate Cake to Fruitcake to Banana Cake are included. But there is a wealth of more unusual suggestions — such as Raisin-Orange-Nut Cake, Peanut Cake and Almond Ginger Torte. And a large assortment of icings, all of which sound good. Plus some of the author's expertise on decorating the cake.

Keep away from this one if you, or hubby, are on a diet. But if calories don't count with you, then "Cake Bakery" is a dandy find.

BREAD SUPPOSEDLY is the poor cousin of cake, but for those with access to fresh, homemade bread, it is food for royalty. And the health conscious can indulge without guilt — even weight-battlers if they don't overdo it.

"Bread: Making It the Natural Way" (Lippincott, $7.95) by Joan Wiener and Diana Collier is as good a bread book as you are likely to encounter. It's an East-West collaboration, Mrs. Wiener living and writing in San Francisco, Mrs. Collier residing in New Jersey. They have put together a really fine guide to the kinds of bread grandmother used to bake — and even some she never knew. The complete range of breads is covered, from yeast breads, both whole wheat and white, to the French and Italian loaves, the ryes, the rolls, the muffins, Middle East flatbreads, even doughnuts, and then the quick breads, tea breads, muffins, biscuits, scones, pancakes and waffles.

The directions are unusually complete and comprehensible. And while the natural ingredients are preferred, they are not required. So even if you aren't into the natural food thing, this is a good book for you if you'd like to fill your kitchen with that heavenly, ovenly kitchen odor that is one of creation's greatest smells. And fill your menfolk with the staff of life, and an appreciation of your baking.

Camping On The Indian Grounds

By SHARON ST. GERMAIN

If you enjoy camping, you've probably sampled many popular areas. But if you haven't camped on an American Indian reservation, you've yet to discover a unique adventure.

There are Indian campgrounds in at least 17 states, many open on a year-round basis. Most are located on or near excellent fishing lakes and rivers, with a menu of activities to suit every taste.

The Indians have only begun to tap their potential. Tribal tourism — still in its infancy — is one of the most recent ventures of a people determined to survive economically and preserve their own identity and heritage.

NOWHERE IS success more apparent than on the Fort Apache Revervation in east-central Arizona, where the official Apache welcome is "hon-dah" or "be my guest." After a century of bare existence from the sale of cattle and timber, the Indians have established a profit-making corporation — the White Mountain Recreation Enterprise.

Reservation boundaries comprise some 1,600,000 acres, with over 400 miles of clear trout streams and 26 remote man-made lakes. Waters are always well-stocked, and the trout season is open year around.

You can sample from more than a thousand clean campsites with picnic tables, fireplaces and sanitary facilities. Dipping heavily into tribal funds, the Apaches have constructed access roads, boat docks and modern trailer parks.

Despite continual improvements, they're always careful to preserve the primitive flavor of the area.

MUCH OF Apacheland consists of lofty mountain peaks and colorful river valleys. You can choose your own climate, from semi-desert at lower elevations, to the mountains where the temperatuge drops briskly at night.

Hawley Lake is a favorite haunt of fishermen and the pride of the 6,000-member Apache tribe. The Indians built the lake some years ago under armed guard, the result of a dispute over water rights. Nestled in the mountains, its seven and a half miles of shoreline are heavily wooded with pine and aspen.

Besides a valid Arizona fishing license (resident $15, non-resident $18) and trout stamp, anglers over 14 need a reservation fishing permit, and camping fees are extra.

Expensive? For a family of four, two weeks will set you back around $60 — not bad for a stay at the poshest privately owned recreation spot in the Southwest.

WHAT'S MORE, you're welcome at rodeos, authentic ceremonials, and other gatherings held throughout the year. The highlight of the season is the annual fair, staged this Labor Day weekend at tribal headquarters in Whiteriver on the reservation.

Besides attending ceremonials and fishing, you may hike and explore anywhere on the reservation.

Certainly, a visit to old Fort Apache is worthwhile. From here, General Crook pursued the elusive Geronimo and his band until the final surrender in 1886. Many of the original buildings remain; some are now used as schools.

Northwest of Apacheland is another scenic bastion, one that points to the future of the Indian tourist effort. The unusual resort — located on the Warm Springs Reservation in north-central Oregon off U.S. Highway 26 — is owned and operated by the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs, Wasco and Paiute.

ACCOMMODATIONS include — among other things — 11 tepees near the resort complex. Each will sleep up to 10 people comfortably. They're hand-crafted with wooden plank floors and dew flaps, and have center-rock fire pits for cooking.

These are popular, so if you're interested, you'd be wise to reserve one in advance. The rate is $7.50 a night, and you supply your own sleeping bags.

Camping is not limited to the resort area, and facilities are all first class. Nightly fees run $2 per tent; trailer spaces with hookups are $3.50.

For the sportsman, there's good trout and salmon fishing along several rivers and in high Cascade Mountain lakes. Reservation angling fees vary at campsites, but generally run $1 a day plus your state license.

COLORFUL INDIAN dances are held every Sunday afternoon at the Kah-Nee-Ta resort in an open space for the public.

There's horseback riding, boating, biking, golf, swimming and exploring strange rock formations, caves and canyons.

The Indians appropriately named their resort Kah-Nee-Ta or "gift of the gods" for the mineral hot springs that have bubbled from the ground for countless generations, now feeding an Olympic-sized pool. An ambitious people, their ancestors were nomads who placed a premium on the few wordly goods they possessed. In a sense, they were the first American capitalists.

Somewhat less posh, but equally scenic, is the Fort Berthold Reservation near New Town, N.D. Campsites vary from primitive to ultra-modern, and most are free in a season open from June through September.

THE RESERVATION lies along the great Missouri River on its eastward journey through the state. Here its rustic shorelines cut deeper inland for 178 miles along Lake Sakakawea, a creation of the Garrison Dam. Fort Berthold inhabitants are the Affiliated Tribes of Mandans, Arikara, and Gros Ventre.

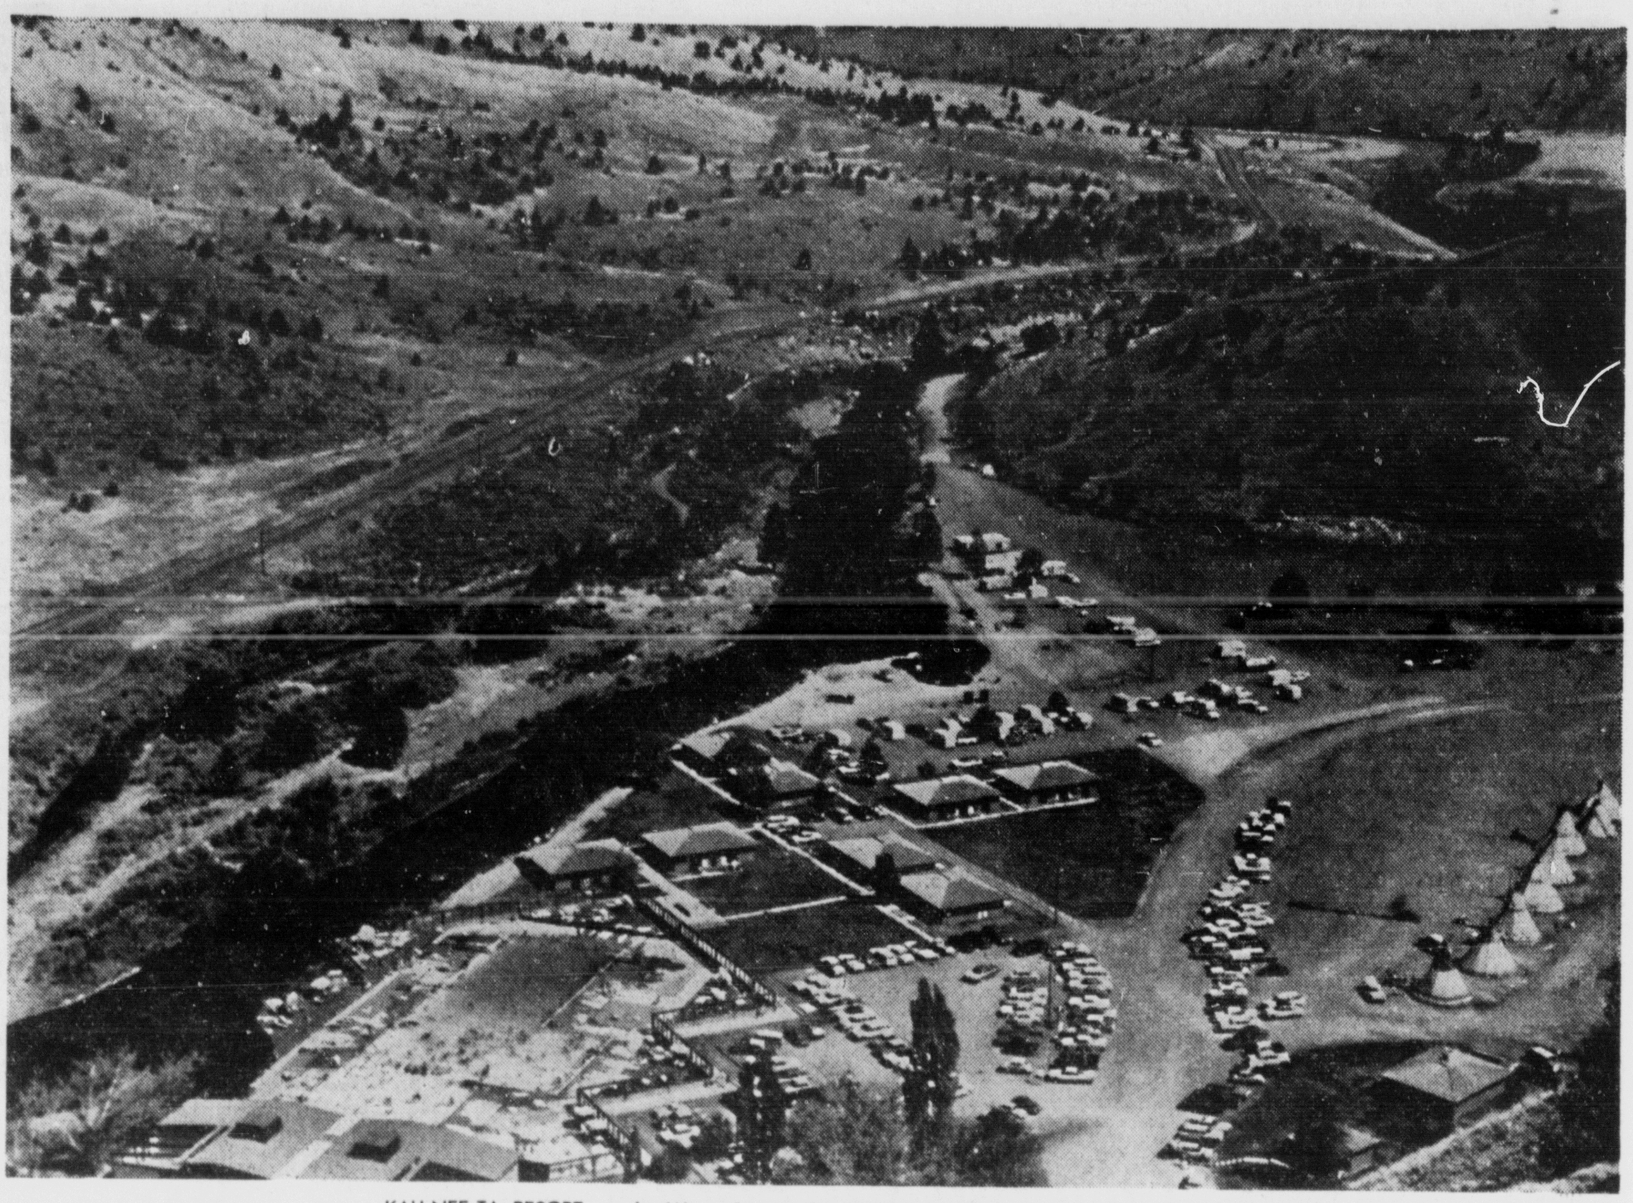

These Plains Indians first settled here in 1845 around the trading post of the flourishing American Fur Co. All three groups were once nearly wiped out by disease and hostile Sioux, but now number over 3,500.

The tribes presently have a $1,600,000 tourism complex completed three miles west of New Town on State Highway 3. This includes an enclosed pool, 24-unit trailer park, marina, laundromat and picnic areas.

You'll find excellent fishing, trail riding, and a variety of water sports.

YOU CAN VISIT reservation schools and Custer's Ree Scouts Cemetery, a reminder of the 47 Arikara scouts killed with Custer in the battle of the Little Big Horn. There's more — including the Garrison Dam, which has forced painful relocation of the Indians to the highlands.

A mixture of strains and traditions, the Buffalo Plains Indians have become the recognized symbol of the American Indian. Their lands extend from the Dakotas and Minnesota to Oklahoma — an excellent place to concentrate because it is a true melting pot of tribes.

KAH-NEE-TA RESORT on the Warm Springs Reservation in north-central Oregon is owned and operted by the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs, Wasco and Paiute, and offers vacationers first class camping facilities, teepees, mineral hot springs, Indian dancing and such outdoor activities as horseback riding, boating, biking, golf, swimming, fishing and the exploration of a fascinating geology.

The northern Oklahoma Osage place no restrictions on camping, such as occur elsewhere. There are campsites along several good fishing lakes like Keystone and in Osage State Park at Pawhuska. With open winters, it's possible to visit here anytime during the year.

PAWHUSKA IS center stage for sightseers. There's an Osage Tribal Museum and County Historical Museum which are open at no cost. Indian ceremonials and powwows are numerous and frequent.

If you're heading east, a long-term stay is prescribed anytime during the year on the Cherokee Reservation, Cherokee, N.C. — reached by way of U.S. Highways 19 and 441.

The latter is gateway to Great Smoky Mountains Park, a mecca for hikers, campers, fishermen, and just plain fresh-air addicts. This reservation is the largest in Eastern America, and costs do run higher, but so do the extras.

You can pick from hundreds of campsites on 16 major campgrounds, ranging from remote to close in. Most areas are on enterprise fishing waters, and nearly all have modern facilities, including showers and restrooms. Basic fees run $4 per night.

Twice a week trout streams and ponds are stocked with Rainbow, Brown and Brook beauties, and the numerous artificial pools make ideal angling spots for youngsters.

For a taste of Indian culture, a stroll through Oconaluftee Indian Village lends a vivid impression of an 18th Century Cherokee community. There's an admission charge of $2.50 for adults, $1.25 for children 6 to 13.

Here and elsewhere, the major goals of tribal tourism — propserity and brotherhood — are far reaching. However, much has already been achieved. Beyond this, the American Indian fully intends to make the most of his bountiful resources, but never to the point of spoil. For campers, that's good news.

Dollar Still Has Buying Power In Petticoat Lane

In one area of London, the dollar's buying power is still healthy.

That area is "Petticoat Lane," an open air market dense with pushcarts and raucous with the shouts and murmurs of hawkers, situated along London's Middlesex, Wentworth and Goulston streets, 10 to 15 minutes walk from the Tower of London.

From cockles to curios, every conceivable type of merchandise can be purchased somewhere along "the lane." Carpets are displayed on walls of makeshift shops, and in tiny enclosures English sartorial history is portrayed by figurines which can be purchased at modest prices.

The atmosphere, best experienced on a Sunday morning, is grab-all, particularly at some of the clothing stalls where outfits are piled haphazardly one on top of another. Buyers are not reluctant to try on a garment in front of an amused audience, and the comments on these sometimes intriguing antics are as saucy as those at some off-Broadway stage shows.

From boistrous hoydens peddling music sheets to Chinese sailors nibbling on sweetmeats, Petticost Lane's assortment of street characters could easily pose for Hogarthian caricatures. Hawkers of all sizes and shapes accost travelers with sales pitches that vary in decibels from full-bodied circus barking to tender love calls.

Essential to the character of "the lane" is the bargaining and hawkers would be disappointed if they weren't challenged by customers. Around most stalls and pushcarts, the babble of the price battle is heard.

The "Petticoat" section of London has drawn crowds since the days of the Romans. It was the site of hangings, pyres, pillories and slaughter houses, but today's traveler to the area seeks bargains instead of bloodshed.

Don't Overlook Stopover Privileges That Are Part Of Your Plane Ticket

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

There are ways of stretching your travel dollars even in these days of devaluation and inflation.

For instance, many Americans fail to take full advantage of their air tickets mainly because they are not aware of stopovers and other extras that may be included. Depending on the type of fare and the time of year, travelers can save hundreds of dollars on flights.

So said Bern Marcowitz, U.S. public relations manager for the Portuguese airline TAP.

"AIR FARES ARE horrendously complicated, but one important general rule to remember is that when you buy a ticket between two international points, what you are often really buying is a certain number of air miles," he said.

"The permitted mileage between where you leave from and your farthest point usually allows stopovers just as if you had flown directly."

He noted that there are exceptions, such as the lowest priced 22-to-45 day excursion and youth fares, which prohibit any stopover along the route but added:

"TUCKED AWAY in the crazy quilt of air fare regulations, there are quite a number of bargains and extras."

TAP can offer American passengers savings up to nearly $400 on trans-Atlantic services during the fall and winter months, Marcowitz said. He gave the following examples:

All fares quoted are weekday fares from New York and do not include the $3 U.S. travel tax.

The regular economy round trip fare to Lisbon is $626 during the peak summer season but drops to $514 during September and October and to $456 in November. And you can still fly at no extra charge to the Azores and Madeira.

THE GROUP Inclusive Tour (GIT), usually sold for two week periods, offers additional savings at $256 from Sept. 1 to Dec. 31. Anyone can qualify for GITs if he buys a specified amount of pre-paid land arrangements together with a specified number of other passengers. There is a one-week GIT for $234, plus land cost which can run as low as $70, available after Nov. 1.

The travel agent or airlines will put the group together.

For the real bargain hunters with the time, there's the 22-to-45 day excursion fare — $255 during September and October and $233 from Nov. 1. That's $393 below the summer economy fare. However, no stopovers are permitted.

THEN THERE is the 14-to-21 day excursion fare of $370 to Lisbon from Sept. 1 to Dec. 31 which includes two free stopovers in each direction. But for $13 more you can fly to and from Madeira.

For another $21.50 (or $390.50) you can include London and the Portuguese resort province of the Algarve (New York - Lisbon-Faro-London-New York). For an additional $35 (or $405) you can fly New York-Lisbon- Madrid-Paris-London- New York.

Marcowitz said TAP also flies from Boston to the Azores. He said the Portuguese islands in the mid-Atlantic and Lisbon also are free stopovers on most air fares to south and central Europe, Africa and the Orient.

SIMILAR SAVINGS and stopovers are offered by other member airlines of the International Air Transport Association (IATA), which sets fares and other regulations, Marcowitz said.

"You may have to use more than one airline which is why it is often best to use a reliable established travel agent who represents the major carriers and can help make sure you fare well," he said.

AFRICAN GUIDEBOOK COVERS CONTINENT

Africa doesn't yet pose any threat to the Riviera, London, Hawaii or Acapulco as a destination for American tourists. But still, more and more tourists are being drawn to the Dark Continent, lured by its big game, fascinating cultures and magnificent geography.

A contemporary and truly comprehensive guidebook covering Africa, tip to tip, has been unavailable to such visitors. But not anymore.

Two American-born Africa-watchers, Philip M. Allen and Aaron Segal, have collaborated on the $12.95 blockbuster, "The Traveler's Africa," published by Hopkinson and Blake, New York.

Both have enjoyed lengthy residences in Africa, Allen as a diplomat, educator and scholar, Segal as a student, foreign correspondent and educator. They have recruited other westerners with firsthand knowledge of Africa to assist them in their project.

One by one they take up each African nation, and cover it thoroughly — its history, its culture, its geography, its monetary system, its accessibility, its internal transportation, its accommodations, its cuisine, its sights, its shopping possibilities, the attitudes of its people, its climate, its communications and its emergency facilities.

This with some solid general information on traveling in Africa does not make for the kind of book you pack along in your pocket, or even in knapsack or luggage. It is 972 pages thick, and heavy. But the notes you can gleam from those pages should prove invaluable to the tourist bound for one or more African states.

THERE'S PRACTICAL advice like:

"Don't get sick in Burundi. Medical facilities in the capital are poor and elsewhere in the country awful."

Don't include unfriendly Uganda in your itinerary under any circumstances, for the present.

Chad's cost of living is almost prohibitively high for foreigners.

And Dahomey's water is not to be trusted.

BUT THE BULK of the book's information is much less discouraging.

In Libera you'll find good American cooking, both soul and white.

Ghana's attractions range from a capital with bustling nightlife to a couple of dozen castles to lovely botanical gardens and colorful local markets.

Sierra Leone cloth is abundant, of excellent quality and inexpensive.

New tourist establishments are burgeoning on the beaches and in the heartland of Mauritius, and good Chinese and Indian fare is available there.

From Maun in Botswana you can hire a dugout canoe to visit the game infested Okavango Swamp reminiscent of Humphrey Bogart's struggle in "The African Queen," or you can fly to isolated and exotic spots in the Kalahari Desert.

And, of course, there are the great game preserves, the falls, the mountains, etc.

"The Traveler's Africa" seems certain to stand for many years as THE guidebook to a continent of growing importance and interest, perhaps updated periodically, but with the new material resting on a firm foundation provided by Drs. Allen and Segal and their co-workers in this splendid initial edition. D.K.

Visitors To Capital Cross The Potomac For Best In Eating

TRAVEL PAGE

Some of the best wining and dining in our Nation's Capital isn't in Washington at all.

Across the Potomac River the early 18th Century city of Alexandria is attracting more and more of Washington's visitors for shopping, sightseeing and food.

Originally settled by Scottish merchants, Alexandria is perhaps best noted for its many associations with George Washington, whose Mt. Vernon Plantation lies just eight miles to the south.

According to the American Automobile Assn., the first President worshipped in Alexandria's Christ Church, patronized the city's apothecary shops, and often dined at Gadsby's Tavern — a center of community activity during the years leading up to the American Revolution.

GADSBY'S NO longer serves meals — although it is a "must" sightseeing stop for any Alexandria visitor — but within a short radius of the historical eatery are enough modern-day dining spots to gladden the heat of most gourmets.

Unique is the city's newest — a restaurant offering cruises to dine by.

Le Bateau Alexandria is a 100-foot floating dining room seating as many as 200 people for luncheon and dinner cruises from Alexandria's waterfront up the Potomac past Washington. The luncheon cruise — leaving at 12:30 week days except Monday, 1 p.m. on Sunday — features such dishes as Breast of Chicken Romanoff and Salad Parisienne at $6.50 prices exclusive of beverages, taxes and tips.

THE THREE-HOUR evening cruise departs at 7:30 during the summer months, 7:15 throughout the rest of the year, and features — aside from the spectacular river view of Washington's spotlighted monuments — a jazz trio for dancing and a menu which includes Tournedos de Bouef Henry IV and Roast Capron Pojarsky. Prices start at $9.75. All prices, of course, include the cruise as well as the food — a real bargain if ever there was one.

For landlubbers who prefer terra firma when dining, Alexandria has a variety of fine offerings.

For continental cuisine, there's the Kings Landing, located in a restored Colonial townhouse on Union Street. Specialties here include artichoke vinaigrette, crepe farcie with crabmeat, and Coquille St. Jacques thermidor. Kings Landing is open for luncheon and dinner and during good weather features outdoor dining under a parachute canopy.

DEVOTEES OF Southern cooking will appreciate The Old Club, located on Alexandria's main north-south street. Located in an old Colonial house which was once the Club House for such notables as George Washington and George Mason, and where Washington's club room is still preserved, the Old Club features peanut soup, Southern fried chicken, sugar cured hams, turkey and pecan pie.

From Southern cooking to Italian gourmet might seem like quite a leap — but not in Alexandria.

Il Porto restuarant, located in a restored warehouse on King Street, is a pasta-lover's delight. The menu features such items as chicken cacciatore, polpettone, lasagne, and Italian vegetable salad.

NEARBY IN another restored warehouse is, appropriately enough, The Warehouse. Good old American hamburgers, prime ribs and steaks make up the menu here.

The AAA recommends reservations at all of Alexandria's restaurants, especially for dinner, and most certainly for the crowded tourist season.

IT IS HARVEST TIME on one of the tea estates of Malayasia's Cameron Highlands, and workers pluck the tender shoots from the bushes. Tea was first planted in 1926 at the experimental agricultural station at Tanah Rata, and its cultivation has thrived and expanded ever since in the cool climate of the Highlands. Coffee, cut flowers, rubber and fruit are other products of the region — plus scenery and tranquility.

If You Really Want To Get Away From It All. . .

By JEANNE WALDEN

Malaysia's Cameron Highlands are a vacation within a vacation.

Only 140 miles from the modern capital at Kuala Lumpur, the Highlands are a rural paradise where there are no distracting television sets and only fuzzy radio reception.

Tired of airplanes, the big cities, the rush and noise and endless sightseeing? Here is the ideal place to take a break and get away from it all.

Cameron Highlands is an easy three-hour train ride and one-and-a-half hour bus ride from Kuala Lumpur. You can sit back and comfortably get a close look at jungles, hillsides terraced for the cultivation of tea, rubber and coffee, mango orchards, all interspersed with fields of nasturtiums and brilliant blue morning glories. The route ascends so gradually from sea level that only the drop in temperature will tell you that you've arrived at the 5,000-foot resort.

THREE TINY townships are nestled here among tropical mountain peaks, surrounded by rain forest and some of the lushest farm land you've ever seen.

The first of these, and lowest in altitude, is Ringlet, the agricultural center for the area. A few miles and a thousand feet up is Tanah Ratah, the principal township, a bustling little community with a half-dozen modern luxury hotels. Two miles farther and still higher is Brinchang, which has been called a "modern Shangri-la."

Lovely villas dot the hillsides near here. All have at least two bedrooms, bath, living and dining rooms and servants' quarters, and may be rented at quite reasonable rates from the corporations which maintain them for their employees.

LIFE IS EASY in Cameron Highlands. The visitor creates his own amusements.

Golfers will be happy with the course at Brinchang. It is well-known throughout Malaysia, but there are no crowds and no waiting in line. Green fees for visitors are nominal as are the fees for equipment rental, and there is a little clubhouse near the course with a restaurant and bar for relaxing between rounds.

Tennis and badminton courts are also available for the energetic. You can swim in a man-made lake or in a natural pool in the jungle at the foot of Parit Falls.

THE MOST appropriate exercise here, though, is walking. Explore the terraced hillsides where farmers grow tomatoes, giant cabbages and various fruits. There are vast flower nurseries here, too, where over 400 varieties of roses are under cultivation, along with gladioli, carnations, and chrysanthemums. The blooms are sold at cut flower markets throughout Southeast Asia.

Or visit one of the several tea plantations. Here you will see men and women in colorful dress gathering the tender shoots into baskets they carry on their backs, and you can see the factories where the leaf is withered, rolled in massive machines, fermented, dried, and packed.

The little tea bushes you see here, by the way, are the same ever-bearing plants which the British introduced into the area in 1926.

THE BEST walking, though, is on the well-maintained jungle paths. Take a picnic lunch and try the paths that lead to the waterfalls. Temperatures are comfortable for hiking, and the exotic displays of jungle flora and fauna (trees, orchids,ferns, brilliantly colored butterflies and deer) may turn you into an amateur botanist or biologist on the spot.

Other jungle paths lead to the villages of the local natives, where 50-foot longhouses are built on stilts for protection against floods.

The village menfolk still prowl the mountainsides in search of wild game or birds which they bring down with poison darts puffed through six-foot blowpipes. The men are always happy to demonstrate their deadly skills to visitors.

Climbing is also easy to such mountain peaks as Gunong Beremban at 6,041 feet; Gunong Brinchang at 6,666 feet; or Gunong Irau at 6,924 feet. On a clear day you can see as far as the Straits of Malacca, over 50 miles away.

YOU DON'T HAVE to indulge in really heavy exercise. After all, Cameron Highlands is a lazy man's holiday retreat. But the food throughout the district is so varied and delicious that you'll find you need to walk to keep the extra pounds off.

In most of the hotels you can choose from Western or Eastern cuisine. Try Malaysian satay, Indian curry, the exquisite Indonesian rijsttafel, or the convivial Chinese "steamboat," or "firepot" dinner. And then take another walk!

There are other places to go for real excitement in Malaysia, and you can find beautiful beaches and fascinating historical sites elsewhere too. For the quiet of tropical skies, flickering fireplaces and candlelight on cool evenings, communing with nature in the silent green world of the jungle, make Cameron Highlands part of your next trip.

Puerto Vallarta Retains Something Of The Old

By MURRAY BROWN

PUERTO VALLARTA, Mexico (UPI) — There's no doubt Puerto Vallarta has changed since Liz Taylor and Dick Burton made all those international headlines here about 10 years ago. But much of the old charm remains.

Until the mid-1960s, Puerto Vallarta was an isolated fishing village of cobblestoned streets and red tiled-roof houses hidden among the verdant hills spilling down into the Bay of Banderas on Mexico's west coast. Access was mainly by sea although there was a rugged mule-jeep track through the jungles and a small landing strip.

About 6,000 people lived here and a few hotels with about 100 rooms catered mostly to Mexican sports fishermen and hunters and a trickle of tourists seeking "unspoiled" hideaways. There were no telephones and communications with the outside world were maintained by radio.

THE TRICKLE swelled into a flood after Puerto Vallarta became a familiar dateline because of the publicity generated by Miss Taylor and Burton during the filming of the "Night of the Iguana" at nearby Mismalya.

Today, there are more than a score of hotels with over 4,000 rooms, about half of them in the first class or luxury category, a paved two-lane road from Tepic — about 110 miles to the north — and a modern airport for big jets.

The population has passed 30,000, taxis have replaced the horse cabs, there is a new marina for yachts, ice cream and pizza parlors, smart shops, art galleries, top-rated restaurants and night clubs.

There are telephones that work, and a traffic light that doesn't sometimes — but no one seems to mind since you can't drive very fast over the bone-jarring, spring-busting rough cobblestone streets.

THERE'S ALSO an American community called Gringo Gulch —the Burtons have a home there — overlooking the Cuale River which runs through Puerto Vallarta.

Yet the town and people have managed to retain much of the old way of life. Fishermen still put out in small boats before dawn, milk is delivered in big cans hung on the sides of the burros, women still do the family wash in the river and everything closes down for the mid-day siesta.

There's an open-air native market where you can buy fresh fruits and vegetables and, if you get up early enough, you can go down to the beach and wrangle over the price of a still-flapping red snapper, sea bass or other fish.

Most of the new luxury hotels have been built along the palm-fringed beaches and hidden coves to the north and south of Puerto Vallarta. The older hotels in town, like the Oceana and Paraiso, have been modernized and enlarged.

WE STAYED AT the Posada Vallarta, the first of the deluxe hotels, which lies about midway between the airport and the town. It offers more than 135 rooms and suites in colonial-type two-story-high wings and another 120 in 40 villas, each with private pool. There also are a big free-form pool for guests and a tremendous private beach.

The Posada has three indoor and outdoor restaurants — its main dining room, Los Arcos, is top-rated — and three cocktail lounges including a night club with dancing and entertainment.

Other outstanding hotels include the 12-story-high Camino Real and Garza Blanca on the southern outskirts. Accommodations at Garza Blanca range from villas with private pools to beachfront bungalows.

Puerto Vallarta has about a dozen beaches, including the Playa del Sol or Sun Beach — formerly known as Deadman's Beach — where most of the younger jet-set action is centered. It also offers a wide variety of water and land sports and activities.

WE FLEW TO Puerto Vallarta on Air France from Paris via New York and Guadalajara. Mexican and U.S. airlines also fly in from various cities in Mexico and the United States.

Puerto Vallarta is also a favorite port-of-call for cruise ships from the west and east coasts of the United States.

A Blessed Event At San Diego's Zoo

"To act as a reservoir, through captive propagation for those species whose survival is threatened in their natural habitat," explains Dr. James Dolan, animal sciences director and curator in charge of the San Diego Wild Animal Park's animal acquisition program, "is one of the primary objectives of modern zoological parks. The Pere David's deer is certainly one of the great success stories."

At the San Diego refuge, a Pere David's deer was born on May 20, the first such surviving birth in the western United States. The young deer, a male, made his public debut on June 29, when he was first visible to monorail travelers along with other exotic animals in the park's Asian Swamps area.

At that time the young deer and his mother were released from their private boma, a field shelter that had served them as a private maternity ward.

THERE HAVE BEEN other births of this rare deer in eastern United States and European zoos: in fact, Dolan adds, "Its history of captive propagation dates back to the days long before the concept of conservation as we know it became the watchword of enlightened people. The Pere David's deer has actually been extinct in the wild for three to four thousand years."

The young male and its parents are the Pere David's deer in the San Diego Zoological Society's collection. Having the antlers of a stag, the neck of a camel, the hoofs of a cow and the tail of an ass, it has been called an animal of unlike features.

The adults, which may stand about three feet, nine inches at the shoulders, have shed their dense brownish-gray winter coat for a lighter, brighter coat which they will wear until fall. The new youngster will begin to acquire the distinctive antlers which are present in only the male of the species.

Antlers of the Pere David's deer are unusual in that all the tines are pointed posteriorly, and sometimes two sets of antlers are produced in one year.

THE ORIGINAL range of the Pere David's deer was swampy areas on the alluvial plains of North-east and East-central China. Between the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, these swampy plains were brought under cultivation and this animal ceased to exist in the wild.

However, a large number of the deer were kept in the Imperial Hunting Park south of Peking — a park of vast acreage used as a hunting preserve by Chinese emperors of the Ching Dynasty. Within the forty mile wall surrounding the park were several villages, inhabitants and domestic animals, in addition to the variety of deer and gazelle.

The park was strictly guarded and Europeans prohibited entry.

THE DEER WERE not to be known to the western world until 1865, when a Lazarist missionary of vast zoological knowledge named Pere Armand David peeked over the wall surrounding the forbidden park. In a letter, Pere David described this unfamiliar animal as "a long-tailed reindeer with very large horns" living in a state of semi-domesticiation. By 1866, Pere David was able to bribe Tartar soldiers to acquire two skins which were forwarded to Europe, where the animal was named in honor of Pere David.

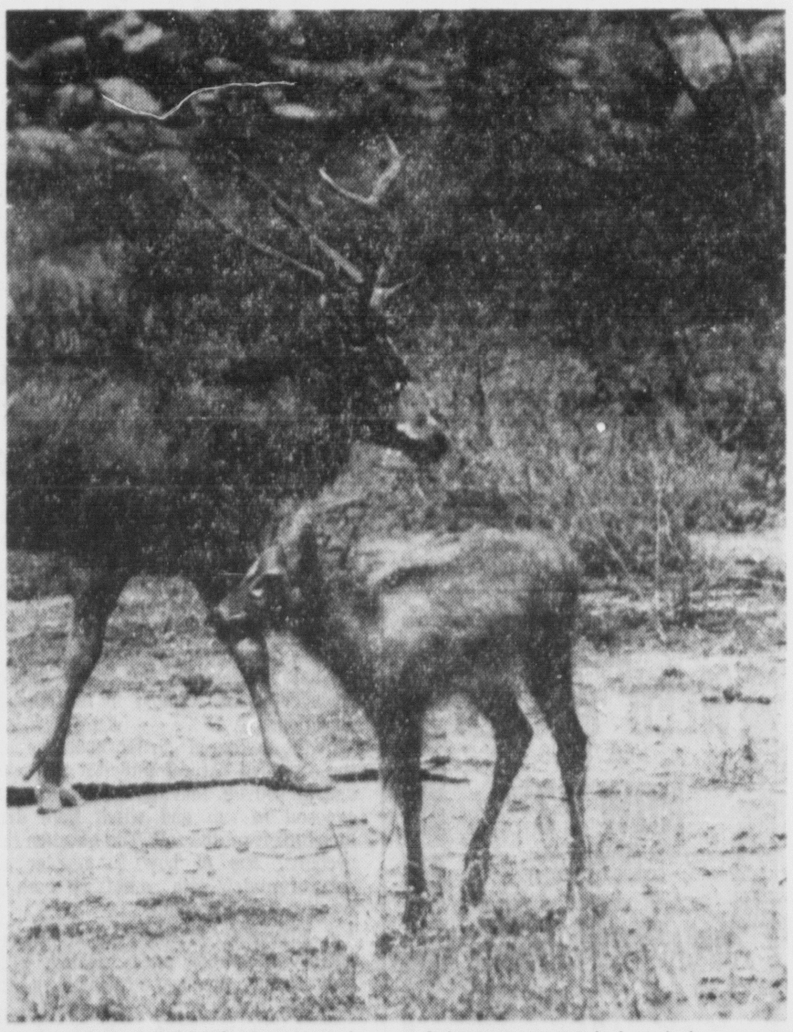

A young pair was sent to London in 1869, followed by others which were imported and bred in Europe.

It was perhaps only because of these living examples in Europe that, when flood waters breached the wall of the Imperial Hunting Park in 1894, the Pere David's deer was saved from extinction. Many of the deer escaping from the park were killed by partisan soldiers or captured and killed by famine-stricken farmers. Others were scattered, so that in 1912 only two of the deer remained in China.

THE MODERN survival of the Pere David's deer is due entirely to the foresight of the 11th, 12th and 13th Dukes of Bedford. The events in China prompted the 11th Duke of Bedford to obtain from continental zoos a herd of the deer which he established on his estate. His successors maintained the largest private collection in the world.

The devastating years of World Wars I and II prompted the 12th Duke of Bedford to send specimens to other zoological societies in 1946. Through the world-wide dissemination of the species, with breeding successes, its survival has been assured. In 1965, four of the deer were returned to China.

The world population now exceeds 400 specimens.

THE PERE DAVID'S DEER is apparently one of those rare animals for which man can claim credit for its preservation. While flood, and its aftermath, virtually wiped out the rare deer in its native habitat in China, a few survived in European zoos and have multiplied to a population of some 400 specimens. The latest birth of a Pere David fawn occurred this spring in the San Diego Wild Animal Park.

Chickens On The Runway

Can you name the airline which:

Has to buzz the airports it serves to get the people, pigs and chickens off the runway before landing?

Must carry a master mechanic and 2,000 lbs. in spare parts on every flight?

Has Teflon on the tummies of its jets to keep them from getting punched full of holes by loose chunks of coral when landing?

Considers beatle nut juice a cabin cleaning problem?

If you haven't guessed, it's Air Micronesia, Continental Airlines' affiliate in the Central Pacific.

Affectionately known throughout the area as Air Mike, the carrier links the U.S. Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands (commonly known as Micronesia) with Honolulu, Guam and Okinawa. It flies two 727-100 jets and a DC-6AB and serves such islands as Yap, Palau, Saipan and Truk — headline names 30 years ago, and now Pacific Island paradises beckoning tourists.

The Caverns Of Missouri

Missouri probably has more commercial caves than any other state and visitors don't have to be spelunkers to enjoy them.

One of the most popular are the Meramac Caverns at Stanton, about an hour's drive west of St. Louis on Interstate 44. There are concrete walks and lights on its five levels and guided tours.

Union forces manufactured gun powder in the caverns during the Civil War until the kilns and vats were destroyed in a raid by Quantrill Irregulars under General Price.

The Meramac Caverns are open year round, except for Christmas Day. Adults pay $3, children, 5-11, $1.50.

Americans Keep Garden Heritage Alive

FORMAL ROSE BEDS edged with box form a garden scene that harkens back to America's colonial days. More and more Americans are attempting to recapture the dignity of these old gardens in their present day landscaping. And roses are a favorite bush in the achieving of that effect.

HISTORIC LANDMARKS and restorations in the East offer lovers of tradition some of the finest displays of old-fashioned plantings associated with America's heritage. These gardens in the style of 200 years and longer ago are to be admired at Stockbridge, Mass., one of the richest storeplaces of American history.

By MILLICENT TAYLOR

Old gardens, still loved and cared for, have a specially peaceful sweetness and grace, like other beautiful old things. With all the tearing down and rebuilding, few old gardens remain.

A 150-year-old house not far from Philadelphia recently has been acquired by a young family who wish to give it "an old-fashioned garden." I don't know how much grounds they have or in what condition, but some of the old-fashioned gardens of beautiful houses come to mind.

When their house was built in 1823, James Monroe of Virginia was President of the young United States and John Quincy Adams was secretary of state. Andrew Jackson of Tennessee would soon follow.

IN GREAT BRITAIN George IV had recently become king after a colorful regency. His successor, William IV, would be followed in 1837 by Queen Victoria, whose long reign influenced garden styles on both sides of the Atlantic.

Americans were avid gardeners from colonial days onward. The Pilgrims and Puritans brought over from England seeds and plants. While the earliest gardens chiefly record the planting of fruits, vegetables, and herbs, more flowers were grown as life became less rugged.

One needs only a trip to Williamsburg to see the beautiful restored gardens of the 17th Century.

Later, a carefully designed landscape became the style. Down through the years even in colder New England and in the pioneer heartland, especially around the larger houses, fine gardens were designed and cherished. Many a covered wagon trundling west carried a beloved rose bush to its new home.

TRADITIONAL WAS the herb garden, and part of the vegetable plot was likely to be a salad garden. Often the herb garden was planted in one of the historic pattern designs — knots, wheels, diamonds — with paths between the beds and a sundial or a bee hive in the center.

As time went on the herb and the food gardens were relegated to the rear, and the flowers were all grown in front where they showed.

One wonderful old house where I spent my vacations as a small child (now a historical museum) was perhaps typical Victorian in its American planting. A sweeping drive curved to the house.

The grounds were a carefully designed "landscape" with huge evergreens whose branches swept the ground, along with weeping willows, ginkgos and other trees.

A HUGE HYDRANGEA 10 or 12 feet high filled the driveway island. Instead of the traditional foundation planting of today, peonies, daylilies, Virginia bluebells and violets were banked along the house.

Out on the side lawn was a rustic summer house (always there were summer houses), and the garden furniture in attractive locations were white filagree iron chairs and settee.

Many of these old gardens, especially where tended by the home owner instead of a full-time gardener, had all its flowers in a circular flower bed in front, planted to red cannas, elephant ears, salvia and such, surrounded by lower flowers.

Just beyond the dining-room conservatory was an extensive rose garden, entered by a gate and laid out with brick paths, a sundial, and enclosed by a hedge. Beyond was the herb garden, with access to the vegetable and berry areas near the stable.

Many an old homestead was laid out pretty much like this.

FRUIT TREES — apples, peaches, cherries, plums — and a berry patch with currants, strawberries, blackberries and raspberries, were usually part of these old gardens.

Shrubs always included lilacs (the old-fashioned ones, for the French came later), snowballs, hydrangeas, mock orange (which we erroneously called syringas), and very often masses of rhododendrons.

On an old estate near Boston is a massed planting of rhododendrons about 50 feet long and 10 to 12 feet high, the original plants brought from France about the time that 150-year-old house near Philadelphia was being built.

Some of the old gardens had ponds, and in the Victorian era this meant weeping willows and white waterlilies (at least in the New World). Many had fountains with statuary, for the Regency and Victorian gardens were full of garden ornaments.

SOME OF YOU probably recall the iron stags on the front grounds of old houses. (Today they seem to be replaced with exotic donkeys and wheelbarrows made into planters!)

Urns with red geraniums have come back. They were always in old gardens.

The herb gardens of today still raise the same herbs our ancestors did, for we like to recreate old herb gardens unless we have room only for a few herbs near the back door, worked in with vegetables and flowers, or on the kitchen windowsill. Bee balm, basil, camomile, lavender, marjoram, tansy and thyme were the "sweet herbs" of the oldest herb gardens.

Pot herbs included carrots, endive, parsley, mints and tarragon. Salad herbs added onions, garlic, parsnips, and cress. There were also "medicinal" herbs. All on the old lists, even as far back as 17th Century John Winthrop Jr.

OLD GARDEN flowers included the tawny Canada daylilies (now escaped to country roadsides), lemon lilies, hostas, nicotiana, geraniums, columbine, lily of the valley, poppies, marigolds, calendulas, peonia, anthemis (camomile), patience, wall-flowers and hollyhocks.

Groundcovers were likely to be vinca minor, English ivy and ajuga.

Roses have perhaps changed the most for modern gardens.

Have you had a yearning to raise some of the old roses of yesterday? You can. There are nurseries specializing in them. You can get beautiful old shrub roses, fragrant moss roses, velvety damasks, and the sweet briar (eglantine), the American Beauty, Harison's Yellow, and Duchesse de Branbant (Theodore Roosevelt's favorite). These are all perpetuals and teas. We used to call them "June roses."

IF YOU ARE interested in learning about or making an old-fashioned garden, here are some books and catalogs to get hold of:

Books: "Early American Gardens," by Ann Leighton (Houghton Mifflin, Boston, 1970); "Herbs and the Fragrant Garden," by Margaret Brownlow (McGraw-Hill, New York, 1957, and also published in Great Britain); "Leaves From Gerard's Herball," arranged by Marcus Woodward (Houghton Mifflin); The Book of Old Roses," by Dorothy Stemler (Bruce Mumphrey, Boston).

Catalogs: "Old Roses," Joseph J. Kern Nursery, Mentor, Ohio; "Roses of Yesterday and Today," Tillotson's Roses, Brown Valley Road, Watsonville, Calif.

THIS WEEK'S CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

For garden color in the dead of winter, plant sweetpeas now, first preparing the ground well by creating a trench 12 inches or more deep and a shovel's width, placing a liberal layer of organic material or aged manure at the bottom, and then about three inches of soil. Sow the seed, and as the plants sprout and begin to grow, fill in around them with topsoil until the trench is nearly at original ground level.

Early fall planting of spring blooming bulbs is nearly upon us. It is not too early to begin preparing your soil.

Autumn is the season when we begin to take notice of the fall color provided by berried shrubs. If you find your own yard lagging in this spectacle, remedy the situation with some pyracantha (as specimen shrubs, espaliers or groundcovers), holly, toyon or cotoneaster.

The dry summer and foot traffic in your yard means a lot of compaction of the lawn by the time September rolls around. An aerator would go a long ways toward restoring a green, fresh look to your grass. A feeding would do the same.

Bearded iris can still be planted. For those already in your garden, lift and divide crowded clumps.

Plant citrus, avacado and other evergreen fruits now while the weather is still warm.

Herbs in continers add to your barbecue pleasure.

For The Look Of The Tropics, Plant These—

California is in no sense a tropical setting, though many parts of the Golden State are classified as sub-tropics. And there are many tropical plants which thrive in the state, that home owners can use to create an exotic touch in their gardens.

Tropical effects are especially desirable for close-in areas — lanais or patios where outdoor living is enhanced by the lush foliage, and for shaded areas where few plants other than tropicals seem to thrive.

A most popular tropical plant is the so-called split leaf philodendron, a handsome sight in partial sun or shaded garden locations. Most nurseries offer it, and newer hybrid forms with unique characteristics.

Glossy-leaf aralia is another popular shrub for tropical effects. It features extra large green leaves. Sun can lighten the leaf color and reduce the tropical appearance of the plant. Give it full or partial shade.

In mild climes, sheffleria, tupidanthus, ferns and certain palms help create a touch of the tropics in the garden. Most can be featured in tubs, or distinctive containers, as well as being lovely landscape fixtures. The container plants can be moved into protected spots when frost is a threat.

The low, spreading acanthus has rich, dark green foliage that compliments tropical plantings. Aucuba is an upright, modest grower. There is a green variety as well as the spreckled types from which comes the popular gold dust plant.

Bright bougainvillea, fragrant gardenias and free-flowering hibiscus are sources of floral beauty in a tropical paradise.

The Ivy Family Too Often Taken For Granted

Friends are often taken for granted. Many plants are taken for granted, too.

Members of the Ivy family are often in this situation.

There's distinctive beauty, to be sure, but nothing flashy. Though many recent introductions of this foliage favorite have thrilled gardeners who discover them, there hasn't been much fanfare accorded their arrival on the gardening scene. Yet, Californians find 101 ways to feature ivy in their homes and garden.

FEW CALIFORNIANS are unaware that ivy is used extensively as a groundcover on slopes and as a lawn substitute. Many people grew up, watching ivy climb up a tree trunk. Or, had the chance to train Ivy against the house or a garage wall. A familiar neighborhood sight is ivy rambling over a fence or cascading over a garden wall.

Likewise, ivy, as a hanging basket plant, was and still is a standard feature in many California homes — displayed on the patio.

Today's interest in plants suitable for growing indoors hasn't escaped the ivy family. A single pot of English ivy, or a heart-shaped sweetheart ivy in a distinctive container, adds a refreshing touch to indoor surroundings.

PEOPLE ARE growing such refined varieties as Hahn's ivy, a dense grower, with soft green foliage, and California ivy, whose leaves resemble small maple leaves, in increasing numbers — featuring them indoors and garden locations, as well.

In the garden, Algerian ivy has been a most popular groundcover. The green and variegated varieties enjoy continued popularity, but today "share the spotlight with English ivy and Hahn's ivy, along with such more-recent introductions as needle point, curly and Rochester ivy. The latter features very pointed leaves and emerald green foliage.

Mulch Makes Difference In September Garden

In nature's garden, mulching just comes naturally. Falling leaves, branches, blossoms, pine needles, and sundry debris all accumulate at the base of a plant, helping shade its roots and preserve moisture through the long, dry months of summer and early fall.

What happens in the home garden, however, works almost in the opposite direction.

In the course of garden housekeeping, the so-called natural mulches are raked and picked up, leaving the bare ground exposed to sun and wind. Both draw moisture from the soil. The question then becomes one of how to replace the natural mulch with something both attractive and beneficial.

A LIBERAL, THICK mulch prevents surface hardening and cracking, which often times plaques sun-baked garden soil. The mulch retards evaporation and protects shallow-rooted plants. It also reduces any week problem that may arist which, in itself, is a worthy consideration.

And, because it maintains a favorable surface condition, mulching also aids in water penetration.

Mulching is the big difference between a fresh and tired look in the September garden, says the California Assocaition of Nurserymen.

FLOWER BEDS, shrubs and even trees benefit from mulching. Shallow-rooted landscaped shrubs such as azaleas, camellias, rhododendrons, gardenias and fuchsias are especially enhanced. So are such shrubs as hibiscus and others from the tropics where heavy natural mulches are the rule.

Which mulch to use?

There are several: Peat moss and leaf mold are used extensively on acid loving varieties such as the shade plants mentioned above. Bark products and sawdust are also common. Nurseries will have these, as well as other commercially-prepared, ready-to-use mulches, which consist of organic materials, and which are simple to apply around plants and spread throughout flower beds and landscape plantings.

INSIDE YOUR HOME

How To Eliminate The Tedious Task Of Bedmaking From Your Housework

By CAROLYN MURRAY

Many of us in the home furnishings field have been encouraging homemakers and bedmakers of all ages to stop overdressing their beds.

The morning ritual of restoring one's bedcovers to visual, wrinkle-free perfection is enough of a daily chore. And when we add to that task by the replacing of a heavy bedspread, we're just making work for ourselves.

More and more, lightweight bedcovers are appearing on the market. And the newest blanket designs are sufficiently decorative so that they may be used as top covers.

THE HOMEMAKER who abhors the regular morning bedmaking routine can escape all that drudgery by the simple and attractive expedient of adopting this idea from the Simmons Co. — a decorative mattress, and available yardage in the same Ming pattern.

FOR MY MONEY, there's always the decorative and plain sheet combination to save energy and money.

Now mattress manufacturers are beginning to respond to the idea. For years they've been hiring famous name designers to create covers for their mattresses. The only trouble was no one saw these beautiful fabrics — except at sheet-changing time.

(That meant they were being designed to catch the consumer's eye in the store, right? Obviously, once they arrived home, they received very little exposure as art fabrics.)

Now Simmons Co. has tried something new. They really suggest that you leave your mattress (by Simmons, of course) uncovered during the day. This provides for the airing many housewives desire.

BUT THEY SUGGEST it mainly because they've created a handsome mattress covering. They call it Ming, and it's a fabric that was inspired by an old Mandarin robe on display at the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

The colors are blue and turquoise, and Simmons is making the yardage available at their dealers.

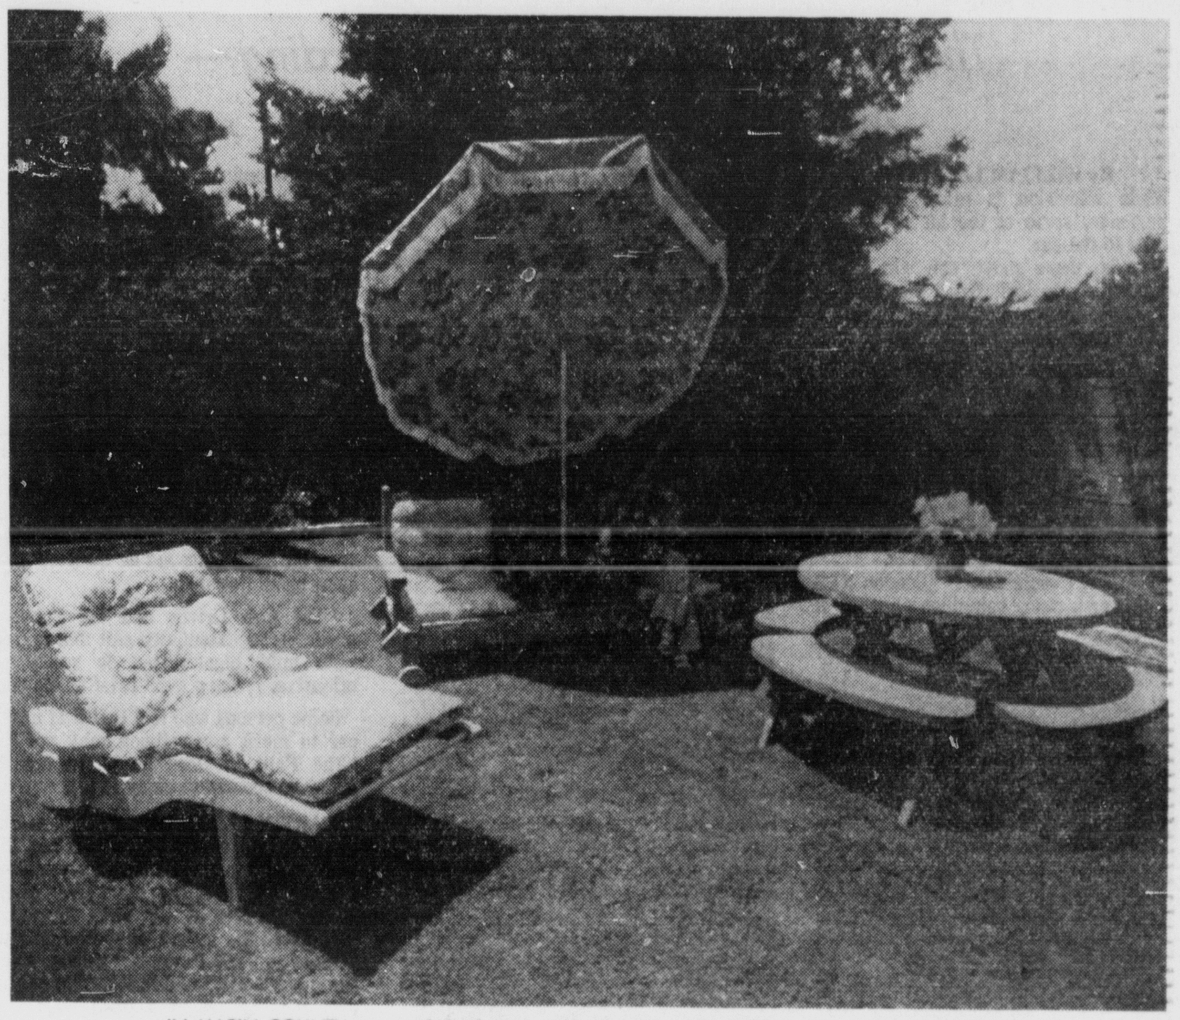

The idea is for you to use a bedroll of fold-down type of bedding arrangement that stays at the foot of the bed during the fresh-air hours. Then in the evening, you just pull up the sheets and blankets for cozy sleep. You might even make blanket covers of the Ming patterned fabric or follow Simmons lead for the coordinated canopy bed shown today.

A SIMPLE rectangular canopy has been trimmed with crown molding found at the building supply dealer. This frame is covered with ruby-red antique satin, although it could be covered in any solid color that harmonizes with the bedroom color scheme. Panels of the Ming-patterned fabric are then lined in the same color and hemmed and hung at the four corners of the bed.

The box spring is concealed with a simple bed skirt of the solid color fabric.

Whether or not you dig the idea of the exposed mattress, you might start thinking about ways to cut out repetitive motions at home. And bedmaking is one of the most repetitive.

FOR YOUR AUTUMN OUTDOOR LIVING

IN MARIN COUNTY, some of the finest outdoor living weather of the year comes in early and mid-autumn. But you won't be able to enjoy it fully without the proper patio, poolside and garden furniture. Recording star Lyn Christopher is showing you a three-piece backyard set, all built by a handyman from Steve Ellingson patterns. If you would like them in your own backyard, you can begin by sending for the patterns. Write Steve Ellingson, Independent-Journal pattern department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409, and ask for Contour Chaise Pattern 125, Two-Seater Lounger Pattern 255, and Barbecue Table and Benches Pattern 239. Enclose $1 for each pattern requested. The patterns are full-size so that you need only to trace the parts onto wood, saw them out and assemble. Illustrations amplify the directions.

The Bank That Knows About Painting

By DOROTHEA BROOKS

What does a bank how about hose painting?

You'd be surprised!

First National City Bank of New York, which publishes monthly a "Consumer Views" pamphlet to help its customers manage their finances, devotes an issue to "Home Painting - the Great American Hobby," and packs it full of tips for do-it-yourselfers.

Be they hobbyists who truly enjoy painting, or home owners or apartment dwellers who have been forced to face the facts of the times, Americans now spend three billion dollars a year as do-it-yourself painters.

Paint, says Citibank, is the home owner's great preservative, the apartment dweller's room beautifier and a low-cost home-furnishing ally.

For just about every job you might want to tackle there is today a special paint and know-how that will insure "professional" results and a long-lasting job worth the work and money you will invest, Citibank says.

THERE ARE TWO basic choices, whether for an interior or exterior job: latex emulsion paint or oil-base paint. Both come in flat and glossy finishes.

The latexes are thinned with water, easy to apply and you clean up afterwards with soap and water. They include paints with a rubber, vinyl, acrylic or polyvinyl chloride base; they don't drip when you paint a ceiling and can go on outside walls.

They are especially recommended for masonry.

The latexes give an unstreaked, uniform appearance, stand up well under industrial fumes. They may be applied during damp weather and even to damp walls. They have little or no odor and dry quickly: a second coat may be applied in two hours.

OIL PAINTS ARE solvent thinned and are recommended for kitchens, bathrooms, woodwork and places that get the hardest wear.

There are, too, a wide variety of special purpose paints — heat resistant spray paint for outdoor grills and radiators, another spray for wicker furniture, a special durable paint for a cement floor, a high-gloss deck enamel; paints for aluminum, iron, even porcelain.

Deal with a reliable store; buy top quality paints; tell your dealer what you plan to cover and take his advice, Citibank recommends.

Never economize on the paint, except to buy quality materials on legitimate sale. There's no point in wasting your investment of time and money on a botched job because of a poor product.

PAINT IS CHEAPER by the gallon — and it's wise to buy that way, also, since, if you run out of paint, you cannot always be sure to get a perfect color match with the next batch, Citibank says.

To get the right amount, tell your dealer the square footage and kind of surface you plan to cover, and let him tell you how much to get.

No matter what paint you buy, read and follow the instructions — to the letter. Nine times out of 10, Citibank says, it has been found when a householder complains about a paint, he or she has done something wrong — added oilpaint solvent to a water-base paint or water to an oil-base, or used the wrong primer or wrong brush or roller.

WHEN TO PAINT? Indoors, just about any time. Outdoors, Citibank says, the late summer or early fall — before the rains — is the best time.

Don't paint in the very hot sun. Sun causes paint to wrinkle and blister. Even if you work early in the morning, the hot sun later may cause blisters.

Try to paint in dry weather, although latex paints may be used in damp weather.

You've probably heard it before, but Citibank emphasizes: "Spend at least as much time preparing the surface as painting, if not more. The painting itself usually is satisfying while the cleaning, sanding, plastering and puttying are plain grubby. But good results depend on careful preparation of the surface."

FROM THE EXPERTS, Citibank offers the following procedure for outdoor paints:

Cover shrubs, walks, terraces with drop cloths.

Usually it isn't necessary to wash outside walls. Just brush off the dirt.

If house is in deep shade and subject to mildew, use paint with anti-mildew additive. To remove mildew before painting, scrub with a solution of two-thirds cup of trisodium phosphate, one-third cup detergent, one quart household bleach, three quarts warm water. Repeat scrubbings as needed. Wear rubber gloves. Do not paint over mildew, which grows in fresh paint.

Inspect the entire house. Nail down any loose boards. Remove loose or scaling paint by scraping or wirebrushing. Check caulking and putty. Replace as needed.

Start painting at the top of the house. Paint trim and shutters last. You will need a standard rung-type ladder to paint the high areas. Use it with every safety precaution.

If you are applying two coats of an oil-base paint, wait three days for the first to dry thoroughly.

IN ADDITION, Citibank suggests the following painting tips:

Mix all the paint you will need at one time.

Be sure you have enough canvas or plastic drop cloths before you start the job.

Glue a paper plate to the bottom of paint cans to control the drips.

Use enough paint. Dip your brush halfway, tap it on the side of the can, then apply. Dip the brush again before it resists your sweeping motion. Paint from the dry surface into the wet surface.

Don't saturate a roller with paint. Give it a comfortable dip. Too much paint will splatter as you work.

Clean spots from clothes and surfaces before they dry.

To make a scaffold for painting outside, lean two ladders against the house, attach a jack (you can rent these) to each ladder. Fit planks across from jack to jack. Instant scaffold; quicker, easier painting. But do use care!

Those Tiny And Uninvited Guests

HOMES PAGE

Are there any cracks along the baseboards, doors or windows of your home? Do you keep stacks of old newspapers, boxes or boards? Are there piles of trash, lumber, compost or humus in your backyard?

If the answer to any of the questions is yes, you are inviting a mass home invasion or irksome exterior problem with one or more species of nuisance insects known as dooryard pests.

This word of warning comes from Russell Biltoft, North Coastal District chairman of Pest Control Operators of California Inc., a 300-member trade association.

Biltoft identifies the more common dooryard pests as silverfish, firebrats, psocids, clover mites, springtails, earwigs and crickets.

None is harmful to humans, he says, but each can form a major annoyance when present in or around a home in large numbers.

The PCOC official adds that most of the pests restrict themselves to a diet of plants and will invade a home mainly for purposes of harborage.

However, look-alike, carrot-shaped silverfish and firebrats will feed on fabrics, paper, books and starches; minute psocids (booklice) will contaminate stored food products, and crickets will attack textiles and fur.

The other pests, if unchecked, can cause extensive damage to lawns and garden plants. Biltoft offers this detailed information on the various vermin:

SILVERFISH — Silver to brown in color. About a half inch long. Live in damp areas indoors or out, usually underneath boxes, boards, debris, etc. Will also get into glue or paste, Leave yellowish stains, especially on linens.

FIREBRATS — Mottled grayish brown. About a half inch long. Prefer warm areas indoors, so usually found near heating units or hot water pipes. Require some moisture to exist. Also leave yellowish stains.

PSOCIDS — Yellow to brown in color and measure only a half millimeter. Prefer damp, warm, undisturbed situations such as the bark under trees or seldom used cereal products. Normally live outside, but may be found in furniture and stored food products.

CLOVER MITES — About size of a pin head. Colors range from reddish brown to green. Feed on lawn, wild grasses, clover and other plants. Attracted to warmth of house for hiding place. Can overrun house by entering through cracks along baseboards, doors or windows.

SPRINGTAILS — Colors vary from white to bright metallic. Only a few millimeters long. Eat decaying plant and animal matter and living plants. Prefer damp places and are found around sinks, tubs, drains, moist walls, moist flower beds and humus piles.

EARWIGS — Reddish brown in color. About a half to a full inch long. Will eat almost anything they can chew but prefer garden plants. Will hide in large numbers under stones, boards, boxes or newspapers. In invading home, tend to infest bedrooms and closets.

CRICKETS — Gray to dark brown to black in color. Can be three-fifths to two inches long. Active only in summer and mostly nocturnal. Will enter house when food supply of grasses runs out. Don't adjust well to inside and will eventually die.

Biltoft says preventive measures against dooryard pests are obvious — seal cracks by which they can gain entry and keep the home and yard clean and free of possible harborage.

Sprays containing chlordane, malathion or diazinon are most effective in comatting the pests, he adds. But if infestation is severe, he suggests the calling of a pest control professional.

HERE'S YOUR ANSWER

By ANDY LANG

Q. — I fastened some wood slats to a concrete wall by hammering masonry nails through the wood and into the concrete. When I attempted the same kind of job on our outside brick wall, I found that the nails would not go into the brick no matter how hard I hammered. This puzzles me, since I have always assumed that concrete is harder than brick. Anyway, what do I do about it?

A. — Your assumption is erroneous, but you have a lot of company in your belief. In most cases, brick is harder than concrete. If you have a portable electric drill, as most home handymen have, buy a carbide-tipped bit that will fit it. Use a size smaller than the diameter of the nail. After making a pilot hole with the bit, hammer the nail through the wood and into the opening.

Q. — I have to replace the mesh on three of our back porch screens. When I did a similar job a few years ago, I had a difficult job getting the mesh tightly into position. Is there some special way of doing this? The screens have wooden frames and, I guess, galvanized mesh.

A. — Lots of persons have different ideas about how to make mesh taut inside a screen frame. The method I used many years ago still seems to me to be best. First, remove the old moulding. Do it very carefully if you intend to use the same moulding again. Take off the old mesh. Put the new mesh into place. Idealy, it should be a couple of inches longer than necessary. Staple one end of the mesh to the frame. Place the entire screen on a flat table or board laid on a couple of saw horses, assuming that it wasn't already there before you stapled down one end of the mesh. Now place a couple of short pieces of two-by-four under each end of the screen. Using a couple of clamps, tighten the center of the screen to the table or board. What you now have is a screen which sinks in the center and rises at both ends. Draw the mesh fairly but not excessively taut, then staple down the unattached end of the mesh. When you remove the clamps and the two pieces of two-by-four, the screen will revert to its normal position. As it does this, it will draw the mesh tight.

(The techniques of using varnish, lacquer, shellac, bleach, stain and paint remover are explained in Andy Lang's helpful booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," available by sending 30 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, Post Office Box 477, Huntington, N. Y., 11743.)

Use Three Hinges

Use three hinges on wood gates over five feet tall or three feet wide.

What's A Rawl Plug Or Riffler?

If you are one of those novices at handyman's work puzzled by such terms as stirrup, escutcheon, veneer, amaranth, stanbrite and rawl plug, "The Illustrated Encyclopedia of Carpentry and Woodworking Tools, Terms and Materials" may dispel some of the mystery.

It's a small paperback book with a long title, written by Stanley Schuler, well-known for earlier books on home repair and remodeling, and published jointly by The Pequot Press of Connecticut and Random House.

It is a $1.95 pocket-size dictionary, alphabetically organized, that defines the terms one is most likely to encounter in the initial plunge into the world of do-it-yourself in the home workshop. There are illustrations, and the definitions are clear and concise.

As for stanbrite, that's a polishing belt used in belt sanders. And amaranth? A tough Central American hardwood. Now do you know what a riffler is? If you do, you can probably do without the book. D.K.

About Carpets

by Doug Emerson

PUZZLED ABOUT CARPETING? It's no wonder, with so many fine new materials available to you, offered in such a dazzling range of colors and textures.

Here are a few brief pointers to help you choose. Wool is the most luxurious of all carpeting — and the best wool broadloom is also the most expensive. It is highly crush resistant and you can choose from deep plush piles and handsome sculptured patterns.

Among the modern man-made fibers, the acrylics are especially rugged and easy to clean, and they don't mat. The nylons, which are a current favorite, especially the long fiber continuous filament nylons, are very long wearing and easy to clean, with no shedding or piling. These take to vibrant colors beautifully.

Where economy and service are the most important considerations, there are fine cotton carpetings to choose from, the lowest-priced carpets for comparable quality.

So the choice is wide and colorful . . . just as the selection of fine home furnishings and accessories is colorful and complete in our showroom. Stop in — for the answers to all your decorating problems!

The Odd Couple Make A Recording— And They're A Hit There, Too

By WILLIAM LAFFLER

While television is mainly a visual experience, some of the hit shows also appeal to the ear.

That is, these shows can win laughs without the principals being seen as back in the good old radio days.

For this reason, outstanding shows are natural vehicles for phonograph records.

There were a couple of recordings of "Laugh In" during the early phase of its popularity. More recently, "All in the Family" and "Sanford and Son" have produced delightful recordings.

NOW WE HAVE an LP based on the two characters in "The Odd Couple," Tony Randall and Jack Klugman.

"The Odd Couple Sings" (London XPS 903) is worth many spinnings although it gets off to a schmaltzy start with "Johnny One Note."

Tony Randall is a good singer. He might have made it as a solo vocalist had he not gone for acting on stage, in the movies and on television.

Several years ago, Randall recorded an album for Imperial Records that received a warm welcome from musicians, among them Carmen Lombardo, and record reviewers. They particularly liked Randall's whimsy in singing "Little Old Lady," a tune which Bing Crosby popularized way back when.

In "The Odd Couple Sings," Randall carries most of the load but Klugman fits nicely into duets, one of them being "Play a Simple Melody."

One of the more rollicking songs is "When Banana Skins Are Falling I'll Come Sliding Back to You."

The big opus is "The Odd Couple Opera," which takes up most of the second side, with Randall turning in a fine performance.

Roland Shaw and the London Festival Orchestra and Chorus furnish the musical backdrop.

JACK BURNS and Avery Schreiber is another comic team capable of generating sustained laughter.

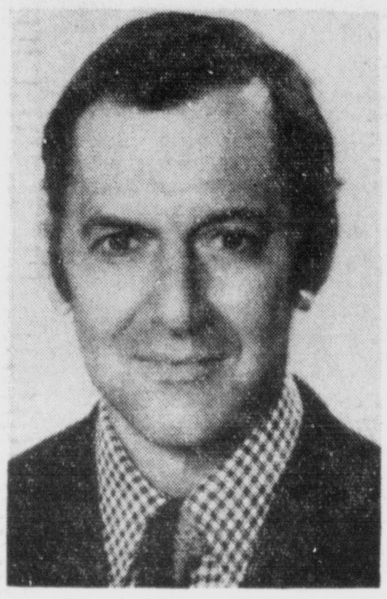

"In One Head and Out the Other" (Columbia C 32442) is based on appearances in night club engagements which spun off from their gig on the Jack Paar show some time ago.

"The Cab Driver and the Conventioneer" is an extenuated skit that is laced with mild bigotry but is really not offensive. It has a good twist at the end.

Some persons who feel that it is improper to mock any religion may not find "The Faith Healer" humorous but the audience seemed to enjoy it.

MARTIN MULL and his Fabulous Furniture offers a mixture of soft-sell dialogue and non-pretentious but nevertheless enjoyable music on "Your Living Room" (Capricorn CP 0117). The titles give away the nature of the album: "A Tribute to Bert Parks," "Martin, Leon, Elton and John," and "2001 Polka." Mull gets the fun off to a good start with "Dueling Tubas."

"Battling Banjos" is a fine item for those who like their banjo music in the bluegrass style (Monument Z32259). There is a suggestion of "Dueling Banjos" in the opening "Battling Banjos Polka" and a fullblown rendition in "Feudin' Banjos." Other numbers which enliven the album are "Nine String Boogie," "Black Mountain Rag," "Georgia Camp Meeting" and "Foggy Mountain Breakdown."

TONY RANDALL and JACK KLUGMAN
"The Odd Couple Opera" and others

A HANDSOME FALCONER and his lady fair add to the spectacle of a recreation of an English fair of some 400 years ago, as the seventh annual Renaissance Pleasure Faire and Ha' Penny Market gets under way in Oak Forest near Novato. The event opened today, and will hold forth tomorrow and Monday, then on Saturdays and Sundays henceforth, through Oct. 8 (Columbus Day). Some 1,000 entertainers and 150 craftsmen contribute to the pomp and pageantry, that can be enjoyed, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., by taking Highway 37 to Black Point and following the signs to free parking.

An Opera First—Two In Quadraphonic

By WILBUR LANDREY

A first recording of an opera by a great composer is musically interesting in itself. To have two at the same time also labeled as the first opera recordings to be made in quadraphonic sound is something special for audiophiles as well as opera buffs.

I don't know what prompted Vanguard to choose Rossini's "La Pietra del Paragone (The Touch Stone)" and Handel's "Semele" for "quad" and I have heard them only in stereo.

I can say they are both very interesting additions to the available recorded repertory.

"La Petra del Paragone" (VSD 711834-5 in stereo and VSQ 30025-6-7 in quad, three records) was Gioacchino Rossini's seventh opera, produced at La Scala when he was 20. But it was his first real success.

There is a story that it saved Rossini from military service when, after its premiere, Napoleon's viceroy in Italy, Eugene Beauhornais, directed the interior minister to exempt the young composer: "We are perhaps losing a mediocre soldier, but we are surely saving a man of genius."

THE LIBRETTO is typical of the time — noblemen masquerading as exotic foreigners, ladies dressing up as soldiers, tests of love and virtue triumphant, but the music is already identifiably the music of a man who later wrote "The Barber of Seville." In fact, he borrowed some of its music for the Barber.

This production goes back to original sources. It is conducted by Newell Jenkins at the head of the Claron Concerts Orchestra and Chorus.

The cast is good. Mezzo Beverly Wolff as the Marchesina Clarice and baritone John Reardon as Count Asdrubale sing the lead roles. Elaine Bonazzi, Anne Elgar, Jose Carreras, Andrew Foldi, Justino Diaz and Raymond Murcell all give good accounts of themselves.

"Semele" may be even more interesting musically. It is based on the story of one of Jupiter's girl friends, the mother of Bacchus, who was tricked by Juno into gazing on the god in his full divinity. It is usually listed as an oratorio — that is, not staged.

This full three-record album (VSD 71180-½ in stereo and VSQ 30022-½ in quad) comes just after two Handel Society records of highlights from the oratorio "Athalia" and the opera "Rinaldo", also new in U.S. catalogues. George Frederic Handel is being well served.

THIS EXCELLENT recording is made so by a superior cast — Sheila Armstrong and Helen Watts in the main female roles; Neilson Taylor, Justino Diaz, Robert Tear and Mark Deller in the principal male roles. Also Felicity Palmer and Edgar Fleet. Johannes Somary conducts the English Chamber Orchestra.

Quadraphonic notes from Vanguard: "In Semele, the overtures and sinfonias all emanate from loudspeakers, thus sweeping the stage. When the curtain opens, the orchestra recedes to form a semi-ring around the listener while the soloists, chorus and continuo form a stage up-front. "In La Pietra, the overture again emanates from four loudspeakers. But, as the curtain rises, the orchestra is distributed in a semi-ring from the back to the middle of the listening environment while soloists, choir and harpsichord are at stage front."

The Style Of Curtis Mayfield

By BRUCE MEYER

Style: The very best performers have it. Style all their own.

Style is what makes them stars, what makes them different from the 10,000 other singers-players-writers for whom the top of the heap will always remain a goal, never realized.

Curtis Mayfield has more style than anybody. He copies no one. His music is his style and vice-versa. He (and a very few others) is revitalizing the tarnished chrome on motown-born rhythm and blues, injecting it with his own brand of mellow soul.

CURTIS MAYFIELD'S music is strong and serious and I might as well admit before going further that I can't take too much of it at once. One side — two, at most — to touch base with reality, sandwiches between the plagiarized blues riffs of that escapist rock 'n' roll I love so much.

But it's nice to know Curtis is there waiting, quietly, for the din to cease, however briefly.

Curtis Mayfield's r and b revolution started, as far as most people that is, non-rb nuts are concerned, with the soundtrack for a movie — "Superfly." It really started in 1958, when he began writing material for the Roosters, who changed their name to the Impressions before cutting their first record in 1963 — but that's too long a story. If you want to find out how good it was even then, get "Curtis Mayfield: His Early Years With The Impression" (abc X-7802).

No matter what the critical success of the movie, which dealt with a James Bond-slick black dope pusher, there is absolutely no doubt that Mayfield's score and performance made "Superfly" (Curtom CRS-80114-ST) the rb album of 1972.

Curtis' new album, already certified gold, is "Back In The World" (Curtom CRS-8015). It is precisely what would be expected as a follow-up to the huge success of "Superfly" — stylistically identical and even more broadly topical.

MAYFIELD APPLIES his patented free-form poetic style to love, peace, drugs, economics and children. The title track, "Back To The World," is the easiest to handle — a straightforward story about a solider come home to the ghetto, no victory behind, no job or hope ahead.

The only real loser on the album is "Future Shock"; the intellectual thin ice of Alvin Toffler's doom-saying best seller simply doesn't provide enough support even for Mayfield's nimble pen.

Instrumentally, "Back To The World" is all but identical to "Superfly" and its more recent predecessors — intricate polyrhythmic percussion, delicate and frequently distorted guitar, prudent use of horns. Always tasty and tasteful, if sometimes a shade busy.

There's no more to say. Curtis Mayfield is at the top of rb along with the incredibly durable Temptations and from all indications, he's settling in for a long stay.

MARIN POET'S CORNER

VOYAGE

Moving on to new waters
Farther down the muddy bank,
Looking for my age-old fathers
Blown on away to a dusty road.

Looking for the last moment,
Finding wood, and wanting gold;
Ah, at last, the one torment
Of seeing oneself, unique, alone.

Was moving on to new waters
Infinitely down the muddy bank,
Useless search for my age-old fathers —
They had been there, never gone.

SAN RAFAEL — MAGGIE WALKER

REVERIE

Let me live,
The life I want to live
And take not from me
The challenge and force,
(An inborn feeling)
That drives my will
Fertile with seeds of hope,
Ambition the water of my dreams
And let these visions bloom
Bright and forever,
Till the weeds of age
Choke my flowering reverie.

NOVATO — JOHN W. GATES

TO DIONNE

Glittering lights, hubub of voices — some strident, other subdued,
Yet no constancy of purpose — modicum of sanity but very little in my estimation,
For what purpose — this disorientation of gathering, seemingly of little relativity,
But then some continuity of arrangement —
To hear, to see, to feel, to listen to one glorious voice!
What other purpose is necessary?

Jerry Lewis And Stellar Cast Aim For New Telethon Record

Each year since 1966, Jerry Lewis has topped his previous fund-raising record on his Labor Day telethon to benefit Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America.

This year, in an effort to top his 1972 achievement of more than $9,200,000 pledged, the comedian has dreamed up a new format for the weekend show, to be seen in the Bay Area over KBHK-TV (Channel 44), San Francisco, and KNTV (Channel 11), San Jose.

Local hosts for the show will be Frank Dill and Mike Cleary, KNBR morning broadcasters, on KBHK; Fred La Cosse, KNTV news director and Tom Campbell of KNEW, on KNTV. The program will open at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow and continue 20 hours until 3:30 p.m., Monday.

THE NEW FORMAT will present 20 one-hour "specials," each with its own entertainment theme, starring the nation's leading performers, artists and sports figures. The show will originate from Las Vegas with pick-ups from Nashville, New York and Hollywood.

Buddy Hackett will serve as New York anchorman. Jan Murray will host the Hollywood segments, and singer Roy Clark will host the Nashville portions.

Each local station will program 10 minutes out of each hour with appearances by stars of the entertainment world, sports figures, political leaders and the parade of volunteers and donors who take and make the pledges that will put the goal over the top.

This year's telethon is being carried on 150 stations across the U.S., and is being seen live via satellite in Hawaii and Puerto Rico. Alaska and Guam will carry the show on a delayed basis.

JUST SOME OF the name stars who have agreed to appear:

Don Adams, Don Ho, Carole Lawrence, Merv Griffin, Buddy Rich and orchestra, Gisele MacKenzie, Rowan and Martin, Forrest Tucker, Dave Brubeck, Glenn Ford, James Franciscus, Jack Klugman, Chad Everett, John Raitt, Barbara Walters, Dana Valery and David Hartman.

Surprise guests traditionally show up unannounced as well for the marathon event.

THE CAUSE — WHAT IT IS

What is muscular dystophy?

There is, says the Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America Inc., the beneficiary of this week's Jerry Lewis telethon on Channels 11 and 44, no single disease called "muscular dystrophy."

Instead, there is a whole group of muscle-destroying dystrophies that vary in hereditary pattern, age of onset, initial muscles attacked and rate of progression.

The associations are also concerned with myositis, a group of disorders characterized by inflammation of skeletal muscle, and with the muscular atrophies that attack the motor nerve cells in the spinal cord.

DIANA'S OUT FOR POWER

Why do top-ranking stars tackle television? For the money, obviously — but also, most often, for glory.

Not Diana Rigg. The beautiful Briton who starred for several years as Emma Peel in "The Avengers" says what she's after is glory's partner: power.

Miss Rigg, as candid as she is comely, does her confessing in the August issue of Hugh Hefner's OUI magazine. She'll make a new TV situation comedy here about the adventures of an English girl trying to survive and flourish in America.

"I want to do six months of frenzied activity in front of the television cameras in America, which is what you do if you want power — commercial power," she told OUI's interviewer, Michael Kustow. "I want to translate that power in terms of theater tickets . . . power at the box office expressed in tickets because people want to come and see you."

A New TV Comedy Series Takes Shape

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — The audience, maybe 300 or so hardy souls, began filling the seats of CBS Studio 41 here while Jose Perez was telling James Coco he was sorry he quit and that he'd like his old job back.

"Okay, thank you very much. That ends the rehearsal," said the studio loudspeaker. Cameramen relaxed, the cast took a break and a prop man made a final inspection of the set.

All were working on the second episode of "Calucci's Dept.," a new half-hour series about the inhabitants of a state unemployment office run by Joseph Calucci (Coco).

THE SERIES, which begins Sept. 14 on CBS-TV, is good for 13 episodes, according to executive producer Bob Precht. If it clicks, more episodes probably will be ordered.

The concern of the moment was to have good, crisp performances in the day's effort. It, like all 13 episodes, would be taped twice on the same day.

"The first show is essentially a dress rehearsal, although we always tape it and may edit parts of it into the final show we're doing later today," said Precht.

THE SERIES' creators, Renee Taylor and Joe Bologna, came out to warm up the audience with a few quips, an explanation of what the show was about and to introduce the cast.

The regulars and extras — 16 in all — began taking their places for the opening scene. The set was in two sections, the main office and Calucci's office. Both looked authentic — old, musty and miserable.

"Action-business," the floor manager intoned. The thespians immediately came to life and created a remarkably real illusion of the morning rush for unemployment benefits.

THE PLOT centered on a young Puerto Rican employe, played by Perez, who abruptly goes nuts during a bureaucratic squabble over paper-shuffling. He screams, tosses papers in the air and quits.

JAMES COCO
Earmarks of a winner

"How can you quit?," Coco subsequently asks him. "You're only 22 years away from your pension."

The show's six scenes were shot in sequence, with delays of one to five minutes between segments to allow for set changes and to ready cast and cameras for the next scene.

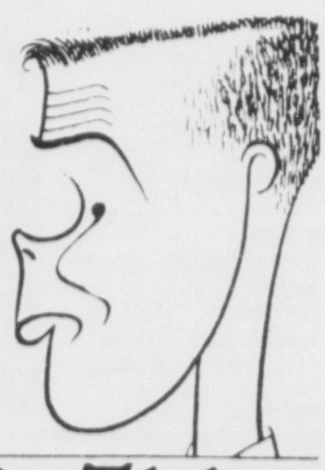

During the breaks, Bologna came out to chat with the audience. One young man asked if the unemployment office in the show was modeled on a real one.

"WE'VE SORT of modelled it after the one at 23rd Street and Sixth Avenue," Bologna cheerfully explained. "That's MY office."

It had the earmarks of a winning series. But the cast won't know until November — when networks usually renew or cancel — if their unemployment office will remain make-believe or become the real, wretched McCoy.

Stay up with Jerry and Johnny Carson.

No Regrets, Says Boone

Richard Boone, star of NBC-TV's "Hec Ramsey" on "NBC Sunday Mystery Movie," says he has no regrets about turning down a couple of roles that made two fellow actors instant stars. Those parts were the lead in "Cat Ballou," which brought Lee Marvin to top stardom and the part that George Kennedy won an Oscar for in "Cool Hand Luke."

TUNING IN ON TV

By JACK GAVER

"The Movies" is a two-part, four-hour special scheduled for ABC in the fall. It will consist of the most notable scenes from more than 100 motion pictures during the entire history of the cinema. Proceeds from the special will benefit the Motion Picture and Television Country House and Hospital in Woodland Hills, Calif.

The role of the spouse of the disintegrating actor in "The Country Wife," NBC drama special based on Clifford Odets' play, will be played by Shirley Knight Hopkins, who has many stage, video and movie credits. Jason Robards plays the husband who needs her help.

When "Sunrise Semester," CBS educational program, begins its 11th season this fall, the two college-credit courses offered will be "Twentieth Century Literature: Its Past and Present" and "The World of Islam."

"Jacob and Joseph: Patriarchs, Prophets and People" is a two-hour special ABC has planned for 1974. It will be filmed on location in Israel where these two men and other Biblical figures are thought to have lived.

"The Guiding Light," CBS daytime serial, has begun its 22nd year as a television program. Prior to its 1952 video debut, it was a radio favorite for 15 years.

Kristoffer Tabori and Susan Dey will portray college-aged children of Dennis Weaver and Estelle Parsons in "Terror On the Beach," a Tuesday Night Movie for CBS-TV.

John Saxon will guest in the upcoming "Cauldron" segment of the television series "The Rookies."

Jean Stapleton steps out of her role of Edith on television's "All In The Family" long enough to star in a romantic comedy, "The Time of the Cuckoo."

Tough Cookie Now Lovable

The Cookie Monster, who swallowed an Emmy during the nationally televised award ceremonies, was so well known through his daily appearances on "Sesame Street" that he wasn't even introduced to the audience.

But few people remember when the same character was known as "Boggle Eyes," a monster who devoured everything, was far from lovable, and never cried out for "cookies." That changed when Jeff Moss, head writer for the popular educational series, wrote a sketch in which the ravenous and indiscriminate Monster coveted Muppet Ernie's milk and cookies. This fare whetted his obsession and gave rise to the name Cookie Monster.

Bob Hope with Dolores, His Wife of 38 Years

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR GEORGE HAMILTON

You used to live in such a grand style. Do you still?—N. P., San Rafael, Calif.

● I have a Rolls convertible and a Cessna 182 that I fly myself. I have two houses, one in Palm Springs and one in Los Angeles, but neither one is quite the size of the house I used to have—which I sold to financier Bernie Cornfeld. As to whether my attitude has changed, my answer is yes—and no. Yes, I don't think it was necessary to live in such high style, and no, I loved it. But if I had continued to live that way, I might be in the poorhouse by now.

FOR HOPE LANGE

You have a teenage daughter. How have you advised her about the new morality?—T.D., Albany, Ga.

● I haven't yet. She's 14 and too wrapped up in horses at this point to be very interested. When the time comes, I guess we'll just face it together. I wouldn't want her to run off, but I don't mind her having a boyfriend—as long as he is absolutely perfect: cute, handsome, rich, not temperamental, loves her, and so forth.

FOR SEN. BIRCH BAYH (D-Ind.), chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Juvenile Delinquency

My newspaper gives me the impression that a big percentage of crimes are committed by young people. Right or wrong?—F.D.M., Bradenton, Fla.

● Ninety-five percent of all adult felons have juvenile records, and half the crimes in this country are committed by youngsters not old enough to vote. These are alarming facts that point to one very sad conclusion: Whatever we are doing in the area of prevention and rehabilitation has been a dismal failure.

FOR WALTER CRONKITE, newscaster

In all your travels at home and abroad as a newscaster, which trip has proven to be the most interesting?—Mrs. John A. Parker, Eureka, Calif.

● Probably the trip to China with President Nixon. It was our first opportunity to take television cameras to this great country. We felt like modern Marco Polos.

FOR MICKEY SPILLANE, author

I have heard that you now live in South Carolina while your wife lives in New York City because of her career in show business. Do either or both of you have dinner dates with other people?—Roger Morre, Bloomington, Ind.

● We both have many friends and do have dinner dates with other people. This doesn't bother either one of us at all.

FOR JANE BLALOCK, pro golfer

Some of the other female pros have been complaining that since you got in trouble for allegedly bettering the position of your ball, the crowds have been lionizing you. Is this true?—Joan Smedley, Cambridge, Md.

● The spectators have been very nice to me, and I have to assume that this is because Americans root for underdogs. But there is another reason. I won the highly publicized Dinah Shore tournament and that made me more easily identifiable. The big public reaction started after that.

FOR TWIGGY

Do you ever fight with your boyfriend and mentor, Justin de Villeneuve?—M. N. T., New Albany, Ind.

● I hate fighting. But to be perfectly honest, once in a while Justin and I do have an argument. If we scream at each other, we always make up in the end—and that's always so beautiful. I think in a love relationship it is all right to scream once in a while, but I wouldn't want to do it at work.

FOR SAM LEVENSON, entertainer-author

Why did you decide to leave teaching and become an entertainer?—A. S. Kravitz, Brooklyn, N.Y.

● I never decided what I wanted to be. Somehow circumstances pointed out new directions for me. I started out as a musician, went on to teaching school, then on to show business, then to writing. At this point I am doing some of each. I bring one subject to all of my careers—me.

FOR GARY GRIMES, star of "Summer of '42" and "Class of '44"

Do you have any heroes among older actors and actresses? —K.R.D., Reading, Ohio

● Yes. James Dean is one of my heroes. To make scenes as dramatic as possible, without making them look overdone, is probably the most difficult thing to achieve in acting—but Dean could do it. Orson Welles in his earlier days is another hero of mine. Glenda Jackson is my favorite actress.

FOR WILMA SCOTT HEIDE, president of the National Organization for Women (NOW)

Is it true that the Equal Rights Amendment will abolish alimony payments by men?—J.B., Sweetwater, Texas

● No. Decisions under federal or state law will be made on the bases of needs and resources, not sex. Fewer than ten percent of divorces require any alimony. Much child support after divorce is called alimony, and women pay over one-half of child support after divorce. Anyone who cares about women should know there are hundreds of better reasons to support this amendment. Its ratification will help put sex in its place.

The Story of a Fateful Meeting

By MacKinlay Kantor

Author of "Andersonville"

One morning years ago I was aboard an ocean liner, and got up at five-thirty in the morning and began to walk the sun deck.

At first there was no one else about except for a few sailors wiping away the last traces of their swabbing. Solid planks were damp and pungent, the tender mystery of sunrise lifted behind the Azores. Those islands were actually mountains shafting up impassively from bases four miles beneath the smooth marbled water.

They said, We are here, we have been here for a long time.

But I felt a sadness, despite the gold and wine behind mossy clouds.

My problem at that moment was more inscrutable than I could passively accept.

At 52, after 36 years of crowded writing and more crowded living, suddenly I stood upon a summit. It was an attainment for which any man might yearn, and lacerate himself in order to reach it. I was dressed in fame, financial security, artistic and professional accomplishment.

I cried to myself, "But I am still comparatively young, still ambitious. I have won the Pulitzer Prize in Letters. A book I wrote has earned—and is earning, and will earn—a fortune for publishers, dealers, tax collectors, agents, and even for myself.

"Is there no direction to go except down? I have been tussling in the climb for more than a third of a century. Is there still another mountain waiting? Should there be one, have I the strength to attempt it?"

Presently I observed two women of elder years coming slowly toward me. Perhaps craving the same sea-smoked privacy I sought, they had risen with the first light to go a-walking and a-hunting something.

As they approached, I realized that the woman in the beige cloth coat

Golfer DAVE STOCKTON:
What's My Secret?
My Dad Didn't Spoil Me!

Dave Stockton, winner of this year's Greater Milwaukee Open and former national PGA champion, has chronic back trouble that causes him to walk around golf courses with a strange gait. He also has a tendency to succumb to heat strokes during tournaments. Yet he is one of the golf game's leading money winners, known on the professional tour as a "scrambler"—a man who makes up in sheer determination what he lacks in physical strength. Stockton, who's 30 and married, credits his iron determination to his upbringing. His dad was a successful sporting goods merchant who refused to indulge his son. "He wouldn't give me a job in his own store," Stockton recalls, "because he felt the work wasn't hard enough. He sent me to work in a neighbor's lumberyard. That was when I was 12. Then he decided the first week's pay I got was too much for the work I did and made me give part of it back to the neighbor. . . . I may have kicked about working hard, but I came to appreciate the work ethic. That's why I've had the guts to stick to this game. I'm bringing my children up the same way."

Feel the Mountains

The answer to Kantor's anguish came from a radiant Helen Keller.

must be blind. Her companion, in a brown-suede jacket, was directing her steps.

On impulse I went to the two.

I asked, "Does she feel the islands? Feel the power of the mountains which hold them? Feel the ocean? The dawn?"

The woman with the jacket said, "Ah. . . ."

I feared she was surrendering, and to the inevitable.

She spoke softly. "It would be very difficult."

"Still, perhaps, in some miraculous way, could she—?"

She turned and pressed my question into the palm of her companion.

The answer was something to make a man walk away and lift his head higher, make him breathe well, make him feel that there were still cliffs awaiting . . . and he might be vigorous enough to start climbing again.

With busy fingers the woman tapped out the words, even as her lips shaped them.

He—wants to know—if you feel the sea — the mountains holding the Azores—feel the dawn. . . .

Sightless blue eyes seemed to glow. A color pinker than the sunrise was on that keen face.

"Of course I do! Yes, yes. . . . Feel depths and heights. . . . Feel the dawn, feel its coming, its vastness. . . . I feel it," said Helen Keller. FW

Why Some People "Hold Their Liquor" Better Than Others

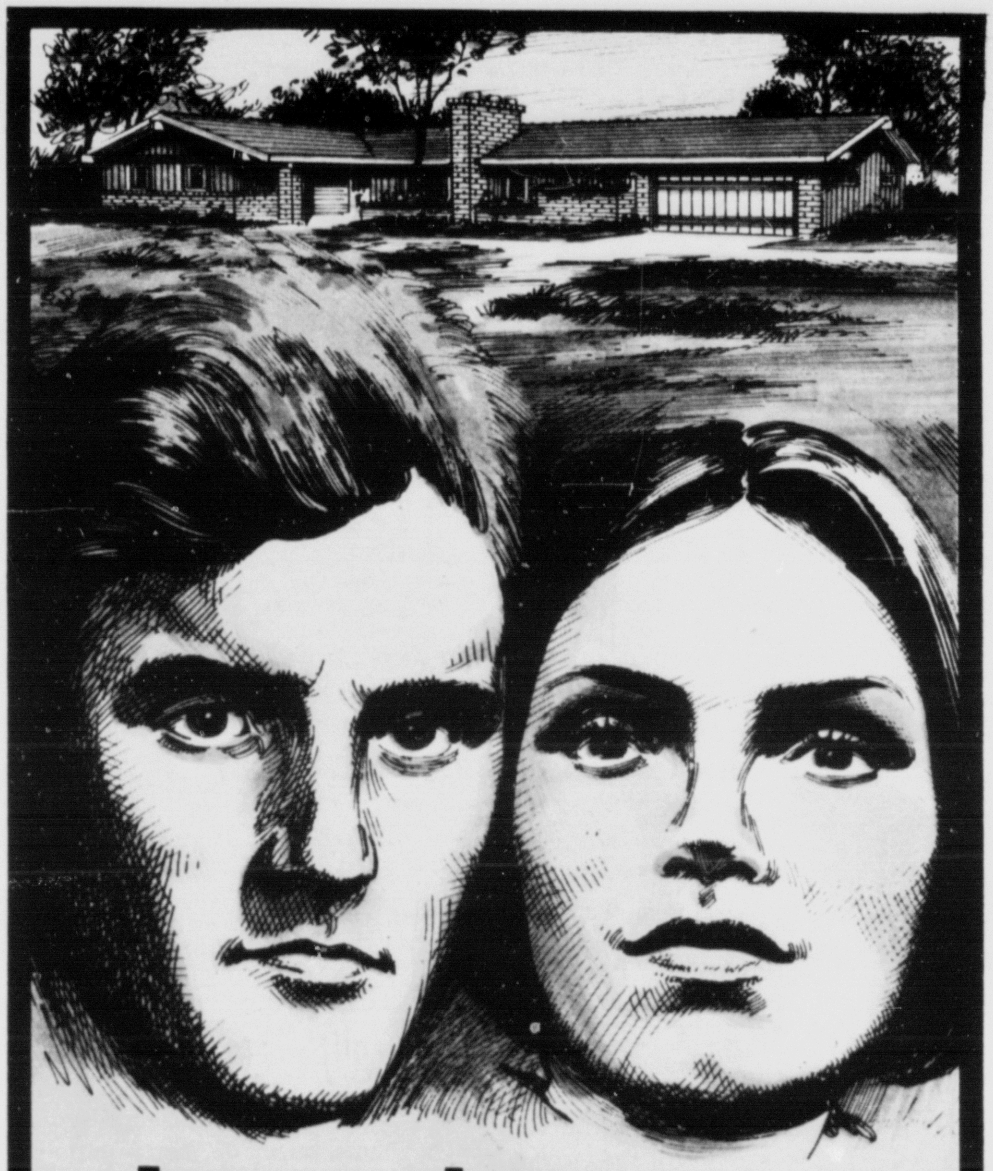

Nobody really holds his liquor—only some people look as if they do, just because they don't stumble and can apparently keep a conversation going along a straight line. But the fact is, just as soon as alcohol is absorbed into the bloodstream, some mental functions, like judgment or coping with an emergency, begin to be impaired. So why do some people look as if they can hold their liquor longer than others? It is a matter of absorption.

What counts is the concentration of alcohol in the blood. Concentration is the difference between the amount that is absorbed and the amount that is oxidized—which means, changed in the body and excreted. When intake and absorption are faster than oxidation, you show the effect of alcohol more strongly. Habitual drinkers absorb alcohol more slowly and oxidize it faster than those who rarely drink. That is the reason they seem to show less effect. But impairment of higher faculties is not reduced! Other things can also delay absorption, such as having a full stomach. Size of a person also counts. The same amount of alcohol absorbed will have more effect on a small person than on a large one. So—if you plan to drink, eat first. But even then, do not undertake tasks that require judgment or a reaction in an emergency.

Is a new home of your own becoming an impossible dream?

On a national average, home prices have jumped nearly 22% over the past three years!* That $20,000 home you started saving for in 1970 now sells for $24,400. That's why more and more families are building the Capp Homes way. And the free plans service lets them build exactly the home they want.

Capp does the rough stuff, then you do the finishing. Even if you just subcontract it all, you can save up to 20% because that's the usual contractor's fee. And you can save lots more if you do some of the work yourself.

Nothing but the best. All building materials and construction in a Capp Home meet or exceed all building codes. In fact, they're probably superior to those used in most model homes you've seen.

Financing? Don't worry about it, Capp Homes has a variety of financing plans to help you buy that home right now . . . without closing costs, points or hidden charges.

Bob Hope Nears 70— And Talks Frankly About His Wealth, His Politics, His Home Life

"I've always played it pretty cool when it came to politics. I don't want to be a hypocrite about it. Everybody knows my position. But... I know that if Kennedy had lived we wouldn't have been in the Vietnam war so long."

Globe Photos

Bob Hope's tribute to his wife: "I admire Dolores for the way she's kept the family together in all my travels...."

FAMILY WEEKLY: If you had to live your life over again, what would you do differently?

HOPE: I had an opening line in one of my books that said if I had to live my life over again, I wouldn't have time. I've had the most exciting and lucky life. People say to me, "My God, the way you've traveled in the last four months!" and I say, "Yeah, and I arranged the schedule!" People think I'm a bit flakey, but I enjoy it. That must be why I feel in such good shape. I'm hitting the ball better than I have in 15 years!

FW: That means you have no plans for retiring?

HOPE: No way! I'm just starting, Peer!

FW: You're supposed to be the richest actor in Hollywood. How did you acquire your business acumen?

HOPE: I think I was just lucky. You see, Bing [Crosby] and I made a killing in oil about 20 years ago. I also got some good business advice from Joe Rosenthal of Lehman Brothers. He said to buy real estate. I don't think that I am any kind of business genius. I just did the very obvious thing that people can do. I can look back and see that I could have gone off in other ways.

FW: A couple of years ago I read a story that said you were not only the wealthiest actor in Hollywood, but that your net worth was between $250 million and $750 million. Is that correct?

HOPE: I remember being quoted in "Time" magazine as saying that I had a billion dollars! I've been looking for it ever since! I can't find a tenth of it. Frank [Frank Liberman, Hope's publicist] had a guy from "Fortune" magazine who wanted to talk to me about my estate, and I said, "Sure, bring him down to Palm Springs." He never got down there. But he reported that I was worth a quarter of a billion dollars! And people believe it. It was absolutely a lie! [Editor's note: Yet Bob is not a pauper. When his new house in Palm Springs—being built at a cost variously estimated between $1½-3 million—burned down in July, Bob, who already owns two homes in Palm Springs, said, "No need to cry over spilt milk"—and promptly decided to rebuild the house.]

FW: You still didn't answer my question: How much are you worth?

HOPE: If I could sell all of my real estate, I would be worth about $25 million to $30 million. But now I am property poor. I am fighting to pay my taxes. Look, I have 11,000 acres right around here. Damned good property. But you have to realize it. I've been lucky in the last couple of years and did sell a few things that kept me moving pretty good.

FW: You've been married 40 years now?

HOPE: Thirty-eight.

FW: To what do you ascribe the success of your marriage?

HOPE: I travel a lot. [Smiles.] No, I think when you can live with one woman for so long, there must be a lot of admiration connected with it. It wouldn't last if you didn't admire the other person a lot. It's like patriotism: You don't go around yelling "I love my wife." You kind of look back, and think about what she's done, and I admire Dolores for the way she's kept the family together in all my travels, and for her philosophy of life, her belief in religion, and everything else.

FW: Do you feel you are difficult to live with?

HOPE: Not at all. In fact, I think I am a rare delight! Because it is very rare that I am home! You know, I would think someone would be difficult to live with if they didn't want to do things. I am always saying, "Let's pack and go . . . let's go to this affair and that affair," and I think that's kind of an exciting life.

FW: Did you ever think of going into politics?

HOPE: Yes. It was suggested to me about 18 years ago when they wanted me to run for the Senate. Jack Warner asked me one time, and then a group in Washington. But I've never been interested in it. I've always played it pretty cool when it came to politics. I don't want to be a hypocrite about it. Everybody knows my position. But they've never seen me get mixed up in politics until this last election. I think it's a shame the whole country couldn't have gotten behind all of the Presidents. I know that if Kennedy had lived we wouldn't have been in the Vietnam war so long.

FW: What makes you say that?

HOPE: He was so mad about the Bay of Pigs thing. When he put the blockade around Cuba, he meant it. I know, because I talked to him about it, and I know how he would have handled the Vietnam situation. He hated Communists.

FW: Did you meet him before he became President?

HOPE: I did. At a football game. And I got to be good friends with him.

FW: Can you think of any special amusing incident involving you and President Kennedy?

HOPE: Yeah, at the Waldorf, during the Football Hall of Fame banquet. I was sitting next to him on the dais. When I went to the restroom it was blocked off, so that everybody but the President had to use the ladies' room —1,200 men! So when I came back to the table, I said to him, "Mr. President, I appreciate your security and everything, but how far do you have to go? They've got the men's room blocked off for you and I had to go to the ladies' room." And he said, "No kidding! How was it?" He loved that—he'd rather tell jokes than anything.

FW: Have you ever had any close calls during your many travels?

HOPE: Several. The worst was in 1942. We were in Alaska in a little seaport called Cordova, doing a show. We had promised never to fly at night, but Gen. Simon Buckner was holding some kind of a street dance in our honor in Anchorage, and we were all so enthused about going, we took off at night anyway, in a Lockheed Lodestar. Within five minutes we were in a storm. We didn't like the feel of it, but figured the pilots must know what they were doing. In 15 minutes the pilot and copilot were yelling at each other up in the cockpit. The pilot was 22 and his copilot was 21! About ten minutes later one of them came back and said "Stand up." They put Mae Wests on us and told us we might have to jump. It wasn't just the storm—we had no visibility, and the radio went out too. We had no way of communicating. We were up there circling for about an hour, hoping and praying something would happen because the mountains around us were 13,000 feet high. And I really mean praying! Luckily, an airliner happened along as we were circling, and went down and told them he'd felt our backwash. General Buckner put up the antiaircraft lights, and the pilot saw one and circled right down and found the airport. I tell you, I was never so happy to see the ground! I got down and kissed it, and took pocketsful of dirt home with me.

Would You Really Be Happier if You Had More Money?

True or False: A man's incentive to do a good job depends on the amount of money you pay him. (See number 2)

By John E. Gibson

It's been said that money won't buy happiness. This may be true, but it's also an unarguable fact that money certainly makes unhappiness more comfortable. In this True-or-False quiz we take a candid look at that stuff that feels so good in your wallet.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. It's easy to feel secure if you have plenty of money.

2. A man's incentive to do a good job depends on the amount of money you pay him.

3. Women are more money-hungry than men are.

4. Credit cards will soon take the place of money.

5. The less money people have the more they think about it.

ANSWERS

1. False. Psychologist Henry Clay Lindgren has observed in summing up the findings of various studies that despite the conviction of a great many people to the contrary, money is far from a cure-all for the feelings of insecurity that assail us. He points out that the notion that higher earnings or a heftier bank balance will cause our problems to vanish into thin air is wishful thinking that has no basis in fact. Most of our problems in life stem from basic psychological causes that have nothing to do with money. These remain to be faced and coped with–regardless of whether our income is large or small.

2. True–with some personality types, but False with others, according to the findings of a University of Melbourne study, which selected two groups of 60 persons with high and low emotional levels, as measured by psychological tests. Each received various amounts of monetary reward for performing mental tasks (typical of the white-collar desk worker). With the persons in the highly emotional group, it was found that when payment for their work was reduced, incentive to do a good job lowered appreciably. But this was not found true with the people in the less emotional group.

3. False. Psychological studies have shown that men are far more preoccupied with money than women are. Males were found to place a much greater emphasis on acquiring money not only for its own sake, but as a symbol of material success, prestige and power. Women, on the other hand, were less interested in money and more concerned with "social relations, personal attractiveness, and love and family relations." This is not to say that women don't like and appreciate money, but they don't give it as high a priority as most men do.

4. False–as evidenced by the findings of a University of Michigan study of credit card users and consumer attitudes, which indicate that although the credit card provides a valuable service and convenience, it is not becoming a replacement for money as many people predicted. As a matter of fact, it was found that "families using credit cards tend to write more checks per month than families who do not use such cards."

5. True. Recent Institute for Social Research studies that surveyed the attitudes of various income brackets and strata of society have shown that poorer people have a much more materialistic outlook, are more money-conscious, and more inclined to equate the amount of money they earn with their status as human beings. The affluent were found to be more interested in nonmaterial values such as the quality of their life-styles and personal satisfactions afforded by their work.

Now! With the simple method of Foot Reflexology!

'You Can Get Almost Immediate Relief from Aches and Pains All Over the Body!'

"I have brought relief to countless suffering people with this method—and have watched their joy of regained health and vitality—when all hope had seemingly been lost!"

"Let me show you how it can bring about the normal function of a specific location or organ..."

Says MILDRED CARTER, Professional Reflexologist

Dear Friend:

My name is Mildred Carter. I am not a doctor, but for over 14 years, I have been helping people receive remarkable relief from seemingly hopeless aches and pains all over the body, with a method—which you can use, too—called Foot Reflexology.

Foot Reflexology is a method for healing the whole body. If you've ever suffered from foot trouble, you know that it's the feet that make the whole body ache. By rubbing and pressing gently on certain areas of your feet, I can show you how you may get almost immediate relief IN OTHER PARTS OF THE BODY!

Why? Because the feet contain Reflexes, which lead like telephone lines to all parts of the body. By pressing them, you help restore normal circulation and health to congested areas. No one can guarantee a cure, nor is it a medical substitute, but:

- I have seen it relieve crippled hands and feet, caused by painful arthritis, straighten whole bodies and bring them back to normal!
- It can stop the pain of hemorrhoids almost immediately!
- Most headaches vanish immediately with this method!
- I have seen it relieve liver and gall bladder trouble!
- I have seen it clear up stuffed sinuses almost immediately!
- I have seen it relieve back troubles, in a matter of seconds!
- I have seen it bring fast relief to stomach troubles!
- I have brought lasting relief to sufferers of varicose veins with this method. This is also true with cramps or pains in the legs!
- I have seen it relieve bladder trouble quickly, with great relief after the very first treatment—all sensation of burning or itching seems to disappear completely!
- This simple method can bring women blessed relief from many disorders which may have been troubling them for years!
- I have brought relief to men, in every case of prostate trouble I have ever treated with this method!

...And still that's just the beginning! You'll find the full details of this amazing method of healing in a new book which I have written, called HELPING YOURSELF WITH FOOT REFLEXOLOGY. I'll tell you how to get it in just a moment, but first I want to tell you more about it!

Many Healings Reported!

Foot Reflexology is a safe, natural, and inexpensive way to help restore healthful circulation to every area of your body.

Did you ever notice how quickly water freshens when good water is poured into muddy water? Foot Reflexology does the same for circulation in your body. Blood flow slows over the years. Naturally, glands and organs become sluggish. Stimulating a new flow of blood to these "tired" places brings new life, clears glands and organs of years of accumulated waste.

Healings and relief from discomforts of all sorts are reported, by the dozen, in the pages of my book. All were obtained with the help of Foot Reflexology.

Here's What I Say In This Book:

Gall Bladder Healing "There are many cases where Reflex Massage of the liver and gall bladder has saved people from having an operation, with the stones seeming to vanish after a few treatments."—Quoted from Chapter 12

Anemic Conditions "Anyone who is anemic will find ... improvement can be so rapid it is amazing. With pernicious anemia, results will be slower, but Nature will be there, changing new blood cells for old." —Quoted from Chapter 11

Helping the Heart "No matter what the nature of the trouble is, the heart can be aided with this method.... I can give you many case histories of wonderful results from this scientific massage of the reflexes on heart patients." —Quoted from Chapter 13

Relief for Leg Pain "I believe I have treated more cases of leg aches than any other malady, and most were caused by the sciatic nerve. Many people suffer for years without any relief. Yet it is so amazingly simple to banish all inflammation from this nerve in an unbelievably short time. In many cases this method has brought relief in one treatment." —Quoted from Chapter 22

Varicose Veins "I have brought lasting relief to sufferers of varicose veins by starting the proper circulation with Reflex Massage, thus causing congestion to disappear. This is also true with cramps or pains of any kind in the legs." —Quoted from Chapter 16

Relief for Hemorrhoids "Hemorrhoids are nothing more than a congested vein (known as piles). This is actually a varicose vein in the rectum. These can become so large as to protrude, causing inconvenience, much suffering, and in many cases bleeding. Though painful, they are usually suffered in silence by those who have them. Yet with Reflex Massage they are one of the quickest to respond to treatment. Here we will learn how to use the Reflexology method to bring you prompt relief!" —Quoted from Chapter 21

How to Make Reflexology Your Rejuvenator "Would you like to be young again? Would you like to walk expectantly into the future, to enjoy new experiences, with a revitalized body? We do not have to be old... Reflexology rejuvenates the entire body, giving new life to glands and cells. Blood flow slows over the years. Naturally, glands and cells become sluggish. Reflexology stimulates a new flow of blood to these tired places, clears glands and cells of accumulated waste, brings them new life!" —Quoted from Chapters 3 and 24

You'll Discover...

- How Reflexology relieved a man's stuffed sinuses. "After the first treatment, he could suddenly breathe through both sides of his nose" and he felt well again.
- How a woman who had hurt her spine, and was in so much pain that she called a bone specialist to take x-rays, received so much relief with Reflexology—after a single treatment—that she was able to get up and do her work. She felt so much better, in fact, that she cancelled her appointment for x-rays, and claims she is fully recovered.
- How a man with a hunchback—a huge, ugly bulge—received a complete healing with Reflexology. He was freed of pain, and "he was able to stand straight." The hump disappeared. "He was not deformed at all," I reported!
- How a man who suffered from ulcers, kidney trouble, hay fever, and constipation, received complete relief with Reflexology. "The symptoms of each illness disappeared one by one," and today he sleeps like a baby every night!
- How a man with a heart condition was healed with Reflexology. Doctors had always warned him he couldn't do the things other men did. With this method, "his heart returned to normal enough to allow him to do anything he wanted, without any trouble. Today, after more than 10 years, he is a strong and well man."

My name is Mildred Carter. I am not a doctor, but I have been helping people receive remarkable relief from seemingly hopeless aches and pains!

What A Physiotherapist Says:

"During my forty-eight years as a Physiotherapist in my own Treatment Centers ... I have had every opportunity to observe the amazing benefits of manual massage. As a means of rehabilitation where physical trauma is involved, it ranks high in the annals of Medicine.

"The techniques described in Mrs. Carter's book have been developed by experts in the field of reflex massage, and we have no hesitation in recommending them.... For the relief of pain, we know of no other means short of opiates to achieve this objective."

— CLARENCE R. MUNROE

AMAZING TRUE Experiences!

"Reflexology will free you from sickness and suffering, and fear of pain, when used correctly."

"There are so many personal experiences which I could recount, stories of illnesses which were relieved by reflex massage, that I find myself wanting to tell all of them at once. I have seen it do marvelous things that surprised me many times when doctors said it couldn't be done.

"If it can do this for others, it can do this for you! I have proven that this method of healing works, in my own experience. Try it on yourself and FEEL the results!"

Safe To Use!

What's more, Foot Reflexology is absolutely safe. It is the "drugless" way to better health, and requires no exercise, no expensive equipment of any kind. It is so simple, and natural, that it is safe to use on anyone, from the youngest baby to the oldest person. In fact, it is a Rejuvenator that can actually win you many years of new youth!

Read It All From Cover to Cover, For 30 Days, Entirely At Our Risk!

I have proven that this method of healing works in my own experience. You owe it to yourself to try it at our risk and FEEL the results. And I invite you to do just that! Fair enough? Why not send in the coupon—TODAY!

Two Party Favorites: A Delicious Cake— Plus Swedish Meatballs!

BIRTHDAY CAKE

2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1½ cups sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup margarine (1 stick), cut up
1 cup milk
2 eggs
1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
Glossy Chocolate Frosting, recipe below

1. Preheat oven to 350° F. Grease and lightly dust with flour 2 (8 or 9 inch) layer-cake pans.
2. Sift flour, sugar, baking powder and salt into large mixing bowl.
3. Add margarine and ⅔ cup of milk. Beat 2 minutes at low speed of electric mixer. Scrape sides of bowl and clean beaters.
4. Add remaining ⅓ cup milk, eggs and vanilla and beat 2 minutes longer at medium speed.
5. Turn batter into prepared pans and bake 30-35 minutes, or until cake tester poked in center comes out clean.
6. Cool 10 minutes on rack in pans, then remove from pans and cool completely.
7. Place 1 cake layer on cake plate bottom side up. Frost top generously. Place remaining layer on top and finish frosting —frost sides first, and then top of cake.

Makes 1 (8 or 9 inch) layer cake

GLOSSY CHOCOLATE FROSTING

4½ squares unsweetened baking chocolate
2 tablespoons margarine
1½ cups sugar
4½ tablespoons cornstarch
⅛ teaspoon salt
2¼ cups boiling water
1½ teaspoons pure vanilla extract

1. Place chocolate squares and 1 tablespoon margarine in top of double boiler. Heat over boiling water until melted.
2. In 2-qt. saucepan mix sugar, cornstarch and salt.
3. Stir chocolate into cornstarch mixture. Add boiling water, stirring until smooth.
4. Bring to boil over medium-low heat, stirring constantly until mixture boils and thickens. Continue boiling 1 minute.
5. Remove from heat. Stir in vanilla and remaining 1 tablespoon margarine.
6. Cover surface of frosting with waxed paper. Refrigerate until completely cold.

Makes about 3 cups, enough to fill and frost 2-layer cake

MARY ANN'S SWEDISH MEATBALLS

1 slice bread, crumbled
1 egg
3 tablespoons ketchup
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
¼ teaspoon thyme leaves
½ cup chopped onion
1 lb. bulk sausage meat
1½ lbs. lean ground chuck or round
2 tablespoons margarine
2 tablespoons flour
2 bouillon cubes
2 cups water
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley, optional

1. In large bowl, beat together bread, egg, ketchup, salt, pepper and thyme leaves.
2. In large skillet, cook onion and sausage meat until sausage loses its pink color, breaking up sausage into small pieces as it cooks.
3. Add onion-sausage and ground chuck to bread-and-egg mixture. Stir with large spoon until well mixed. Cover, refrigerate for 1-2 hours or overnight. (Chilling makes shaping easier.)
4. Shape into 1-inch meatballs.
5. Heat margarine in large skillet. Brown meatballs, shaking pan frequently so they keep their shape. Cook until done.
6. Remove meatballs from skillet, set aside. Pour off all but 2 tablespoons fat from skillet. Stir in flour smoothly. Add bouillon cubes and water. Bring to boiling, stirring.
7. Turn meatballs into sauce, heat gently to boiling point. Serve hot, sprinkled with parsley. Makes about 50 meatballs

The "two-together" laxative!

(It's made with smaller doses of two laxatives.)

Some single ingredient laxatives work on the "Sunday punch" theory. One big dose of a strong laxative that can knock your system for a loop.

Caroid & Bile Salts Tablets are made up of two separate laxatives that combine the surety of a strong laxative with the gentleness of a mild one.

Together they help ease you to regularity without sudden urgency upset.

And because the dosage is pre-measured, Caroid & Bile Salts Tablets are thorough and so predictable you can almost set your watch by them. Take two tablets at bedtime. Get a good night's sleep. And you can expect to be back on schedule in the morning.

Gentle Caroid & Bile Salts Tablets – the 'two-together' laxative – to help put your system back on schedule.

GRANT SULLENS WITH WEIRD-O
That's a normal chicken at right

Super-chicken has arrived. His name is Weird-O, and he weighs an incredible 22 pounds. It took 17-year-old Californian Grant Sullens five years to develop Weird-O. Grant took up breeding about nine years ago, and four years later began crossbreeding in order to strengthen his flock. Some 5,000 crossbreeds later, here's Weird-O (see picture). Says Grant, "I knew he was something special, since the egg he came from was heavier and rounder than normal. His ma never laid another egg—perhaps Weird-O was too much for her. In no time he was fathering chicks and all the time he grew and grew." As to selling Weird-O, Grant has turned down all incoming offers. He says, "He's my bird and mine he will stay." The new breed has been registered as "White Sullies" and Grant says, "I'm breeding them as full-meat birds. They are to the chicken world what the Angus is to the beef world."

QUOTE: A psychiatrist on promiscuity: "I find that the cause of promiscuity does not need to be physical. Rather, promiscuity represents a tremendous need to be loved and wanted, and physical contact is used merely to achieve that desire. Promiscuity is a defense against alienation. It is an attempt to get close to someone, to establish a relationship—but without success. It is the trying and the failing. It is an escape measure, a cursory and temporary meeting—nothing more than a means to achieve, to gain something permanent, to obtain love. For it is love, and only love, that can bring an illusion of meaning to life and an illusion of immortality."—Dr. I. Emery Breitner, Roslyn, N.Y. UNQUOTE.

Pat Morrow, one of the main characters on NBC-TV's daytime series, "Peyton Place," recently went behind the Iron Curtain as a celebrity guest of Yugoslavia, where her TV show is going great guns. Ms. Morrow saw many people wearing T-shirts with pictures of the cast stamped on them. She reports: "Yugoslavia is the only Iron Curtain country that plays 'Peyton Place.' They combine three segments to show together, and beginning at 6:30 every evening, the show runs for 90 minutes. I was mobbed when I arrived—25,000 people milling about, jumping on the car, and pushing all around. I felt trapped, but it was fantastic too!"

DISHING IT OUT

When at her home for dinner, lunch,
To make my hostess pleased as Punch
I know precisely what to do
And very often do it, too.

I pick some dish and praise it highly,
While hiding pangs of ptomaine slyly,
Or if I can't, my cheeks grown pallid,
I tuck it under leaves of salad.

Ah yes, I say it's simply yummy
And rub (as if with joy) my tummy.
Then topping all with one crescendo,
Which, happily, is near the end-o,
I make her joyous as can be
By asking for the recipe.

Years ago we lived in a small town in Illinois, and when our son was about three and a half years old, his dad took him over to a neighbor's house to watch a man tilling his garden with a small plow pulled by a horse. He was quite excited. When they returned home I asked him what the man was doing with the plow. He answered, "He was pushing the horse with it."

Here's a recipe for everyone in the family . . . a recipe that anyone can try and is guaranteed to come out beautifully as long as you follow the instructions! It's a recipe for happiness . . . it's a recipe that will make your life deeper and more profound. Yet it's told so simply and directly, no one can fail to appreciate its message. In fact it's all the wisdom you'll ever need to keep your home full of joy . . . help you over the rough spots . . . and remind you of the contributions you must make to keep love alive and make it grow.

But this piece is more than a message, it's a beautiful decorator piece printed in full color on fine linen and finished with hardwood rods top and bottom. Just to look at it will lift your spirits. An ideal gift . . . a homey reminder that all life expects is for you to put in as much as you'd like to take out. A full 14" x 17" it's yours for only $1.99, and since it has such universal appeal, why not order another as a thoughtful gift, two for just $3.50 (please add 50c postage and handling with each order).
